POUND SLIDES

LONDON (AP) — The pound slid still further on the world's money markets today, reaching record lows against the dollar and other major currencies.

By mid-day, the pound was fetching only $2.2435 after opening at $2.2490.

Measured against currencies of 10 major trading partners, the pound's devaluation had reached 27.2 per cent, compared with its value of December, 1971. Wednesday night's figure was 26.8 per cent.

Behind the pound's weakness lay chronic economic troubles and fears among European currency operators that the Labor government may prove unable to control inflation, now running at an annual rate of 25 per cent.

Gandhi Jails Foes

Times News Services

NEW DELHI, India — Prime Mininster Indira Gandhi proclaimed a state of emergency in India today and her government arrested 676 political opponents and arrests were continuing in an attempt to ward off a nation-wide civil disobedience campaign against her refusal to resign.

A government spokesman said arrests were made in nine of the country's 21 states in the first 12 hours of the emergency decree.

This morning, communications between New Delhi and the outside world have been cut. There was no indication of when they would be re-established.

The last United Press story to be received said the decree declaring the state of emergency provided for censorship of outgoing news dispatches. There was no indication whether that story actually had been censored.

Proclamation of the state of emergency gave the government power to arrest persons at will and to hold them in prison indefinitely without trial.

Gandhi said she hoped the situation would improve soon so that the decree could be lifted, but she gave no indication how long it might remain in force.

States of emergency were declared in India in the past only in time of war—in 1962, during fighting with China and in December, 1971, at the start of the war with Pakistan over Bangladesh.

The 1971 proclamation, directed against external aggression, still is in force and Gandhi repeatedly has rejected opposition demands that she lift it, arguing the country was still threatened from abroad.

The government said Gandhi asked President Fakhruddin Ali Ahmed to issue the new emergency proclamation because of a threat from internal forces.

Although most of those arrested were reported to be members of the four non-Communist parties that have led the demand for Gandhi's resignation, the dragnet also pulled in Jyoti Basu of the ultra-led Marxist Communist party.

The pro-Moscow Communist party has long been one of Gandhi's bulwarks, and its support has not wavered in the current crisis.

The government radio in its regular 1 p.m. newscast said:

"Some preventive arrests have been made in various places. Constant vigilance and alertness is being maintained throughout the country. The law and order machinery will ensure that peace is not dis-

UFAWU VOTES TO STRIKE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Shoreworkers and tendermen, members of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union, have voted heavily in favor of strike action against British Columbia fishing companies, a union spokesman said Wednesday.

The 600 tendermen voted 91 per cent and the 3,500 shoreworkers voted 90 per cent to strike should contract talks bog down.

The tendermen want a $30-a-day increase on their current rate of $65 while the shoreworkers have asked for a $2-an-hour increase on their base rate of $4.76.

Salmon net fishermen, also members of the UFAW, are also taking a strike vote.

Ford Hedges On Use Of N-Bomb

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has made it clear he does not feel bound by the policies of past administrations that forbid the first strike use of nuclear weapons to protect the national interest.

Instead, the president refused to either rule out or endorse the use of nuclear weapons and said he would follow a policy of "maximum flexibility" in the event of war.

Ford was asked four questions during his news conference Wednesday about the possible use of nuclear force, and in each response he emphasized that his decision would be based on the circumstances.

"I don't think it's appropriate for me to discuss in a press conference what our utilization will be of our tactical or strategic weapons," Ford said. "This is a matter that has to be determined if an when there are any requirements for our national interests."

Ford's predecessors ruled out the option of using nuclear weapons as an offensive weapon rather than a deterrent.

MERCHANT BANK BACKS REFINERY

LONDON (CP) — Hill Samuel and Co., a giant merchant banking house, is proposing to help finance British Columbia's planned $350-million oil refinery, sources said Wednesday.

John Macdonell, managing director of Hill Samuel Project Finance Ltd. — a subsidiary of the bank —, confirmed that "we have made proposals" to the province-owned British Columbia Petroleum Corp. (BCPC).

Provincial Premier David Barrett announced Tuesday that the province had signed a letter of intent naming Sim-Chem Ltd. as the prime contractor for the refinery.

The Simon Engineering Group — including Sim-Chem — are clients of Hill Samuel, sources said.

Barrett and his officials have kept tight-lipped about their financing plans for the refinery, which would be the province's biggest.

Banking sources said British participation in the refinery could reach $180 million.

A Supreme Court of Canada decision today upholding the right of Prince Edward Island to prohibit non-residents from owning more than 10 acres of land strengthens the hand of the British Columbia government to proceed with similar legislation, Resources Minister Bob Williams said today.

He said he and Attorney-General Alex Macdonald have had their departments carry out preliminary work "so we'll be prepared."

He declined to elaborate on what specific measures the provincial government might be considering.

Absentee ownership of land has definite negative effects on the economy in terms of the price of land and the supply available to Canadians, he said.

"Basically absentee ownership is not beneficial: It's far better to have people working their land and concerned about it."

Earlier Macdonald and Premier Dave Barrett said they wanted to wait for the Supreme Court verdict before proceeding with any similar legislation in British Columbia.

Today's decision was a unanimous verdict of the Supreme Court.

Chief Justice Bora Laskin, writing the reasons for the judgment on behalf of the full court, rejected arguments that Canadians in other provinces were discriminated against by the law.

He also turned down arguments that the law was not valid because it dealt with aliens, a subject entirely within the jurisdiction of the federal government.

"What we have in the present case is not any attempt to regulate or control alien residents of Prince Edward Island in what they may do or not do therein, but rather a limitation on landholding by non-residents," he said.

At issue was an action taken by Richard Morgan and Alan Jacobson, both of New York State, who sought to buy 30 acres of land on P.E.I.

All other nine provinces presented arguments on the side of P.E.I. while the federal government lined up on the other side, claiming control of aliens was solely a federal matter.

"Absentee ownership of land in a province is a matter of legitimate provincial concern and in the case of Prince Edward Island, history adds force to this aspect of its authority over its territory."

British Columbia Deputy Attorney General David Vickers said today's decision by the Supreme Court will become the leading decision in Canadian constitutional law on the land ownership question.

He said his department is preparing a wide range of op-

OTTAWA BEGINS PAVING PROBE

Federal authorities have begun investigating local paving companies following complaints by Victoria Mayor Peter Pollen and five aldermen, OK Paving president Buncy Sangha confirmed today.

Sangha said he regards the inquiry as no different from other inquiries made by different levels of government at various times.

"There's been some complaints lodged so there has to be an investigation," he said.

Company records have not been seized, he said.

Pollen and five city aldermen have requested an inquiry under the federal Combines Investigation Act into "certain asphalt paving production companies in this area which we consider are combining in restrictive trade," he said.

City sources said firms involved are Victoria Paving and OK Paving, the two major contractors in the area.

Kidnap Victim's Family Waits

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP) — The family of Mrs. Conrad Blanchet is awaiting further word from kidnappers holding the 63-year-old woman for a $1 million ransom.

Mrs. Blanchet, wife of a wealthy industrialist, was abducted Tuesday from her home in Rock Forest, 15 miles east of here.

Quebec Provincial Police have confirmed the kidnapping but have refused to provide further details because of demands made by the kidnappers that the family not inform the news media of the abduction.

However, sources said Wednesday that 38-year-old Gaston Blanchet had been telephoned three times by the kidnappers demanding payment of $1 million in $20 notes in return for the freedom of his mother.

The sources said that during the latest call, at 11:30 a.m. EDT Wednesday, Mr. Blanchet told the kidnappers that the family had been able to raise $50,000 in bills of the required denomination.

Family members, meanwhile, had expressed concern about Mrs. Blanchet's health because she requires daily medication to treat a heart condition.

Sources said Mrs. Blanchet was sitting alone beside the swimming pool in the grounds of the large split-level house when several men approached her.

She fled into the house where the kidnappers captured her.

NDP Breaks Ranks Over Code Changes

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

Three NDP backbenchers broke ranks Wednesday and opposed Labor Minister Bill King's Labor Code amendments granting more powers to the Labor Relations Board in settling labor-management disputes.

Colin Gabelmann (North Vancouver-Seymour), Harold Steves (Richmond) and Rosemary Brown (Vancouver-Burrard) said they opposed second reading of the bill because it would lead to a more legalistic approach by the board in industrial relations problems. The amendments were later approved in principle.

Gabelmann said the New Democratic Party government believed that labor relations disputes should be removed from the courts but the presence of many lawyers on the LRB "leads back into the court system."

He said the amendments suggest that lawyers on the LRB do not feel they have enough power to police labor-management relations.

The result of the legislation will be decisions that are not based on a solution acceptable to both parties but on the idea that the proper legal way of doing things is of prime importance.

Gabelmann said labor disputes should be dealt with on an ad hoc basis with both parties presenting their case to a body which is sensitive to their interests.

Gabelmann said added powers proposed for the board are "a mistake that will lead us down the road to more mistakes."

"My fear is that these amendments . . . will lead to a situation where both management and union will be leery of the board, avoiding it

Six Inches of Rain Swamps Regina

By The Canadian Press

Regina is mopping up today after severe thunderstorms dumped up to six inches of rain on the area in a four-hour period Wednesday night, but residents are nervously watching the skies as more of the same is expected.

Storm sewers, unable to handle the volume of water, started backing up about two hours after the start of the storm, which set a new record for rainfall in a 24-hour period. The previous record was 3.24 inches in June 21, 1965.

The storm brought lightning, hail, downpours and tornados across Saskatchewan and Alberta Wednesday night.

This morning, officials shut down the Regina transit system as many main traffic arteries were clogged with water. Motorists were being advised to proceed with caution because of the danger of deep water-filled holes in the streets.

The Regina weather office posted tornado warnings Wednesday night for the Regina, Weyburn, Yorkton regions. The warning ended this morning but forecasters called for thunderstorms to develop again late this afternoon with more strong winds and heavy rainfall.

In west-central Alberta, a hailstorm which started at Caroline during the supper hour, cut a swath between 25 and 30 miles wide through the Red Deer area, causing extensive damage.

'First Steak in Five Years'

COURTENAY — Old people come into his store and order half a pound of hamburger "and a bone for my dog," says Courtenay butcher Bill Wheten.

"I know they don't have a dog."

Senior citizens are the "forgotten people" so he decided to do something about it.

Each Tuesday evening, from 6:30 to 9 p.m., his store, Central Meats at 491 Fifth St., is open for people 65 and over to buy up to $6 worth of meat at cost plus freight.

For them, ground round steak, normally $1.69 a pound, is 89 cents, T-bone steaks, usually $2.89 a pound, are $1.89 and bacon, regularly $1.49, is $1.09.

Tuesday evening this week was the first such opening and Wheten said today he was awed and overwhelmed by results.

With the store manned by volunteers, including some of his staff, there were 150 customers in the first 35 minutes.

All told there were about 265 customers ("we lost count") and about $800 worth of meat was sold.

Wheten, 35, who has operated his store since January, said one woman has organized a car pool for the senior citizen customers, picking them up and taking them home from as far as Cumberland, 10 miles away.

That sort of move seems to have amazed him more than anything else.

"In this day and age you're almost taught that everyone is out to screw everyone else. It's not true.

Wheten said he has no particular future plans for the project.

It will last, he says, until prices drop or the government can see its way clear to doing something more for pensioners.

"But I have no bitch against the government. We tend to blame governments. It's time we as individuals started to help. We could make this a far better province if each of us started to do something."

This Is an Offer You Can't Refuse . . .

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada ruled today that you can't refuse to take a breath test simply because you aren't in a car and don't have the keys.

It upheld the conviction of Borden Taraschuk, who refused to take the test at 5:50 a.m. May 22, 1972, after being arrested while walking along a Toronto street.

Moments before a Toronto policeman had seen Taraschuk sitting in a parked car. The lights were out and engine was not running.

Taraschuk was charged under Section 235 (2) of the Criminal Code, which says "every one who, without reasonable excuse, fails or refuses to comply with a demand made to him by a peace officer (for a breath test sample) is guilty of an offence . . ."

Taraschuk testified he had not driven the car. He said it had been driven and parked by a woman who had the keys and left to go to her apartment nearby. He said he was going to get cigarettes when the policeman stopped him.

His defence was that because he did not have care or control of the car, this was a reasonable excuse for refusing to supply a breath sample.

The Supreme Court, in a unanimous decision, said this interpretation "invites a self-defeating construction" of Section 235 and its "reasonable cause" provision.

Court Upholds Alien Land Curb

tions for the provincial cabinet to study but noted that British Columbia's problems are quite different than those in P.E.I.

He said B.C. had more land than P.E.I. and might approach the question from a different point of view. For one thing, he noted, many Albertans own summer homes in B.C. and have holdings in the Kootenays and the Okanagan.

Whether B.C. legislation would prohibit other Canadians from owning land in B.C. was still very much an open question, he said.

Vickers noted that the P.E.I. law permits aliens to own land if they live within the province.

"The key question not yet sorted out is what happens if you prohibit an alien who lives within the province from owning land. A decision on that question could be very interesting."

Karen Sanford, NDP MLA for Comox, said she has had a private member's bill before the house for two years but it deals only with the question of landholdings by non-Canadians.

She said she will press for legislation this fall prohibiting non-Canadians from owning any land in B.C. but would not try to restrict holdings by Canadians living in other provinces.

She said she is confident this type of legislation has the support of the majority in the NDP caucus.

P. R. P. Holmes, world president of the International Real Estate Federation, said Canadians would have to be prepared to pay higher taxes if they want to restrict foreign investment.

Holmes said he is opposed to restrictions on land holdings with a few exceptions. Land which is politically strategic, such as harbor front and industrial land reserves, should be in Canadian hands, he said.

Otherwise, there should be no restriction.

He said there would be a balkanization of real estate law if each province proceeds with its individual regulations on restricting land ownership.

A small country like Canada, small in terms of population, needs as much foreign investment as it can attract, he said.

turbed and anti-social and disruptive elements do not jeopardize normal functioning in the life of the community."

Indian news agencies said those arrested included Socialist leader Raj Narraian, who originally brought campaign corruption charges against Gandhi, Morarji Desai, former deputy prime minister who formed his own party six years ago; and Chandra Sekhar, a dissident in Gandhi's own Congress party.

Gandhi was convicted June 12 of illegally using government officials in her campaign for parliament four years ago, and has been under pressure from the opposition since then to resign. The Supreme Court this week barred her from voting in parliament during appeal of her conviction, but the court said she need not resign.

In what appeared to be a related development Thursday, most New Delhi newspapers were stopped from publishing their Thursday morning editions. According to one newspaper source, the electricity supply to most of the papers was halted, apparently by Communist-backed labor unions.

Gandhi said the lives of law-abiding citizens would not be affected by the new state of emergency. She said she hopes "internal conditions will speedily improve so that the emergency can be halted as soon as possible."

Narayan, 73 and ailing, a colleague of the late Mahatma Gandhi (no relation to the prime minister), addressed a rally of 50,000 persons here Wednesday night, touching off the present crisis. He has been waging an intensive anti-corruption drive throughout India for the past year.

Seemhar, the arrested Congress Party member, belongs to the party's top policymaking body, the Congress Working Committee. He is believed to be the first member of the committee to be arrested for dissent in 18 years of Indian independence. Seemhar had objected to the party's support for Gandhi after the convention.

The mass arrests, which were continuing in widespread parts of the country Thursday morning, came as a stunning surprise. Shortly after Narayan began his speech, Gandhi had denounced his appeals for civil disobedience.

Whether Narayan's planned campaign, which was to begin on Monday, will now take place seemed extremely doubtful. Gandhi appeared determined to break opposition efforts to arouse popular opinion against her at all costs.

In calling for civil disobedience, Narayan invoked the same tactic his mentor, the Mahatma, successfully used to force the British out of India 28 years ago.

Narayan told the crowd that India was faced with "a serious threat of fascism" and he charged Gandhi with waging a "malicious propaganda campaign, like that Hitler adopted in Germany."

The stunning arrests and declaration of a state of emergency came within hours of a call by Marayan for a civil disobedience campaign to demand Gandhi's resignation. He urged India's army and police to disobey orders as part of the campaign.

In a radio address, Gandhi said, "It is our firm duty to safeguard the unity and stability at a time when a program of disruption has been drawn up to challenge law and order throughout the country."

Referring to Narayan's appeal to the army and police to disobey orders, she said. "Ours is a strong military and it is aware of its national responsibility."

She attacked Narayan for instigating a "widespread conspiracy and attempting to destroy democracy in the name of saving it."

Backbenchers 'Perplex' King

"When you put a third party in with increased powers, the dispute will linger, fester and make for more difficult bargaining in the future," said Gablemann, arguing labor-management deadlocks do not need a referee.

The solution for particularly hard-to-solve disputes, is to appoint a commissioner to make sure the two parties bargain together.

His comments were echoes by Brown who asked the minister to shelve the amendments because they are designed to establish another form of court settlement.

"Let us listen to the wishes of the trade union movement without making any final decision about this legislation," she said.

The board, with a heavy complement of legal expertise, will introduce measures of compulsion to industrial relation disputes, she warned.

Steves contended management and labor are not equal competitors — "management has a bigger shoe.

"Amendments to the code are giving the upper hand to bigger international companies," he said.

The labor minster, in his introductory remarks said it is "imperative the board be given exclusive jurisdiction to deal with industrial disputes. Exclusion of the courts is based on a need for a different kind of framework."

The amendments provide that the board will not be limited by the type of complaint before it and can investigate the whole situation,

The legislation seeks to clarify the precise line dividing the court jurisdiction from the labor board said King.

"We wish to ensure the board is the final decision-making authority in industrial arbitration law . . . and has control of every aspect of labor disputes."

Arbitrators' powers are codified and given new jurisdictions to allow awarding of compensation.

New provisions are also designed to ensure the protection of the public against interruption in vital health services, by giving the minister power to order services maintained.

The code is also broadened to include agriculture and domestic workers, he said.

The labor mininster, however, strengthened his remakrs after hearing the government back-benchers oppose the amendments.

"I do not now and never did mean to profess the kind of capabilities to solve all the concerns" of management and labor, said King.

The house, he said, may well anticipate further amendments to the code, but the current goal is to achieve the highest degree of industrial peace and remain sensitive to both parties.

He said the backbenchers misunderstood the changes and their comments perplexed him.

The amendments will not interfere with collective bargaining, he said.

"The amendments have nothing to do with the collective bargaining process and relate only to the arbitration procedure," said King.

The legislature must accept that courts are not the right agency to regulate disputes and we can't leave the regulation authority in a vacuum.

"By default, unless the jurisdiction is transferred, it reverts to the courts."

"I reject that the amendments' intention is to set up a labor court. I don't see the amendments as being a blueprint for solving all the problems that exist, but nothing will succeed unless we have the full co-operation of both parties."

Independent Allan Williams (West Vancouver-Howe Sound) said the bill indicates the minister "has gone almost all the way in changing what clearly was an administrative tribunal into a judicial one."

Buchanan Happy Over Land Deal

OTTAWA (FP) — Indian Affairs Minister Judd Buchanan expressed delight Wednesday that the B.C. government has agreed to deal with the issue of "cutoff" lands in that province and urged Victoria to screw up its courage to deal with the broader issue of land claims as well.

He was commmenting in the Commons on the agreement by the B.C. government to return to the Indian people "as a symbolic gesture of good faith" 100 acres of land cut off from Indian lands 60 years ago.

In return the 23 Indian bands involved agreed to halt demonstrations against the government on the question by Sept. 1.

"I am delighted that the government of British Columbia has agreed to deal with the limited question of the cut-off lands," the minister said, adding that the federal government has been urging this step for a number of years.

"I hope the government will now screw up its courage and deal with the much broader question of land claims in that province," Buchanan added.

LIP in Fernwood

They Left a Legacy of Pride and Accomplishment

JUST SO he won't forget, the students at Vic West Elementary school presented departing principal, Claude Campbell with a sweater. Making the presentation this week is grade 4 student Saundra Barker. Their legacy is the "basics" for Fernwood to develop itself into a community where pride of living and a sense of belonging will become a daily habit.

"They" are the six people hired under a Local Initiatives Project grant to "revitalize and to initiate" programs that would see the community help itself.

And they have accomplished what they set out to do.

Taking up the challenge were Yvonne Marchand, Linda Downey, Pat Pearce, Richard Hoffman, Jack Godlonton and Manfred Tempelmayr, and they were co-ordinated by community development worker Brian Lewis.

First task was building the Fernwood Community Association into a viable force — one that speaks and acts for the community at large.

This meant knocking on a lot of doors and telling the residents about the association and getting them to come out to the monthly meetings. Membership now is more than triple what it was at the beginning of the year and what is more important, people are aware and are using the community drop-in centre on Gladstone.

The centre is only a "hole in the wall' but at least it's a start and co-ordinator Lewis has something to build on.

The LIP money runs out July 4 and the six workers will then seek employment elsewhere or go on unemployment insurance. While they knew the project would end, they have only one regret . . . that the project could not have been extended a month or two.

"It's really something . . . when I drive down the streets people know me now and they wave or yell hello. It gives me a great feeling . . . like I belonged here or am one of them," says Manfred.

In assessing the accomplishments of the LIP effort, Jack says the two most important things must be the pride he senses in people living in Fernwood and how they've reacted to ideas from the six workers.

"Stevenson Park is a good example. We held the spring fair there but it was dirty and littered. We had a work party and 30 people turned out for the clean up.

"Since then one person in the community has been looking into the situation at Stevenson as it relates to other parks in the city.

"The people are now demanding that they be treated the same. Parks in other areas are clean and looked after by the city and they now want to know why this isn't being done at Stevenson," adds Jack.

Manfred also said residents are cleaning up their yards and painting their houses.

"We went to one place and offered to clean it up. The person was renting it and didn't give a damn what it looked like. But others are painting.

"When we cleaned the park (Stevenson) the owner of a house nearby started cleaning his place and he painted the outside. It looks really great, and all it takes is for one person in a block to do it and other will follow," says Manfred.

The LIP workers, before their employment runs out, hope to find enough volunteers to carry on some of the projects . . . one of them being the newsletter.

Jack says an "editor" has volunteered and starting in September the school (teachers and students) will be contributing to it.

The staff will put out the July issue but the one in August will be an all-volunteer effort.

They've done the spade work and sown the seed and only time will tell what sort of community Fernwood will grow into.

SUMMER RECESS

Community and ratepayer associations are winding up their activities for the summer recess . . . and so is the Victoria Times community pages.

But there are still a few who operate year-around and we want to hear from you . . . on your plans, activities and aspirations.

If you have any meetings coming up, reports, or something you would like to share with others, phone the Times and ask for the city editor. Your news will appear in the paper and in the fall the community pages will resume.

Arthritic Pains?

Aching Muscles?
Aching Back?

Today, all over Canada, many men and women who suffer from arthritic or rheumatic pain are using a new medicated rub to get fast, effective relief. It's called EXOCAINE®!

There's nothing exactly like this proven medicated rub. You see, EXOCAINE® contains a recognized analgesic to relieve arthritic pain; plus a fast-acting anesthetic to help temporarily desensitize nerve endings that transmit such pain. So you may move around more comfortably. Up to hours at a time.

Don't let the discomforts and pains of arthritis needlessly interfere with your work, your sleep, your life. Today, get EXOCAINE MEDICATED RUB at any drug counter.

Community News Round-Up

A half-block section of Pembroke between Oregon and Stanley will definitely be closed later this summer and a park constructed.

City hall officials toured the area this week and told a group from the FERNWOOD COMMUNITY ASSOCIATION that work will begin before fall.

The closure was sought in the spring and a petition signed by residents in the area favored the idea.

Chairman of the various committees to co-ordinate the fall festival were named. The fair will be held Aug. 23.

This Friday, those planning to enter the beard contest must report to the community office on Gladstone to register and to display a "clean" face.

The summer program for NEWTON GARDENS is now being revised by student Susan Hamilton who will have the help of five incentive workers.

The revision was necessary because of the lack of funds to hire more staff. The LIP workers are through July 5.

Susan is planning a car wash for that date and is hoping to operate an "unstructed" program for the children.

More than 20 doctors have applied to the JAMES BAY COMMUNITY RESOURCE BOAD to fill the position in the proposed health centre.

Bob Dill, co-ordinator-director, said today that applications are still coming in and the board is sending all applicants a job description form.

Closing date is the end of July.

As well the board, within the next two weeks, will be placing ads for a medical receptionist and expanded role nurse.

At this week's meeting of the board the audited books were turned over from the interim board and committees were struck.

Community committees will include health and human resources, community school, planning and development, social, volunteer and communication.

There are still openings in the CAPITAL REGION SAFETY COUNCIL'S safe bicycle course in August run in co-operation with municipal and RCMP officers.

It's a six-hour course consisting of three two-hour sessions with each class divided into one hour in the classroom and one hour riding exercises.

In addition several rodeos will be held during the summer for graduates of the course. Cost is 75 cents to cover cost of manuals, tests and cards.

City Council Fiddles . . .

Victoria city council has been dithering for three years about eliminating fire hazards in city apartments and hotel rooms. Fire Chief Eric Simmons, who has been warning council about potential fire traps since 1970, submitted a report in 1972 detailing 26 hotels, motels and apartment buildings that were considered hazardous. Nine months after receiving the report, council got around to discussing it. Not until this year did our city fathers seriously grapple with the issue, only to find out the provincial Fire Marshal's Act provided them with the necessary powers to force compliance with national building code standards.

Three years after the fact council is finally prepared to act, although it wants Chief Simmons to prepare a new updated report on the safety status of local apartments and hotels. The zeal with which aldermen attacked the first report must give the chief pause as he prepares for the second time around.

In fairness to council, it was in a difficult position. If it demanded immediate compliance with fire standards many hotel and apartment owners might have evicted their tenants rather than face costly renovations on old buildings. Many of the tenants are poor and there is literally no place for them to go. It is also true that this council, with the exception of the mayor and one or two aldermen, exhibits extreme timidity when it comes to stepping on business toes.

Even allowing for these excuses, the danger has been common knowledge for nearly five years and council did nothing during that time to alleviate the situation. Such foot dragging in the face of a dangerous situation is inexcusable. The aldermen can form a prude patrol at the drop of a G-string but when it comes to an important matter of public safety they appear powerless to act. If it takes five years to ensure that local buildings are relatively safe from fires, what can the public expect on other important issues?

The answer may be contained in the following. Now that Chief Simmons has been given the go-ahead to enforce provincial standards, aldermen are arguing the merits of whether or not to release the chief's report. These same aldermen refer to some of named lodgings as "horror stories" or "rat nests," yet they refuse to release the list which would at least warn citizens of the dangers in their accommodation. It is tedious to lecture council on its responsibilities, but there is no other alternative when it is acting to protect the anonymity of persons who are breaking the law.

Council was elected to govern this municipality in the public interest. It is not supposed to worry if the owners of the hazardous lodgings are upset. It is supposed to worry about the public interest. Unless they are talking about all buildings, our aldermen seem to have a hard time getting this basic fact through their heads.

The city should begin cracking down on unsafe buildings immediately. After Chief Simmons has done his new survey the list should be made public. This would not only warn people in hazardous lodgings, it would also bring public pressure to bear on owners to correct the situation. And the next time council is faced with a similar issue hopefully it won't bury its head in the sand where it can't hear the public cries for help.

Reality Versus the Rhetoric

In terms of what government says as opposed to what it does, Canadians might be excused for thinking they are governed by a two-headed monster. Prime Minister Trudeau was so concerned about corporate power a few weeks ago his government established a royal commission to study the problem. Yet his budget measures, especially reduced taxation and greater tax write-offs in the resource industries, have the effect of increasing corporate power.

The prime minister also warned that labor unions were becoming too powerful in Canadian society, hinting that curbs might be in the offing unless organized labor showed responsible restraint. But the budget rejects mandatory wage or price controls at this time. In fact, it guarantees higher wage demands by sharply increasing retail gasoline and heating oil prices.

The government's example of restraint — cutting $1 billion in spending — is almost laughable, considering the projected 14 per cent increase in federal expenditures this year. Nor does this unsatisfactory document spell out very precisely where or when the government will save $1 billion.

What is even more difficult to understand is those hardest hit by current inflation are being asked to pay even more. Increased gasoline and heating oil prices will be especially hard on the poor and those on fixed incomes. Yet businesses will be able to claim a rebate on the 15-cent-a-gallon increase. The much abused middle class, which has watched its real income dwindle or at least remain stationary, is being taxed even more heavily through increased unemployment benefits, gasoline and heating price increases. At a time of recession it would seem to be in the government's interest to keep consumer spending at current levels rather than eroding disposable income.

Ottawa's progressive cutbacks on its share of provincial hospital and medical care will inevitably result in lower health standards. Skyrocketing medical costs combined with decreased provincial revenue sources will mean that fewer programs can be undertaken. In provinces such as B .C. where the government is committed to totally subsidized health programs, existing facilities may be cut back. What Finance Minister John Turner told us last Monday is that there is just not enough money to fund our wildest dreams anymore. The question remains how are we going to divvy up the humble pie? No one in Ottawa appears to have the strength to grip the knife, let alone measure out the pieces.

PAUL WHITELAW

Room 723 Watergate Source

WASHINGTON — Three years ago Tuesday, Mrs. Norman Landy missed her chance to change the course of history.

At least that's what she jokingly tells friends and curious visitors to the Howard Johnson Motor Lodge she operates on downtown Virginia Aveune.

"If I'd been at the front desk that night, Richard Nixon might still be president of the United States," says Mrs. Landy.

That night — to Mrs. Landy and her employees — means the early hours of June 17, 1972, when the balcony of room 723 served as a lookout to direct a burglary of the Democratic Party headquarters in the Watergate office building across the street.

Richard Nixon might still be president, relates Mrs. Landy with a mixture of amusement and awe, because she would have impeded or possibly even foiled the burglars' plans.

$32 a Night for 723

"June is very busy month for us," said the holder of the Howard Johnson franchise, "and I never rent single rooms. That Watergate burglar, Baldwin was his name, I think, turned up alone to register. I would have turned him away."

To relive history in room 723 costs $32 a night, double, of course. That's up four dollars from the rate in effect three years ago when the break-in directed from the hotel's balcony set in motion a chain of events that resulted in the first resignation of an American president.

A few words with the management can sometimes result in the historic site being reserved for arriving guests. But it is usually booked far in advance.

Surprisingly, as of last weekend, there was no one registered to mark — perhaps unknowingly — the third anniversary of the Watergate break-in in room 723.

Mrs. Landy said she was keeping it open because somebody will probably request that specific room.

The historic events set off by the arrest of five men across the street from the Howard Johnson Motor Lodge inside Watergate touched Mrs. Landy only peripherally, of course.

Still, the scandal seems to have affected the lives of many ordinary people who lived through the unfolding drama in Washington or other parts of the country.

Most strikingly, perhaps, it has reduced the perception of the president and the presidency held by many Americans to human proportion.

And the politicians in congress, always quick to perceive which way the public mood is shifting so they can race in front and lead it, have been recapturing power surrendered in former years to the White House.

For many Americans, at least in politically-attuned Washington, one of the most troubling legacies of Watergate is the questions left unanswered by all the debates, hearings and court proceedings.

Perhaps the most fundamental question will never be answered:

—How much did Richard Nixon know about the break-in on June 17, 1973, and when did he know it?

The White House tapes which led to the president's resignation last Aug. 8 pushed the date of his knowledge of the burglary to five days after the break-in. Did Mr. Nixon know in advance of the break-in or that the Democratic headquarters had been bugged with electronic listening devices.

Some other questions which are also unanswered:

—What was the purpose of the burglary? Watergate led to the worst political scandal in U.S. history. Was it merely stupidity? Or was there information so damaging to the Democrats in their headquarters that the plotters decided to go ahead, despite the high risk?

Unanswered Questions

—Who, or what, was responsible for the 18½-minute gap in the tape of key conversation Mr. Nixon had with H. R. Haldeman, his chief of staff, on June 20, 1972. That was only three days after the break-in.

—Who was responsible for the faulty transcripts of the White House tapes given to the House Judiciary committee during its impeachment inquiry?

And, most haunting of all to both Richard Nixon's detractors and friends, is why he didn't destroy the tapes—in the name of "national security" or "executive privilege"—once their existence was revealed?

It would have been the supreme act of presidential arrogance. But it might have worked to save Richard Nixon from his ultimate disgrace.

Hotly Contested Title

Mr. N. T. Porter (Victoria Times, June 23) has nominated a challenger — the glaucous-winged gull — to the varied thrush for the title of B.C.'s provincial bird. The debate for this hotly-contested title is now on. Come on now, readers, are there any more avian nominees? What bird do you think best represents our province?

Mr. Porter backed his entry with an interesting argument, which admittedly was not considered in the original deliberations of the federation of B.C. naturalists; namely a supposed comparison between the arrogant and omnivorous habits of his bird and those of our government. He also predicted that I would cavalierly shoot down his candidate.

In rising to this challenge I must first point out that as a bird-lover I would never shoot down any bird. At the same time I should say that, whereas the habits of our government are felt inexorably in every tiny corner of the province, the glaucous-winged gull never even made our preliminary list for it is a coastal species that does not occur (except as a rare straggler) over 90 per cent of the province. Many are the complaints from the interior that a coastal flower (the flowering dogwood) which does not occur over most of the province was selected as our provincial flower, and we are not anxious to make the same mistake with the provincial bird.

A further argument against the glaucous-winged gull is that it is but one of a dozen or so gulls that occur in the province and even the most experienced bird-watchers admit that the gull family is one of the most difficult for accurate identification. As Mr. Porter says, everyone must easily recognize our provincial emblem, but how many of our readers can correctly distinguish between the glaucous-winged, California, mew, Thayer's and herring gulls, all of which are common at Clover Point?

Steller's jay was indeed short-listed, and would be a worthy candidate. However, unlike the flowering dogwood (which Nuttall discovered in B.C.), Georg Steller (a German traveller employed by Russia) discovered (and was the first white man to kill) his jay in Alaska in 1741. A small point, perhaps, but, when competition is keen, it is these fine points that count. The varied thrush, however, is an irreproachable British Columbian, and I challenge any reader to nominate a more worthy candidate. — J. B. Tatum, 305-1680 Poplar Avenue.

Pension Plans

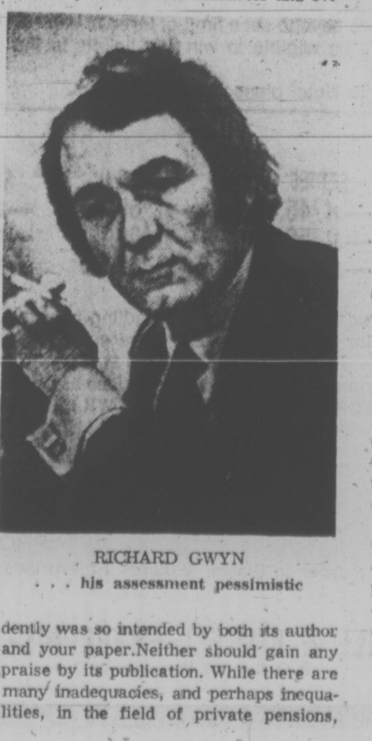
The Times' of June 18 featured an item entitled Pension Plans Melting Away written by Richard Gwyn. It was extremely alarmist in character and evidently was so intended by both its author and your paper.Neither should gain any praise by its publication. While there are many inadequacies, and perhaps inequalities, in the field of private pensions, there also is much to commend including the fact that many thousands of Canadians are either getting, or will get, a major share of the intended benefits of private pension plans.



RICHARD GWYN
. . . his assessment pessimistic

Richard Gwyn treats the matter as all negative, which is far from the real truth. If this set of half-truths, inaccuracies, and omissions of fact, is the best that he and the Times can do in reporting on, and helping to improve, the pension situation, then it would be better to remain silent. Surely such an important matter deserves a more comprehensive and accurate treatment, or is that beyond the resources and resourcefulness of your newspaper and those who contribute to and select the information that it publishes? Or maybe, as Gwyn states, "The details are beside the point." If so, what point, please? — George J. Powell, 1680 Poplar Street.

Think Reasonably!

How is it that the Solicitor-General Warren Allmand and a few MPs and sundry officials seem so muddle-headed on the matter of capital punishment?

The great majority of the people of Canada have no doubt whatsoever that to resist murder is right. There is no law in this land, or any other, no moral law, no law of ethics, which can condemn a person attacked for turning the tables on a would-be murdered — even to the extreme extent of killing in self-defence.

Such killing is neither murder nor wrongful, but rather it would be in a case of justifiable homicide, where a person attacked can take the law into his own hands, and in self-defence, slay his attacker without impeachment or accusation of the law. Now if a person attempting to commit murder, which is wrongful killing, can be justly slain by the intended victim, how, in the name of common sense can the solicitor-general of Canada maintain that capital punishment is immoral? Does the person who actually committed murder warrant favor of the law and gain moral merit? If attempting murder might cost a thug his life will committing murder surely save it? Please, Mr. Allmand, think rasonably!

Is the law an ass or is it just manipulated by asses? — Roy Henshaw, 2624 Asquith street.

Serious Fire Problem

Owing to a variety of interruptions this is the first time I have had clear to write to express my appreciation for your editorial entitled Towering Problems. It seemed to me that it struck just the right note and one that I wish others would follow.

Until I undertook the fire study I had no idea how serious the situation had become in British Columbia. And I found that few others were any better informed. It was for this reason that I made the adoption of a major information effort the first of my recommendations. Hopefully, if people are informed, they will demand that remedial action be taken.

Thank you again for your editorial — Hugh Keenleyside, 3470 Mayfair Drive.

Chairs Ahoy

The board of governors of Arbutus Crafts Association wish to thank everyone who attended or supported in any way Chairs Ahoy, the wheel-a-thon held June 15. While this project is designed as a fund raising event, the opportunity for the disabled themselves to participate gives a great deal of pleasure to them. A great many disabled people who attend the sheltered workshop operated by Arbutus Crafts eagerly anticipate the next Chairs Ahoy.

An annual event at Arbutus Crafts is a picnic which will be held at the Centre on Wednesday, June 25. This year the picnic will be an occasion to celebrate the successful wheel-a-thon which raised $6,000.

Visitors are always welcome to visit the workshop at 4353 West Saanich Road where they may see and purchase the high-quality handcrafted products made by the disabled — Derek A. Dashwood, President, Board of Governors.

Immigration Blamed

Perhaps neither Finance Minister John Turner nor your paper should blame labor too severely for our current rate of inflation. The federal government must itself assume much of the blame. Canadians have spent many years of hard work building their streets, hospitals, institutes of learning, developing power and waterworks, industry and agriculture etc.

Since Trudeau has taken office, he has simply said to anyone in the world who can muster the price of a ticket to Canada, if they want to come to Canada and use these facilities they are welcome. Now who is such a fool, who has neither provided himself with a home, school, medical services, food, clothing or means of transportation, that he will decline if he is not asked to pay for them in the first place?

And, if he can protest "discrimination," forcing Canadians to "move over" for him if they protest? This includes those who declare themselves financially well off enough not to be a burden on Canadians for they are saying if you let me use your child's desk, your hospital bed (if I pay your government $60 a year) etc.

In the meantime they can outbid us for our homes and property because they did not have to pay for the development of these services.

Canada's early immigrants simply had to do without these things or build them for themselves. Let's face it, the pressure of immigration on our major urban centres has been severe since Trudeau has taken office. And, Canadians have thereby been asked to accept a lower standard of living (the ones most affected are those who contributed the most to our development, the retired citizens and those approaching retirement) or go abroad to borrow money in an attempt to maintain their standard of living — which is inflationary.

In the meantime our provincial and civic leaders have been placed in a position whereby the electorate damns them if they do, and damns them if they don't. Canadians simply cannot be expected to pay for other nations to reproduce and even borrow money abroad to permit us to give what we do not have. They must assume the responsibility and consequences for their own actions — Cadboro Bay Conservationist.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of June 26, 1915

LONDON — On two occasions recently, coroners' juries have returned verdicts of murder against Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany. The first was delivered at Queenstown, Ireland, in respect of a person drowned in the sinking of the Lusitania by a German submarine, and the second at Ramsgate regarding a person who was killed in a zeppelin raid. A writer in the Liverpool Post considers these verdicts more than just academic, just empty words. "It would be the duty of the police authorities to bring the kaiser before a criminal tribunal to be tried for the alleged murders should he ever come within the jurisdiction of the British courts."

Feared and Despised, Amin Will Speak for Africa

By BERNARD D. NOSSITER

AMIN
. . . an embarrassment

LONDON — The latest caper of Idi Amin, threatening to kill two Britons for trivial offences, has further increased the distaste of his fellow African leaders for Uganda's president.

This assessment comes from specialists in Africa affairs here who say Amin's neighbors are especially sensitive to his antics now. This is because the ex-sergeant in the King's African Rifles is due to become the continent's official spokesman next month.

On July 18, the Organization of African Unity is due to hold its annual summit meeting in Amin's capital, Kampala. The summit customarily elects its host as chairman for the next year so Amin is due to become chief of OAU's tribe.

Despite the low esteem in which he is held, the experts here agree that there will be no serious move to shift the meeting elsewhere or deprive Amin of his chairmanship.

At most, the specialists say, a few leaders like Julius Nyerere of Tanzania or Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia may stay away and send their premiers or foreign ministers instead. This forecast would hold even if Amin had executed his British victims. In fact, he has ordered his tribunal to free Stanley Smolen, the businessman accused of hoarding canned food, and there are still hopes that he will save Denis Hills, the 61-year-old scholar "convicted" of treason for writing privately that Amin was "a village tyrant."

Amin is an embarrassment to African leaders and injures the image of responsible government they would like to present to the world. But his neighbors are reluctant to move against him, the experts say, for several reasons.

The OAU charter rests on the principle of non-interference in the internal affairs of member states. This sound rule is supported by the self-interest of the members, who can appeal to it when their regimes are threatened.

Although Amin is a peculiarly barbarous and capricious chief, few of his neighbors have spotless hands. Most run one-party dictatorships where judicial murder is not unknown, corruption is endemic and power was obtained through force.

Finally, some understandable reverse racism makes the fate of Smolen and Hills far more important north than south of the Mediterranean. The specialists observe that it is hard for African states to get worked up over the fate of two whites in Uganda when, in their eyes, tens of thousands of blacks are brutally mistreated each day in South Africa.

Unlike the conventional judgment in Europe, African leaders do not regard Amin as a madman. They are said to see him as a shrewd if crude and unlettered tyrant.

Some of their dislike, it is said, flows from a kind of snobbism. Most African leaders are either politician-intellectuals like Jomo Kenyatta of Kenya or Habib Bourgiba of Tunisia or professional officers like Gen. Yakubu Gowon of Nigeria. In this league, Amin stands out as a very unpolished, rough-hewn stone.

There is even said to be a sneaking admiration for Amin's swift and rough treatment of the Asians who owned Ugandan business firms. The president booted them out with little notice in 1972, stripping them down to their watches. Other African states, notably Kenya, also dislike the commerce in the hands of Indians and Pakistanis and would like to dispossess them, too.

Nevertheless, Britain has enjoyed one card in its dealings with Amin — an invasion force was ruled out as militarily unworkable and a menace to the 700 other Britons still in Uganda — and this card can be played by several ex-colonial powers. For all their pride in independence, most African leaders went to school either in Britain or France and still seek the good opinion of their former rulers and teachers.

In French-speaking Africa, President Albert Bernard Bongo of Gabon, for example, enjoys the honors and pleasures that are heaped on him during his frequent visits to Paris. In Kampala, Amin, the experts note, has made it painfully clear that he wants to be treated as a person of substance by the British.

This is why he has insisted that Queen Elizabeth and her chief ministers write him signed letters begging clemency for Hills. This is why London shrewdly sent Amin's former commander, Lt. Gen. Sir Chandos Blair, in full dress uniform with the letter from the Queen.

The specialists here speculate how long Amin can stay in power, but they do not come up with any clear answer. They do rule out an invasion by his neighbors. Milton Obote, the president Amin ousted in a coup, three years ago tried an assault from Tanzania. It was not only crushed: Nyerere and Tanzania were also humiliated.

Eventually, it is assumed, Amin will be assassinated by someone whose family he has butchered, or ambitious officers in his army will overthrow him in a coup. Meanwhile, Africa will be represented for a year by a man who is feared everywhere in his own country and despised by his neighbors abroad.

'Without Bees You Wouldn't Have Anything'

By KENNETH TURAN

Herbert D. Smith, age 71, winces and rubs his eyes with large, heavy hands. His sombre, lined face looks pained. When he speaks it is slowly and with an effort, his voice rising and falling in ponderous cadeneces as he tries to get across the importance of his subject. His subject is bees.

"Number one," he says, "they don't like winter. They know by nature an unknown future is coming, a long unseen winter, and they struggle in their way to prepare for it from one end of the year to the other.

"Winter to them is a terrible, terrible long thing, an unknown journey into they don't know what. For six or seven months, they never go out of the hive, they can't crap, they can't get food, it's black, it's dark, it's cold, they can't see the future. Like God says about the return of Christ, they must believe that spring will return for a second time."

Herbert Smith can go on like that indefinitely, expounding on the mysteries of the humble bee. A beekeeper for "close on to 60 years," he is the founder and namesake of Smith's Honey of Accokeek, Mo.

He is also a man very much given to the meditative turn of phrase, a sombre-voiced patriarch of the apiary. "Beekeepers as a class are very philosophical, they think in terms of total nature," he says slowly. "It's a fascinating subject, a continuous type of study. You won't learn it all, even in a lifetime."

While the beginnings of beekeeping are irretrievably mired in history, it is known that the Egyptians were well-acquainted with the art 4,000 years ago, that Aristotle knew lots about it, that Virgil kept bees and was apparently very fond of them, and that the first reference to beekeeping in America was in the Virginia colonies in 1621.

Beekeeping's finest hour, however, came in 1851 when the Rev. L. L. Langstroth, former pastor of the Second Congregational Church of Greenfield, Mass., did some tinkering in his backyard and ended up discovering the bee space.

Up to Langstroth's time, the main way to get honey out of the hive was to destroy the hive and kill all the bees, usually by pouring on copious quantities of sulphuric acid, a messy process. What Langstroth discovered was that if a space of approximately 5-16th of an inch were left between the wax combs the bees store their honey in, the bees would respect that space and not fill it up as they would any larger or smaller space.

Proceeding from this tenet it was a simple matter to place combs in wooden frames 5-16ths of an inch apart and simply remove them when filled up.

Still, says Herbert Smith, "every time you go into a beehive it's an operation. It's like theft, you do it quick, get in and get out, before someone recognizes you and what you're doing."

And never, says Smith, enter a beehive at night. "They crawl at night," he says ominously. "In your eyes, in your ears, in your nose, everywhere. They'll tear you apart at night, they'll sting the living guts out of you."

Herbert Smith's fascination with the bee began as a small child. A friend of his father's showed up with ten tons of honey and "stories he gave me about the life of the bee, the life of the beekeeper," stories that so captivated him that after a brief stint as a steelworker he took beekeeping for his life's work. "I couldn't stand the swearing, the rough crude life in the steel mill," he says. "The men never seemed to have this glimpse of total life, of total nature, that beekeeping has given me."

Smith speaks only in tones of veneration when discussing the bee, pointing out for instance that it is "the only insect God ever made that is able to continuously pollinate all the things that you eat. You just wouldn't have anything if you didn't have these bees."

He marvels also at the complex, hierarchical relationships that exist within the hive, a division of labor as precise as it is all-emcompassing.

At the top of the heap is the queen, who exists only to produce eggs: up to 3,500 per day, a million and a quarter eggs in a lifetime. Important enough to be always surrounded by worker bees who lick and groom and feed her, the queen also produces secretions which are responsible for the maintenance of social order in the hive and which also control the temperament of the bees inside.

"You can breed queens," says Smith slyly, "that show the tendency of being, you might call it, civilized. It all depends on that little woman."

Least important of all are the males, drably known as drones. Once they've fertilized the queen, no one cares about them anymore. When food becomes scarce, the worker bees prevent them from eating, and when they become weak enough, the workers carry them out of the hive and leave them to die.

"They won't let him back in the hive," says Smith. "They tell the guards, 'Don't let that big bastard back in the hive, he's a sponger, we don't need him.' "

It is the workers, the unfertilized female bees, who call all the shots in the hive. "The worker bee," says Smith in that hushed, Biblical tone, "is a virgin. It is free, like Catholic nuns, to concentrate on a full life of service, of gathering nectar and making honey. It works till it dies, it only lives to work."

A worker's energy is like that of a storage battery — once it is used up, it can't be replaced. Usually a worker will live for six weeks; if it works day and night at a ferocious pace it may die in a week.

And it is the workers who, by controlling the amount of food she receives, control the amount of eggs the queen bee produces.

In peak honey-making seasons, the population of one hive may explode to 60,000 bees, or even more, and it is only by their joint efforts that things get done.

"No bee is a God unto himself," explains Smith. "They are dependent each upon the other. No bee makes a pound of honey, one bee's lifetime represents only about a teaspoon's worth. A pound of honey equals 50,000 miles of flying time, or two trips around the world. You need an entire hive to do that."

"In the spring," he says, "they're so happy to see life begin anew you could almost kick 'em and not be stung at all. As the season progresses, bees accumulate wealth and they get protective, they feel everyone is out to get it. It's the difference between being rich and being poor, and it's in that period you get your stinging.

But no matter. For small quibbles aside, Herbert D. Smith cannot envision a more satisfying life than the one he chose. "I love this beekeeping," he says, almost unable to believe his good fortune. "I particularly like the beauty, the natural beauty, I suppose, and the harmony of working with nature. I feel so attuned to life and living, I feel like I've got close in with the old maker upstairs, almost like a handle on God Himself, and I like that."

The Only Way to Keep Russians in Check

By DOUGLAS FISHER

OTTAWA — About six weeks ago I got a phone call from an officer of the RCMP. It was my first such call in 17 years in Ottawa.

I had made several trips of some scope to Russia. I have dealt on many occasions with officials of the Russian Embassy in Ottawa. I have known in ordinary, daily acquaintanceship most of the journalists representing U.S.S.R. publications who have been based in the parliamentary press gallery.

All round, through these years I heard of other Canadians who were quizzed or briefed regarding such Russian contacts by the Security and Intelligence officers of the RCMP. Since I had not been approached I had to come to think that I was seen as either too insensitive or stupid to have gleaned anything worthwhile to our S and I men or that I'd been "rated" by the RCMP as more trouble than I'd be worth.

The phone call was to arrange an appointment. Nothing was tipped about subject matter. I was a bit surprised, therefore, when two young men in civilian dress came into my office, introduced themselves, showed me their identity cards, and said they wanted to ask me about contacts I had had with a Russian journalist, one Konstantin Geivandov.

In the past fortnight, Geivandov's name has been in the news along with that of a CBC producer (for As It Happens) Mark Starowicz. A Tory MP, Tom Cossitt, has raised the issue of the Geivandov-Starowicz relationship in the House of Commons.

Laurent Picard, the president of the CBC, has accused Cossitt of McCarthyism. He has expressed the corporation's confidence in Starowicz and its belief that there was nothing worth public revelation or essentially wrong in whatever it was that Starowicz did in association with Geivandov. The ubiquitous Morton Shulman has given the press various explanations of the case. It is clearly of significance to Cold War buffs across the country.

The two policemen were crisp and pleasant. They have a sense of humor. They explained that Geivandov had been refused re-entry to Canada by the government; that my name had been among others on a list of Canadians whom Geivandov had either contacted or had planned to contact.

★ ★ ★

Geivandov is a big, swarthy, bear of a man with a heavy accent, a boisterous manner, a plain vocabulary — all in all, a "roughneck", an unsubtle, shambling giant. He and I have spent some hours in countless chats over some years. He was always the initiator and he was "hipped" on one topic; so much so that latterly I began to duck him. He harped on the same few themes. He never seemed to change or adjust his few opinons.

★ ★ ★

His obsession was not politics nor government nor socialism nor the Waffle nor defence nor Canadian-American relations. It was hockey. He has two simple beliefs: The Russians are the best hockey players in the world and Canadian hockey players are the dirtiest, meanest and most irresponsible.

Wouldn't I admit the superiority of the Russians? How could I live with myself as a Canadian, a "gangster," like Bobby Clarke (Philadelphia Flyers) playing for Canada would maim and put out of action with his stick a wonderful sportsman and supreme hockey player like Valerie Khármalov? Why were Canadians so brutal on the ice? Why didn't we produce clean-cut boys like Yakushev or high-minded strategist like Tarasov?

The only subjects I ever levered Geivandov into, aside from hockey, and then only briefly, were food and drink. He's a trencherman, a prodigious eater. Once he gave me the name and address of a Georgian restaurant in Moscow that proved to be this gourmet's delight.

I've always felt pretty safe about the Communist menace of subversion to Canada, simply through faith in Canadian phlegm and caution. My massive confidence in our solidarity within the liberal, democratic world was reinforced, I told the Mounties, if Konstantin were an "agent." Compared to him, Howard K. Hunt or Elie Krogh (of Watergate's bumbling schemes) are sophisticates and Machiavellian. If he were an espionage agent, then we might send Gene Whelan as an ambassador to the Vatican.

That was about it with the Mounties, aside from teasing about the nature of counter-espionage work if Geivandov is an example of their challenge.

Shortly after, the rumors began to run about a mysterious CBC employee who had given some profiles of political and press figures to Geivandov which had led to his bar from Canada.

Then I heard it was Starowicz, and later his name surfaced in the press.

I haven't a clue as to what the nexus between the two men was. But considering the two names together, as I know each of them, is like linking in bonds pairs such as Morton Shulman and Ed Harvot or Pierre Trudeau and Michel Chartrand or Larry Zolf and Lloyd Robertson.

There is one thing I want to happen for the benefit of the Geivandovs of the U.S.S.R. It is not to know what they are or have been up to in Canada. It's to see a capable, well-coached and well-behaved team of Canadian hockey players beat the Russians soundly through excellent play under fair rules and fair officiating. That'll shut him up for awhile.

Serenity After the Storm

By HENRY MITCHELL

It is always interesting to see what is left after storms, and the alert gardener soon learns to become attentive.

Who can doubt that the chief origin of education, science, art and progress in general was nothing more than the ancient habit of the gardener who invariably, after snow or hail or torrent, gazed about to see that although the beans were lost, the radishes bolted, the roses ruined, nevertheless the tomatoes did not look too bad?

The gardener, immemorially, then transferred his attention to the tomatoes and resolved, the following year, to concentrate on them. Needless to say, the next year he discovered all he had "learned" about the tomatoes and beans proved fallible and (once he concentrated on tomatoes) the beans nearby did extremely well.

But there is no tragedy in that. As the centuries slid by, the gardener learned a vast amount of things that are chancy, and came at last to those pinnacles of wisdom, where we gardeners of today now stand, from which he can see that much depends on the weather.

He also knows, with every atom of the blood, that nothing is foolproof, and that only fools think so. But he, for his part, has observed that when the roses are smashed by weather at the height of their bloom, he suddenly values, maybe for the first time, the unspoiled rue.

Although the gardener has long been marveled at, in all centuries among all peoples, as the ultimate example of fortitude and wisdom, still I think we would all agree it is nature, with her terrible whims of storm or drought, that has forced the gardener to heights unknown to those who never entrusted anything (except the family cat) to the iffy mercies of the open air.

If the gardener is serene, and it is a quality much remarked on when we behold a gardener, it is only because serenity, like all those other virtues, is forced on him by nature. The young gardener rages. Let him rage. The roses will not reshape or reassemble their high conglobulations to suit his anger at their ruin. He may mutter. Ha. Behold him roaring about. The roses continue ruined.

When he wearies of frustration, he turns to something new. This is the chief lesson of the poet Milton, we would all agree, and this is the main source of the nursery and seed industry's traditional fascination with "novelties."

Until the gardener invests too much, in the way of dreams, in flowers susceptible to every woe or waste, he cannot know that disappointment is a natural state and if he has an aptitude for pleasure (most gardeners do, else they drop gardening) he learns not to fall apart every time the flowers do. He alters his way of regarding roses, since he cannot alter weather.

PUBLIC NOTICE

COMMISSION OF INQUIRY ON PROPERTY ASSESSMENT AND TAXATION

(Public Inquiries Act, R.S.B.C. 1960, Chapter 315)

TAKE NOTICE that pursuant to the British Columbia Public Inquiries Act that His Honour The Lieutenant-Governor in Council has been pleased to appoint as Commissioners the following persons, namely:

Mr. Robert McMath, Richmond, Chairman
Mr. Ross G. Marks, 100 Mile House, Vice Chairman
Dr. Robert M. Clark, Vancouver
Dr. Mason Gaffney, Victoria
Dr. Stanley W. Hamilton, Vancouver
Mrs. Alice MacKenzie, Vancouver
Mr. Bruno Meyer, Prince George
Mr. Syd Thompson, Vancouver

The Commissioners shall inquire into the revenue sources of local and regional governments and boards in relation to their responsibilities. In so doing the Commissioners shall give particular consideration to the property tax in organized and unorganized territory. They shall inquire into the following and any other related topics they deem advisable:

1. The desirable characteristics of a system of raising local and regional revenues.
2. Property tax legislation in British Columbia and elsewhere in North America.
3. Comparison of the level of property taxation in British Columbia with the level of such taxation in other provinces.
4. The distribution of the property tax load among categories of property in urban and rural municipalities, and in unorganized territory.
5. The distribution of the property tax load in relation to income and wealth.
6. The distribution of the benefits of local and regional expenditures among income groups and among other categories of taxpayers.
7. Consequences of assessing and taxing property at actual value.
8. Property tax exemptions.
9. Property taxes and/or grants in lieu of taxes for Crown corporations, the Government of Canada, and the Government of British Columbia.
10. Site value taxation.
11. Taxation of machinery.
12. The municipal business tax.
13. Alternative sources of locally levied municipal revenues, including user charges.
14. Administration of property tax assessment and collection.
15. Appeals procedures and the possible role of an ombudsman.
16. The adequacy of local taxation in meeting local expenditures.
17. Government revenue sharing and grants for education and for municipal and regional purposes.

The Commissioners shall make recommendations, including proposals for legislative changes to improve the equity and efficiency of local taxation and grants to municipalities, regional districts and school districts. They are to report their findings and recommendations to the Lieutenant-Governor in Council in accordance with the Act.

AND FURTHER TAKE NOTICE that PUBLIC HEARINGS by the Commission of Inquiry on Property Assessment and Taxation will be held at central locations throughout the Province, at times and dates to be announced. These Public Hearings will commence in the fall and will continue through the winter months, as necessary, to receive briefs. An inaugural meeting is to be held

10:00 a.m. Friday, July 4, 1975,
Holiday Inn,
Vancouver, B.C.

The purpose of this meeting will be to outline plans for future sittings and rules of procedure.

AND FURTHER TAKE NOTICE that those intending to make submissions to the Commission at its fall and winter Public Hearings are required to:

(a) Write immediately to inform the Executive Secretary at the address below and inform him of such intention and thereafter

(b) Prepare a BRIEF to be forwarded to the Executive Secretary prior to their appearance before the Commission.

The Executive Secretary will contact the parties concerned and certain other selected organizations to arrange for their appearance at a suitable time and place.

Further notices with respect to public meetings of the Commission to hear submissions will be issued in due course.

Something for The Young and Old

"Summer shine" . . . a "fantastic summer" . . . summer fun days." all describe programs for young and old offered during the next two months by three groups in the Capital Region

These events are all in addition to the regular parks program in the four core municipalities.

Registrations for the James Bay summershine '75 closed Wednesday but if a course has room, children can register up to the day the event starts.

The same applies in Oak Bay and in Saanich. For Oak Bay's fun days registrations are open until Friday 9 p.m. at the Henderson Park Pavilion.

In Saanich children and adults may register at the Cedar Hill Community Centre to Friday and then next week if the courses are not full.

Programs offered by each of the groups include:

JAMES BAY

Morning courses for children between 8 and 13 offering carpentry, photography and play-acting; story time theatre with children acting out the story; discovering dance and exploring movement; playground activities; crafts; day camps to include swimming, hiking and learning wilderness skills; sports and recreation; stories in the park; morning pottery; and leadership training.

Evening courses include twilight crafts; conversational French; teen and adult basketball; gymnastics; kids softball; cooking; volleyball; evening pottery; teen and adult volleyball; badminton and softball.

In co-operation with the provincial government employees fitness program there will be several fitness sessions at noon and at 5 in the afternoon.

Pamphlets are available at the school.

SAANICH

The programs will be held at the Cedar Hill Community Centre and at Franks Hobbs school on Haro Street.

The events include gymnastics for tiny tots (two sessions); outdoor-indoor recreational fitness; lunch time shape up; fitness; a keep in shape program for women and housewives; family fit and fun; yoga; adult and teens recreational gymn; Sunday bike tours; badminton clinic; creative drama for children; variety show; folk dancing for all ages; family folkfest and picnic; bike care courses for all ages; outdoor naturcraft hikes; French in song and games; crafts for the young! macrame and beadwork; batik; pottery workshops; painting and sketching and camera knowhow.

Pamphlets available at the community centre or by calling 595-7121.

OAK BAY

Playground activities for the older children; a day camp at Elk Lake featuring fishing, nature lore and hiking for those 9 to 14; an extensive hiking program which runs from July 7 to Aug. 15 with trips to many areas in the southern section of the Island with a final trip to Salt Spring; tennis instruction at both Henderson and Carnarvon parks with a wind-up tournament; and special events such as summer basketball school; Scripture Union holiday-beach camp at Willows from Aug. 16 to 31; Victoria Symphony concert and a soccer clinic.

For more information and pamphelts, call the recreation office at Henderson Park, 592-7333.

SUMMER PROGRAMS SET FOR MOST AREA PARKS

Eight Victoria parks will operate summer programs for children 5-12 — half those parks scheduling morning programs and half afternoon ones.

Registration will take place opening day July 2 with events running to August 8.

Outings, organized games and craft lessons will be complemented with specialties including a kite festival, pet show and swim frolic under the direction of nine trained workers.

Saanich's summer program will go all day in 16 parks with sports, crafts and more special events from penny carnivals to bike rodeos. July 7 is the starting date for those.

The Greater Victoria Public Library bookmobile will be visiting six Saanich playgrounds, and transportation will be supplied to take children to those spots.

Major games like softball and other activities will be operated by 23 workers.

For Esquimalt children, Kinsmen Gorge Park will be the location for organized games, sports and hobbies. The program will go each day from 12:30 to 4 p.m. beginning July 2.

NIP Proposals Take Shape With Vic West Park Plans

NIP will soon become a reality in Vic West.

After months of talking, probing and debate, Ald. Murray Glazier has finally come up with some concrete proposals for Vic West and a tentative plan concerning the new Horizons Society in James Bay.

In James Bay Glazier has proposed that a site in the southeasterly corner of the park on Menzies, a site described by the alderman as "superior" in its location to the Cathedral School, where the New Horizons group hoped to locate.

Glazier is the alderman in charge of the Neighborhood Improvement Program funds of $2 million split between Vic West and James Bay.

Concerning Vic West work is expected to start soon on a new clubhouse at the lawn bowling greens as well as at three parks in the area — Vic west, Banfield and Barnard.

In Vic West construction will include tennis courts and other items; for Banfield, a float, tennis court, picnic facilities, benches to make it into a "family" facility; and at Barnard, play equipment, landscaping and picnic benches.

As well Arthur Slipper, a Vancouver consultant, has been hired to help the area NIP committees come up with pre-design proposals for a community centre — proposals that will be acceptable to all parties, the federal, provincial and civic authorities.

In Vic West, a study will be ready before the middle of July in the possible purchase and use of Muirhead House and the types of activities it could be used for. This would not replace the plan to build a community centre in Vic West but, if purchased, would compliment a centre.

Concerning the community centres, which both James Bay and Vic West are suggesting, it is expected the pre-design proposals will be in city council hands within three months.

capital scene

A light supper will be served at a meeting of the Zonta Club of Victoria today at 6 p.m., at the residence of Mrs. Phoebe Noble, 10818 Madrona Drive.

Old Age Pensioners No. 1 will meet Friday, July 4 at 1 p.m. at 1600 Government St.

Young Voyageur Special Unit 919 will operate a flea market at the Victoria Curling Club, 1952 Quadra Street, Sunday, June 29.

Clothes, records, jewelry, books and toys will be sold. The group includes handicapped and non-handicapped teenagers participating in an exchange program with a similar group in Calgary. The money raised from the sale will be used to host the Calgary group during a 10-day visit to Victoria.

WOMAN KILLED

MEXICO CITY (AFP) — A 65-year-old Canadian woman, Agnes Besner, was attacked and killed Wednesday in her home at Ajijic, about 40 miles from Guadalajara, Mexican police said. They said Mrs. Besner's family lives in Vancouver.

They added that they believe the woman had been tortured by her attackers because there were wounds and bruises on her body. Ajijic is an Indian village on the shore of Lake Chapala, about 250 miles east of here.

One luxury you can afford. The Mazda Rotary RX-4.

Before you buy your next car, you should seriously consider the merits of our luxury-sized import—the 1975 Mazda Rotary RX-4.†

The performance is amazing. As Car & Driver puts it, "You simply can't buy such a combination of performance and finely cultivated manners anywhere else."

The engine warranty is unsurpassed. Mazda warrants the rotary engine for 50,000 miles or 3 years.* only one other luxury import has a comparable engine warranty: Rolls Royce.

The features are outstanding. The seats come in rich vinyl or plush velour. Standard are fat radial tires, power front disc brakes, reclining front bucket seats, 4-speed transmission, centre console, rich carpeting, 3-speed wipers, rear window defroster and, on the hardtop, an aircraft-type overhead console that tells you if your fuel level has dropped below 2.6 gallons; warning lights that tell you if your door's not closed properly and your seat belts are undone and a high intensity map-reading light. In fact, so much is standard that the RX-4 option list consists of a radio and automatic transmission.

The choice is yours. You can buy the RX-4 as a hardtop, sedan or wagon. The sedan has a manufacturer's suggested retail price of $5,545.* Car & Driver's 1975 Buyer's Guide summed up the Mazda Rotary RX-4 in these words: "We can only pity the competition."

The Mazda Rotary RX-4.

†Licence NSU/Wankel.
*Mazda warrants the basic rotary engine block and internal parts to be free of defects with normal use and prescribed maintenance, for three years or 50,000 miles, whichever occurs first. Mazda warrants the rest of the car for one year or 12,000 miles whichever occurs first. All of the terms of this warranty are clearly defined in the Mazda warranty booklet.
Manufacturer's suggested retail price for the 4-door sedan p.o.e. Halifax, Montreal, Toronto, Vancouver, not including preparation charges, licence, gas, provincial sales tax or local freight where applicable.

Many dealers have 1974 RX-4's available for hundreds of dollars less.

SHORT SOLUTION FOR HOT HOUSE

OTTAWA (FP) — A female MP demanded equality in the Commons Wednesday for her male colleagues who are forced to wear ties and long trousers.

Simma Holt (L—Vancouver-Kingsway) received enthusiastic applause from all sides when she proposed as a matter "of urgent and pressing necessity" that men in the House be freed of the obligation to wear "tight ties and collars" and be allowed to wear Bermuda shorts during Ottawa's "tropical" summer temperatures.

Despite the applause of MPs from all sides, Speaker James Jerome ignored the motion.

Later in the day Patrick Nowlan (PC—Annapolis Valley) observed that Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau had loosened his tie and suggested this was a symptom of the present "sloppy government."

Bill Backs Jury Decisions

OTTAWA (CP) — A bill that would prevent appeal courts from reversing jury decisions, as happened in the case of abortionist Henry Morgentaler, was introduced in the Commons Wednesday by former prime minister John Diefenbaker.

The proposed Criminal Code amendment virtually duplicates a bill introduced a week earlier by Stuart Leggatt (NDP — New Westminster).

Justice Minister Otto Lang has said he is "not disposed" to support that bill.

Diefenbaker's proposal basically would limit appeal courts to ordering a new trial if they disagree with a jury verdict. However, where the verdict comes from a magistrate or judge without a jury, it would allow the appeal courts to impose a guilty verdict if there has been an "error of law."

This was the basis on which the Supreme Court of Canada upheld an 18-month sentence imposed on Dr. Morgentaler by the Quebec Court of Appeal, which overturned the jury acquittal on the original charge.

The Quebec appeal court said the defence used at the trial was incorrect. This was supported by the high court on grounds the law had been misinterpreted originally.

Diefenbaker (PC — Prince Albert) said if his bill is not approved by Parliament, "the jury system will be emasculated, if not destroyed."

Commons approval is unlikely, however, because the bill comes from a private member. Such bills rarely get government support. Lang's reaction to the Leggatt bill left little doubt the government will not support the Diefenbaker proposal.

The opposition has said repeatedly that the Supreme Court ruling has jeopardized the jury system. This view has the support of the Ontario Criminal Lawyers' Association, which says the high court has destroyed a fundamental principle of democracy.

STATISTICS CANADA CUTS 90 EMPLOYEES

OTTAWA (CP) — Statistics Canada has cut about 90 term and casual employees from its staff in part because of financial restrictions, a senior official said Wednesday.

Guy Labossiere, director-general of the bureau's administrative branch, said the staff cuts are not layoffs because the majority of the employees were working at projects that had been completed.

There was no direct connection with Monday's federal budget ordering some restraint in government spending, he said.

PCs Pick Up Manitoba Seats

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba Progressive Conservatives picked up legislature seats in two close byelections Wednesday and knocked off Charles Huband, recently-elected Liberal leader, in the process.

New Democratic Party candidates finished third in both contests, held in the Winnipeg riding of Crescentwood and Wolseley.

Conservative Warren Steen, a 34-year-old city councillor and life insurance underwriter, won in Cresentwood and turned back Huband's first bid for a seat in the house since his election as Liberal leader four months ago.

New Democrat Harvey Patterson, who won the seat in the 1973 general election only to lose it later in the courts, finished more than 600 votes behind Huband.

In Wolseley, city councillor Bob Wilson, a 40-year-old credit consultant, outdistanced Liberal D'Arcy McCaffrey and the NDP's Murdoch MacKay. Independent Joe Smith ran a distant fourth.

Standings in the 57-seat legislature now will be 31 New Democrats, 23 Conservatives and three Liberals.

The victories are an important shot in the arm for the Conservatives, who hope to convince voters in the next general election they are the only realistic alternative to the province's NDP government.

They also could help party leader Sidney Spivak in his struggle to overcome dissension in the ranks of his caucus and stave off a strong challenge to his leadership at the party's next convention in December.

TABLOID OFFERED BACKING

MONTREAL (CP) — Striking employees of The Star were offered "an unlimited amount of money" Wednesday to turn their weekly tabloid The Extra into a daily publication.

The strike by 450 editorial, delivery, and circulation employees, members of Local 111, the Newspaper Guild, is in its fourth week.

Meanwhile, provincial conciliator Yvon Blais was expected to meet with union and management at negotiations today.

The offer was made by newspaper publisher Pierre Peladeau before the Wednesday appearance of The Extra's fastselling, 50,000-copy debut in Montreal.

Peladeau publishes Journal de Montreal and a group of French-language periodicals as president of Quebecor Inc.

Richard Levesque, co-ordinator of the weekly, 10-cent tabloid, said the offer will likely be rejected.

"We aren't interested in cutting our own throats," he said. "If we went daily, we would just be setting up competition for ourselves when we go back to work at The Star."

Talks have continued throughout the walkout but little progress was reported in the key areas of wages and pension benefits.

"Talks have stalled," W. A. Goodson, president of The Star, said Wednesday. "Both sides felt it was right for the return of the conciliator."

Management's latest wage offer was reported to be 17 per cent over an 18-month period. The union was seeking 20 per cent in a one-year package.

The Loud Lamentations of Sooke . . .

And it came to pass that the tribe of Sooke did again lament the passing of the pass . . .

In biblical terms, that was the theme of a meeting at Sooke elementary school Wednesday night between Sooke residents and provincial transit bureau officials.

Despite repeated assertions by transit director Victor Parker that the whole purpose of the meeting was to discuss planned improvements in the government's new bus service to Sooke, Colwood, Langford and Metchosin, the 25 residents kept returning to the question of the cancelled monthly bus pass.

Several people pointed out that the elimination of the passes, which provided substantial discounts on regular fares, was the only change made when the government took over operation of the routes formerly serviced by South West Coach Lines Ltd.

Parker replied that the pass system had not been a part of South West's fare structure, but a concession offered by the private operator to attract business.

He said some fare discount and transfer system would come into operation later, as part of a region-wide structure, but declined to say when. Some changes might take up to 18 months to implement, he indicated.

Ken McQueen, spokesman for P.A.S.S. (Planned Action Supporting Sooke) handed in 40 questionnaires showing some of the service improvements Sooke residents would like to see.

An earlier weekday arrival in Victoria — at 8 a.m. instead of around 8:20 a.m. currently — was one popular request, and several people said they would like a late-night return bus from the city on Friday or Saturday night.

'Didn't Make Sense'

B.C. Railways executive vice-president Mac Norris said today the decision to follow through with the construction of the railway's Dease Lake extension was a political one.

Norris told the legislature's standing public accounts committee today the decision "from a straight railway point of view wouldn't make sense."

Latest cost estimate of the extension which is designed to run from Fort St. James to Dease Lake is $227 million, far above original estimate which was slightly under $100 million.

Norris made the statements in response to questioning from Opposition Leader Bill Bennett who suggested that a lack of investment in that sector of the province could make the extension uneconomic.

Norris, however, refuted the suggestion and said that investment forecasts for the area shows the extension could be supported.

Asked if he recommended the extension be discontinued to the railway's board of directors, Norris said :"That recommendation was made."

The vice-president, when asked by reporters following the meeting to elaborate, however, softened his original statement and said he wasn't suggesting to the province that construction of the extension stop, "but we examined the whole thing with the provincial government."

Varied Programs Offered At Cedar Hill Centre

It's one of the municipality's August programs that will teach a skill while it lets participants enjoy summer.

Registration began Tuesday for this and other programs including fitness, badminton, naturecraft, bike care, folk dancing, sketching and instamatic camera know-how.

Registration will be from 10 to noon and 4 to 7 p.m. until Friday.

Public Health Duties Sometimes Get Tangled

Although federal, provincial and regional governments are all involved in public health, it isn't always clear who's in charge of what.

So the Capital Regional Board passed four resolutions Wednesday, on the recommendation of its regional health officer, which dealt with milk shakes, mobile home parks, wells and floating homes.

The resolutions will go before a meeting of the Associated Boards of Health, explained Dr. Allen Arneil, where if approved they will eventually land on the desk of Health Minister Dennis Cocke.

The first resolution noted that routine testing of milk shakes, ice cream and similar milk products appears to fall under one federal and two provincal departments and there is doubt who has jurisdiction at the retail level.

There is also doubt over authority for regular testing and there appears to be insufficient laboratory facilities and staff for surveillance on a significant scale.

The resolution calls on Cocks to clearly establish jurisdiction at the retail level and if it is to be a responsibility of the local health department, to ensure adequate facilities and staff are available.

Health authorities now deal with water and sewage at mobile home parks and the resolution on this subject calls for Cocke to have a single authority, the one which deals with other buildings within the area, deal with regulations governing such parks.

Another resolution points out that health departments have control over siting and installation of private sewage disposal systems but little or no control over siting of wells.

It asks Cocke to give health departmens appropriate control over location of wells intended to provide drinking water.

The final resolution notes there is no clear jurisdiction over floating homes moored between high and low tide levels and these can present health hazards through sewage disposal.

It calls on the province to establish jurisdiction and regulations to control the potential health hazards.

CAMPBELL FEARS 'TRICKERY'

New tax assessment notices in electoral areas give the impression ratepayers there are paying more for hospital services, chairman Jim Campbell told the Capital Regional Board Wednesday.

He said he hoped it wasn't "political trickery" on the part of the provincial government but merely "stupidity" which has led to lumping a new levy of 1.8 mills to finance a new assessment agency in with the hospital levy.

The board approved Campbell's recommendation that he be authorized to write the minister of finance (Premier Barrett) objecting to the new practice.

Campbell was also irked by what he saw as the failure of some municipalities to honor an "understanding" on rate of pay increases for union-exempt staff following recent contract settlements with civic employees belonging to the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

The regional employers apparently agreed earlier to limit raises for senior staff between 12.4 per cent (the cost-of-living increase last year) and 17 per cent, the latter being the immediate increase won by CUPE.

After the executive committee of the regional board followed these guidlines in setting raises for senior regional staff, Campbell told the board he has learned Victoria, Saanich and Esquimalt departed from the agreement, generally granting the equivalent of 17 per cent increases.

The board agreed that its executive committee be authorized to review salary increases granted senior staff.

Rhinoceros Dies in Zoo

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — Mohinja, a great horned rhinoceros — member of an endangered species and one of the rarest animals at the Milwaukee County Zoo — has died, zoo officials said Wednesday.

The 18-year-old rhino died Tuesday night.

The rhino had been under the care of three veterinarians since it became ill during the weekend.

There are only about 600 great horned rhinos in the wild. They are native to India.

Market Higher, Moderate Trades

Falconbridge Nickel gained 1¾ to $35¾, Monenco 1¾ to $14¾, Nowsco Well 1¼ to $22 and General Motors 1⅛ to $48.

Preston Mines fell ¼ to $15¾, Roman ¼ to $16⅛, United Keno ¼ to $11⅜, Hollinger A ¼ to $27¾ and Chieftain ⅛ to $10¼.

New York

New indications from the U.S. government of an improved economic outlook helped the stock market score another moderate advance today.

At the opening bell, the commerce department reported that its index of leading economic indicators rose 2.1 per cent last month for its third gain in a row.

The index is designed to provide advance signs of developing economic trends, and its further rise was seen as additional evidence that the economy was heading into a recovery from the recession.

Brokers noted that the market at the same time appeared to be meeting some resistance from profit-taking after a 44.90-point rise in the Dow over the past five trading days.

Texaco was the NYSE's most-active stock, down ⅜ at $26¾ in trading that included a 600,000-share block at $26½. The company called an anti-trust suit filed against it and 10 other large oil companies "completely unjustified."

Other oils were mixed.

Merrill Lynch rose ⅞ to $18⅝. The company said it expected to show its best second quarter in history.

MCA jumped 4¼ to $78¼ after a 3⅞ rise Wednesday, when the company reported that its Universal Pictures subsidiary's movie "Jaws" had grossed $7.1 million in the first three days of its release.

Montreal

Prices were higher in all sectors in moderate trading today on the Montreal stock Exchange.

Volume at 1 p.m. was 379,200 shares, compared with 356,700 shares traded the same time Wednesday.

The composite index was up 1.53 to 192.74. Industrials were up 1.89 to 199.81, banks 1.21 to 267.49, utilities 0.40 to 129.35 and papers 0.04 to 109.97.

Hudson Bay oil rose 1½ to $35, Dome Petroleum 1¼ to $33¼, Pacific Petroleum ⅞ to $24, Toronto Dominion Bank ⅜ to $44½, Alcan Aluminium ⅜ to $25½, IAC ¼ to $19¾, Shell Canada ¼ to $17¼, Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce ¼ to $25¼, BP Canada ⅛ to $13⅞ and Imperial Oil A ⅛ to $29⅝, while Trans-Canada PipeLine lost ⅛ to $9⅝, Provincial Bank of Canada ¼ to $13 ¾ and MacMillan Bloedel ¼ to $21¾.

London

The Financial Tims index was off 11.0 to 302.7 in mid-session trading.

Canadian issues were fractionally higher in quiet trading.

GULF CANADA APPOINTMENTS

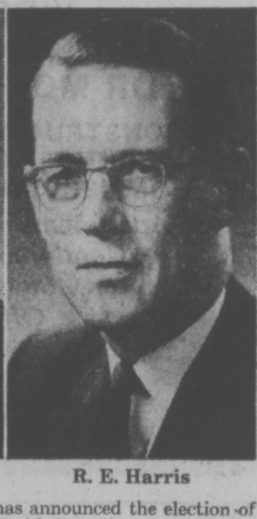
R. C. Beal



R. E. Harris

Gulf Oil Canada Limited has announced the election of R. C. Beal as a Vice-President with executive responsibility for the Company's Refining operations. He succeeds R. E. Harris who has been named Vice-President with executive responsibility for Employee Relations.

Mr. Beal returns to Gulf Canada following three years as Vice-President of Gulf Oil Company—Eastern Hemisphere and Regional Vice-President—Gulf Oil Chemicals Company. Before transferring to England in 1972, he was Vice-President of Gulf Canada's Chemicals Department.

Mr. Harris, who joined the Company in 1944, was elected a Vice-President of Gulf Canada in 1966 and assumed executive responsibility for the Refining Department in 1970.

Both appointments are effective July 1.

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybean futures advanced nearly five cents a bushel today on the Board of Trade, but wheat futures lost as much and corn was down 3½ cents.

Soybean meal came under liquidation in contrast to soybeans and lost nearly $3 a ton; while soybean oil advanced about 50 points, or ½ cent a pound. Oats were down one cent.

Gold future son domestic exchanges closed about steady to a few pennies lower in very dull trade.

The demand for soybeans and oil was influenced by trade reports of recent days that processors had crushed fewer soybeans for oil and meal in recent weeks. Meal is in abundant suppply but there was some feeling that expanded use of edible oils in the summer might cause some tightening of soy oil stocks.

After a small amount of export business had been reported a good demand developed for soybeans and oil. The nearby July oil option advanced the limit of 100 points briefly.

At the close, soybeans were 1½ to 4½ cents a bushel higher, July 5.22½; wheat 3½ to 5 lower, July 3.07; corn 2½ to 3½ lower, July 2.82½ and oats unchanged to 1 lower, July 1.51.

CDC to Buy or Form Oil Exploration Firm

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canada Development Corp. wants either to acquire or form a Canadian oil exploration company, its president said Wednesday.

H. A. Hampson said in an interview the federal government-owned corporation is discussing with several companies a partial or complete takeover.

Hampson did not name the companies, but said the Vancouver-based ODC is not interested in buying an oil company or "a chain of gas stations." A major unintegrated company was preferred.

If the CDC finds an acquisition too costly, it might form its own oil exploration company, he said.

Oil and gas exploration in Canda has declined during the past year. Company executives have blamed excessive taxation for draining funds needed for costly exporation programs that are often high-risk.

Any involvement by the CDC in exploration might be integrated into the corporation's petrochemical products operation, Polysar Ltd., Hampson said.

The CDC already owns 30 per cent of Texas gulf Inc., a natural resource company with worldwide exploration and development activities.

Hampson was doubtful the CDC's oil ventures would lead it to the Athabasca oil sands in northern Alberta. Production in that region is costly and too "high risk.".

A venture into the oil sands for the CDC would cost about $3 billion, he said. The CDC would have to increase its assets from the current $900 million before it could afford such an undertaking.

Hampson did not expect a decision to be made before fall on the question of acquisistion or formation of an oil exploration company.

The CDC's major priority now is to gain involvement in areas of secondary manufacturing, he said.

The CDC will be going public, probably in September, through a share issue.

Silver Exploration Creating Stir

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

A routine drilling program by Consolidated Columbia River Mines Ltd. is creating interest in Vancouver because it is just about the only exploration program under way in the province.

The lure for Consolidated Columbia River is silver.

Silver is trading at around $4.60 an ounce (New York), up from $1.30 in the past three years, and further increases are likely, says Consolidated Columbia president, M. M. Pardek of Vancouver.

He notes that his company is one of the few in B.C. to be optimistic enough to spend money on drilling at this time.

"While economic and governmental policies leave a lot to be desired, we believe that changes will result that will reverse conditions and policies and once again restore a healthy mining industry," he said.

CCR is not a large operation and is basically a reworking of former producing silver mine. However, some small quantities of new ore have been uncovered and further drilling is under way.

The drilling is financed through three underwritings by Canarim Investments Ltd. which brought in $160,000. Canarim bought 200.000 shares at 20 cents each, 200,000 more at 25 cents and 200,000 at 35 cents.

Consolidated Columbia has been selling briskly on the Vancouver exchange in recent weeks but the trend of the price has been downward.

Normally at this time of year there would be as many as one hundred programs like this one under way in the province. However, the recession in metal prices and high tax rates have created an air of pessimism among mining companies, which has been reflected in a very weak stock market.

Trading continues to be under the daily 3 million-shares-level which the exchange considers to be the break-even point for a healthy market.

In Wednesday's action, only 1.7 million shares traded on the Vancouver Stock Exchange with under 800,000 moving on the Vancouver Curb Exchange.

The exchange announced that three companies have been reinstated as cease-trading orders have been rescinded. Back are Cobre Explorations, Able Explorations and Canadian Barranca Corporation.

Host Ventures Ltd. has had 100,000 shares underwritten at 50 cents each by Canarim.

International Shasta Resources Ltd. has had 400,000 shares underwritten at 20 cents each by Brink, Hudson and Fisher Securities.

Midland Doherty Ltd. as agent is offering up to 150,000 shares of New Pyramid Gold Mines Inc. at a minimum price of 45 cents until Aug. 5. The company has acqlired mineral claims in the Hottah Lake area of Northwest Territories.

New Pyramid closed at 53 cents Wednesday, up 14 cents, as 236,500 shares were traded.

GBS Electrical Controls has changed its name to North American Technology Ltd. and began trading under its new name Wednesday.

West Coast Securities will offer up to 100,000 shares of Rio Plata Silver Mines Ltd. at a minimum price of 40 cents per share until Aug. 5.

Bralorne

A subsidiary of Bralorne Resources Ltd. of Calgary is buying the assets of Oilfield Machine and Supply Co. of Houston, a company statement says.

F. W. Fitzpatrick, president of Bralorne, in an interview would not disclose the price Bralorne International Inc. is paying for the Texas company.

The acquisition is another step in Bralorne's program of expanded involvement in the oil and gas industry at both exploratory and service levels, Fitzpatrick said.

He said the management of the Texas company, which manufactures oil field equipment, will not be changed.

Coseka Resources

Coseka Resources reports net income for the nine months ended April 30 is more than four times greater than the corresponding period a year earlier.

Net income for the period was $710,844 compared with $167,073 a year ago. The income in the latest period was equal to 10.9 cents a share of combined common and six-per-cent exchangeable shares.

Monthly revenue increased steadily during the nine-month period due to progressively added production and improvement in natural gas prices, Peter R. Kutney, president of the Vancouver-based company, said in his report.

Allarco Dev.

Allarco Developments Ltd. reported an increase in operating profits for the three months ended March 31 of 32 cents per share from 13 cents per share in 1974.

Total operating profits for the first quarter of 1975 amounted to $447,000 compared to $181,000 for the same period in 1974.

Net profit increased to $447,103 or 32 cents per share from $315,964 or 23 cents per share in 1974.

U.S. Army Buys Trucks

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States Army said it has awarded a $1.3-million contract to Chrysler Corp.'s fleet division, calling for 75 dump trucks and 118 cargo vans.

The contract calls for 65 per cent of the work to be done at Chrysler's Windsor, Ont., plant; 20 per cent at Detroit, and 15 per cent at Chrysler's Warren, Mich., installation.

The dump trucks will be of 95,000 pounds gross vehicle weight (GVW). The vans will be 16,000 pounds GVW.

Stolen Baby Case: Mother Wins

LOS ANGELES — A woman who was shown a 3½-pound fetus eight months ago and told it was her stillborn baby was today awarded custody of a baby girl allegedly smuggled away from her hospital bed in a suitcase. A sobbing Mary Childs, 30, told reporters: "This is a great day of joy for me. I just never could believe that the baby had died."

CHERBOURG — Lord Lucan, accused killer of his children's nurse in London last fall, stayed three times this spring in a hotel on the coast of France in an apparent attempt to contact somebody and then vanished again, police said today. Commissioner Andre Chaillant, chief of the Cherbourg detective squad, told newsmen that a Cherbourg hotel proprietress had identified Lucan as the man who stayed at her hotel for two-day periods in March, April and May. After his last visit he left without paying his bill of about $28.

NEW YORK — Clifford Irving, author of the bogus Howard Hughes "autobiography," has filed a voluntary bankruptcy petition in federal court. Irving listed liabilities of $55,884,248.91 and said he's worth only $410. The bulk of his liabilities stemmed from a $55-million libel suit, he said. Irving served nearly 18 months for fraud after his Hughes autobiogfaphy plot was revealed.

BRISTOL, Tenn. — When they received an anonymous tip that city employees were growing marijuana at the town dump, the Bristol police department sprang into action. Within an hour, they were back at the dump. They handed the caretaker $5 for his torn-up tomato plants. Sullivan County inspector Curtis Tackett said "it was a misunderstanding."

Apologetic Leprechaun

WASHINGTON — Internal Revenue Service Commissioner Donald Alexander says the "mistake" his agency made by spying on the sex lives of taxpayers and investigating political groups has been corrected and should be forgotten.

A congressional subcommittee is investigating charges the IRS' defunct special service staff and its "Operation Leprechaun" in the Miami area broke laws and violated civil rights.

Simple Life for Princess

AMSTERDAM (AP) — Jorge Guillermo, a Cuban-born New Yorker and a social worker in the slums of Harlem, will marry into the Dutch royal family on Saturday.

The bride-to-be is Princess Christina, youngest of the royal family's four daughters and the last of them to marry.

More than 1,000 guests headed by Queen Juliana and her consort, Prince Bernhard, will attend the royal wedding in the 13th-century cathedral of Utrecht.

Both 28, Guillermo and Christina have said they will settle in New York City, where they first met. Christina works there as a French and music teacher at a Montessori school and Jorge is associated with a school for socially deprived black children.

The newlyweds-to-be have said they will go on working after marriage and will lead the lives of "ordinary people."

Christina—almost blind since birth—has lived outside the Netherlands since 1968. She studied singing at Ecole de Musique Vincent d'Indy in the Montreal suburb of Outremont, earned a bachelor of music degree, and moved to New York in early 1974.

Guillermo is also a music buff and is producing a book on opera. The son of a physician, he moved to the United States with his parents after the Cuban revolution, but says none of his family is active in politics. He has devoted himself since 1973 to setting up and maintaining the Harlem school and became a U.S. citizen.

EATON'S

"IF YOU THINK I'M BUYING OLYMPIC COINS JUST TO SUPPORT THE 1976 OLYMPICS, YOU DON'T KNOW GORDON SINCLAIR."

"Sure, I think the Olympic Coin Program is a great way to support the Olympics and help our amateur athletes make a good showing at the '76 Games. But I'm a businessman too. Leaving sentiment aside, I want to be sure I'm getting value for money when I put dollars on the line.

I've looked into it carefully, and I'm sure I'm making a wise move when I buy these beautiful Olympic Coins. They're 92.5% pure silver (sterling silver), and most folks know precious metals are among the most valuable commodities in the world. Olympic Coins are not just commemorative medals, they're legal tender guaranteed by the Canadian Government for their full face value.

No one can predict the worth of Canadian Olympic Coins in years to come. But I've investigated the current market value of past issues of Olympic Coins and the gains have been dramatic. For instance, the Munich '72 10 D.M.—issue price $3.50—is now worth $14. An increase of 300%—and that's some increase in anybody's language.

These are some of the "good business" reasons why I'm putting money into the Olympic Coins but, as a Canadian, I'll be proud of my collection too. It will be a treasured memento of my participation in the success of the first-ever Olympic Games to be held in Canada."

Series III, "Early Canadian Sports," depicts a nostalgic glimpse of Canada's Sports Heritage.

Of the Olympic Coins to date, Series III is uniquely Canadian. Each coin captures, in precious Sterling Silver, a glimpse of Canada's sports heritage. Rowing, cycling, canoeing, and lacrosse are depicted in exquisite detail by famed Canadian artist, Ken Danby. Buy them for yourself as a souvenir of the '76 Games or as unique gifts for your family, friends or business associates.

THERE ARE 2 WAYS YOU CAN BUY THESE STERLING SILVER TREASURES

1 FROM BANKS, FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS AND AUTHORIZED COIN DISTRIBUTORS.

Option One allows you to select from the entire range of Olympic Coins either singly or in sets of four. Coins from Series I, II and III are now available. Future series will be on sale at these locations as they are issued. Single coins start as low as $8.00, four-coin sets from $47.50. Two beautifully crafted presentation cases with Brilliant Uncirculated coins are available—"Custom Set" at $55.00 and "Prestige" at $60.00. The top-of-the-line Proof Sets, with double-struck coins from specially selected blanks, cost $82.50 with a deluxe case. A Certificate of Authenticity signed by the Master of the Royal Canadian Mint is included.

Brown Raps Slow Action

NDP backbencher Rosemary Brown Wednesday urged the government to toughen its proposed legislation to protect long-term tenants of hotels and motels.

"Give universal protection to residents of any kind of accommodation being used as a permanent premise," she told the government during debate of amendments to the Landlord Tenant Act.

The provisions give B.C. Rentalsman Barrie Clarke the power to fix rents for fixed income residents, including welfare recipients, of hotels and motels.

On the recommendation of Human Resources Minister Norm Levi, the rentalsman could investigate any premises and overrule leases or rental agreements to give tenants protection under the act.

Brown argued, however, that there are many tenants who don't receive social assistance, Mincome, handicapped persons income assistance or other qualifying programs.

"Single mothers, for example are not on welfare and need the protection," she said.

The amendments — included in a Miscellaneous Statutes Amendment Act — were approved in principle, but not before Socred MLA Don Phillips agreed with Brown.

He branded the provisions as "chewing gum legislation" that is not going to solve the problem which is a lack of accommodation.

Barrett Claim 'Outrageous'

OTTAWA (CP) — Premier Dave Barrett's criticism of Ottawa's plans to squeeze health spending "is just the latest in a long list of outrageous statements by the British Columbia premier," federal Health Minister Marc Lalonde said Wednesday.

The B.C. premier told reporters Tuesday in London that the government's new budget amounted to "an outrageous assault on basic health-care services."

Lalonde said in an interview he is certain that the quality of health services can be maintained despite federal plans to restrain spending.

"We want to assure high quality of service, but we don't want to throw the taxpayers' money around."

Finance Minister John Turner announced in his budget Monday night that he was giving the provinces the required five years' notice to terminate the existing arrangement in the federal-provincial hospital insurance plan.

Turner announced a ceiling on increases in federal contributions to the medical care plan.

Barrett, in London to discuss British involvement in his government's proposed oil refinery, told reporters that the budget spending limits impose a greater burden on the wealthy provinces, which must provide for their people and subsidize the health costs of poorer provinces.

Lalonde said "in recent years the increase in B.C. health cost has been greater than the national average."

"I don't know what reason there is for that," he said. "This should be asked of Barrett."

Lalonde said he has discussed the budget proposals with Bette Stephenson, president of the Canadian Medical Association, "and they didn't seem to find them too hard."

Turner announced in his budget speech that future increases in the federal contribution to the medical care plan will be limited to 13 per cent in 1976 and to 10.5 per cent in 1977-78 before being cut to 8.5 per cent in subsequent years.

BURNED BARN CLAIM

A Socred MLA said Wednesday the department of highways burned a barn and residence on the Lougheed Highway when owners refused to sell the property.

Don Phillips (South Peace) asked Highways Minister Graham Lea in the legislature if there was any urgent reason for the action.

"There is no justification for the action," said Phillips.

Lea said he would check on the matter.

Outside the house, Phillips said the buildings, on a seven-acre parcel owned by Singh Jagpal and Guizarsingh Sidhn, were burned by the highways department May 31 and June 1.

Both were vacant, at the time said Phillips, and there were no other buildings on the property.

Sommet Rouge... it has to come of age before we blend it.

The distinctive European taste of Sommet Rouge comes largely from a French hybrid grape now grown in BC's sun-drenched Okanagan Valley. Wine from this rare grape is matured in oak casks in the winery's cellars until it "comes of age". Then, and only then, is it carefully blended with fully aged wine from imported premium California grapes, bottled and corked. The result is a robust, dry red wine that has put Sommet Rouge in heavy demand wherever it is sold.

Rhomberg: A Flair For the Promotional

Friends and associates of Edgar Rhomberg probably hail him as revolutionary in a sport which once stagnant, now is growing by leaps and bounds across the country, and in Victoria too.

But to Rhomberg, a city businessman, it's a simple fact of life that he loves tennis and anything he can do to further the sport, he will, has done, and is about to do again.

The latest move in this respect came last week when it was revealed that Rhomberg was about to become involved in bringing the Hawaii Leis of World Team Tennis here for a three-night stand at Memorial Arena; and, if those were the bare details, all else would be explained later.

Well, later was Tuesday of this week.

And quite frankly, it was a confusing situation at the Empress where a media conference had been called for the express purpose of outlining those plans. Because, before the conference began even, negotiations had blown sky high, one promoter had reneged on his previous commitment, financial arrangements had been altered, the Hawaii officials were no-shows, and for about five hours there appeared there would be no appearance here on the Hawaii Leis, or any other WIT club. Then all was well again and the show would go on.

Rhomberg graciously called the entire matter "a major misunderstanding" between Hawaii officials, the Calgary promoter who is putting the game on in Edmonton, and himself. It was a conciliatory move, and probably for the best.

Indoor Tennis . . . and Riggs

There always was the feeling earlier that Rhomberg felt he might be being played for a sucker in the matter of the guarantee, basically $30,000 as opposed to the previously-agreed-to $15,000, and there was no way he would agree to that inflated figure.

Thus, when an agreement was finally reached, it was under Rhomberg's terms and "if we can draw an average between 2,500 and 3,000, I think we could probably break even," he explained.

Now, it will be up to Victorians to support the games, or otherwise, and upon that show of enthusiasm, or lack of it, will depend on whether Victoria will become a half part of the Hawaii show next year and have 11 of the scheduled 22 games billed here.

So, Rhomberg will take a chance, and taking a flyer isn't new for him either. His first flair was the building of the Island Indoor Tennis Centre, while suffering a few problems en route, and if that club now has over 100 members, and growing, he thinks he will hit a membership total of around 400 by fall.

His reasoning is simple enough. When the fall weather becomes inclement, more tennis players will want to move inside and, as the Island Indoor Centre is the only one of its kind, it should follow that membership will increase.

Then earlier this month, Rhomberg's promotional instincts got the better of him again and he brought in the famed court hustler Bobby Riggs for a three-day draw—tennis on the lawn of the Parliament Buildings, a one-on-one shooting contest in lacrosse, at Memorial, an exhibition match, and naturally, all the accompanying fanfare and hijinks.

Community Clinics Too

Obviously wealthy enough to take a risk, but wise enough to try and avoid a financial bath, two ideals which probably go together, Rhomberg is also leaning heavily on the recent surge in world tennis interest as his base of optimism and the yet-to-be discovered curiosity of the city fan.

No doubt, too, he is aware of the exploitation value of the appearance here of the WTT teams and their stars. Because there definitely is a promotional strength for the community through clinics and public appearances, which will be an integral part of the show.

On the other hand he is also aware that WTT isn't a booming success at the gate elsewhere. In New York the average attendance is under 2,000 while the biggest draws are in Hawaii and Phoenix where 4,000 is the average.

And if he figures it won't sell here after this summer's trial run (the dates are July 24, 28 and 29), he won't be a future part of the market.

Still, if Rhomberg doesn't figure to make a bundle on the deal, he doesn't deserve to drop one either. It's no gimmick; rather it's innovative.

"I have some great hopes and also some great concerns," he admitted. "And if the reaction around town so far has been mixed, there is a growing interest generally in the sport and that's what I'm banking on."

And with John Newcombe and Margaret Court now officially two of the stars of the Victoria (nee Hawaii) show . . . hey, he may have a winner!

Cedar Hill Wins Again

Cedar Hill managed to squeeze through by half a point for the second successive year to collect the Willie Park Driver and the Victoria Inter-Club Golf League title in the final round Wednesday.

And the credit this year goes to Lee Haskell.

The young competitor was the only individual winner for the defending champions as Cedar Hill dropped a 6½-2½ decision to host Uplands, but managed to finish with 26 points for a third consecutive crown.

No Place Like Home

MIKE BEAULAC . . . five points

By D'ARCY KAVANAGH
Times Staff

All the ingredients were there Wednesday night for Victoria Shamrocks' first loss of the season at Memorial Arena.

Ron MacNeil, the club's high scoring centre, was out of the lineup with a work commitment while Bob Turkington couldn't play because of a chest injury.

And the opposition was New Westminster Salmonbellies, tied with Vancouver Burrards for first place in the Western Lacrosse Association.

With the Salmonbellies were Wayne Goss and Paul Parnell, two of the league's top scorers and usually poison to the Irish.

However, the result was the same as the other five times teams have ventured into Memorial arena to take on the Shamrocks.

Outscoring the Salmonbellies 12-3 over the final two periods, Victoria took a 15-7 decision to move within four points of the league leaders.

Beaulac, who had just seven goals and 29 points last year, scored three times and added two assists to boost his season totals to 20 goals and 54 points.

Monday in Coquitlam against the Adanacs, he played his finest game of the season, scoring three goals and adding seven assists for a 10-point night.

He tied the score 6-6 and then set up Ranjit Dillon and Jim Browne for power-play goals to give the Irish an 8-6 lead, and a command of the game they never relinquished.

Other Victoria marksmen were Pete Rushton, Gord Neilson and Dennis Somner, each with two goals, and Tom Black, Charn Dhillon, Jerry Kustaski and Dave Thomson.

WLA commissioner Colin Cruickshank was at Wednesday's game and explained at a press conference between the first and third periods that the league intends to crack down on "all the ugly stickwork."

"The coaches and referees have all been informed that no stickwork like slashing will be tolerated," he said. "We intend to clean up this part of our game."

Cruickshank also announced the WLA will receive no money from the Canadian Lacrosse Association for western players who have gone to the pro National Lacrosse League.

"And that's final," he added.

He said any recourse action by the WLA on the CLA will be decided next week at a league directors' meeting.

In another announcement, he said the Mann Cup will be held in the west for the third straight year. The playoff for the Cup will be a best-of-three affair and will take place Sept. 10-15.

Low Scores Blow Away

CASTLEGAR—A lot of low scores in the first two rounds of the B.C. junior golf championships blew away in Wednesday's third round as rain and wind struck.

One of the victims was defending champion Sandy Harper of Nanaimo, who carded a 76 and dropped into second place, four strokes back of Vancouver's Brian Christie. Christie, with a three-round total of 213, was one of two golfers to match par 72 Wednesday. The other was Joe Limoli of Vancouver.

The field was trimmed to the low 55 for today's final round and 12 Vancouver Island golfers survived the cut, set at 238. They included Harper at 217, Tony Pisto of Courtenay at 223, Jeff Wylie of Nanaimo at 224, Ian Hyde-Lay of Cowichan at 227 and Russ Reynolds of Uplands at 228, all in the top 20.

Other Islanders still alive were Jim Rutledge of Cedar Hill and Uplands; Brad McLeod, Rob Lee and Wayne Little, all of Uplands; Kevin Mitchell of Mt. Brenton; Glen Martin of Cowichan and Gord Boyland of Port Alberni.

J-Hawks Clipped

COQUITLAM — Richmond Roadrunners outscored Coquitlam J-Hawks 7-1 in the second period en route to an 18-11 Western Canada Junior Lacrosse League victory Wednesday.

Tim Kelly, Davinder Deol and Rico Bellucci led the winners with three goals each.

Defence Lifts Tony's

A good defence is a good offence, they say, and Tony's Holdings are proving it can also win softball games.

Tony's, bouncing around in last place most of the season, reeled off their second win in a row in the Stuffy McGinnis Men's League Wednesday night at Central Park, shutting out Mike's Sports Shop 6-0 and moving up to sixth place.

Pat Coffey pitched the victory on a nifty three-hitter. He struck out nine and walked three. Jim Moody, with three hits in three trips, led the winners offensively as Tony's piled up a 4-0 lead in the first two innings.

Cathy Wilkinson, meanwhile, pitched Hygrade Radio to an 8-5 Senior Women's League victory over Ingraham Hotel and aided her own cause with two hits and two runs batted in.

Sidney Hotel moved into sole possession of first place in the Sidney Men's League by beating KOA 4-3.

In Heywood Men's action, a four-run sixth inning carried Webb and Trace to an 8-4 win over Metro Toyota.

Century Inn won its eighth straight in the Men's Commercial League by beating James Bay Athletic Club 5-4 while London Boxing Club beat Trafalgar Legion 15-2 on Russ Minns' four-hitter and Oak Bay Plumbing blanked Butler Brothers, 7-0.

In Vancouver, a Pacific Coast Fastball League doubleheader between Victoria Bates and Vancouver Magicians was rained out. Both teams are scheduled to play a four-game series at Victoria's Athletic Park Saturday and Sunday.

SPORTS BRIEFS

British Surprised

Canada split the doubles with favored Britain as the Commonwealth women's team golf tournament opened today at Ganton, England.

Debbie Savoy of La Tuque, Que., and Sue Conklin of Lachute, Que., dropped a 5-and-4 decision to Ann Irwin and Ann Stant.

The Canadian team was without its top player, Marilyn Palmer of Vancouver, who had to withdraw because of illness.

In today's other match, New Zealand defeated Australia 1½ to ½.

Bill Thompson carded a 76 for a share of third place, three strokes behind leader Irv Parent of Seattle.

The team that beat the Vancouver Island junior bantam champions was Saint Thomas More Knights, a junior high school squad from Vancouver. The score was 49-26.

The loss snapped an eight-game winning streak by the Hornets. The same teams play another exhibition game in Vancouver Saturday.

Gerry Langlois scored five touchdowns for the winners and kicked seven converts for 37 points. Barry Andrushak and Ken Mulder added one touchdown each. Hornet scorers were Mark Townsend, Bob Haire, Perry Peterson and Tom Graham with a touchdown apiece. Townsend added two converts.

Townsend was named Hornets' most valuable player for the season at a half-time ceremony. The Island League MVP this year is Mark Edgington of Saanich Vampires.

Roy Moretti ran into control problems at the wrong time Wednesday, allowing Gorge Hotel to nip leading Greaves Movers 2-1 in a Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League game at Lambrick Park.

The Greaves' hurler hit Larry Montgomery with a pitch to start off the bottom of the seventh inning and then issued successive walks to Mike Squire, Russ Holmes and Roy St. Denis to push across the winning run.

Just One of Those Days for Glen . . .

THE TENNIS SCENE

By Max Low

"Goofing around" with a pal down in sunny California doesn't appear to have done much for Glen Bradshaw's tennis game.

The former Canadian Open junior champion returned to Victoria to play in the Pacific Junior Regional Tennis Championships, which ended Tuesday at the Racquet Club of Victoria, and found his Vancouver-born friend, who lives 10 months of each year in the United States, had a surprise for him.

Someone else did, too.

In fact, for Glen it turned into a tournament of lost causes — in more ways than one!

Not only did Bradshaw, who was hot favorite to win the boys' under-18 title, go out 6-2, 6-3 to third-seeded Greg Bell in the singles semi-finals, but he also lost all his tennis gear — bag, two racquets, his whites, the lot.

Glen explained that he'd put all his equipment down for a while between matches at the Racquet Club. When he went back for it, he found someone had stolen it.

That was just a few moments before he was supposed to play Bell on Tuesday morning. And he had to tear around and borrow some shorts and a shirt from a friend and someone else's racquet. He didn't play as well as he has been doing down in California.

"I lost," he shrugged, "what else can a loser say?"

* * *

But Glen hasn't been losing all the time. His year at Menlo Park School in Palo Alto, Calif., has been successful, tennis-wise with Glen playing second in the school team and winning most of his inter-school matches.

That's all over now, though, and Glen is returning to Victoria to go into Grade 12 at Mt. Douglas High School in September.

While down in California, Glen, who is 17, says he played a lot of tennis with the 16-year-old Bell but he admits most of it was "just goofing around."

All that "goofing around" must have helped Bell, who lives in the San Francisco suburb of Walla Creek and is coached by pro John Zwieg at the Tanglewood Racquet Club. It turned out to be Greg's tournament.

He breezed past George Borchert of Vancouver 6-0, 6-0 to win the under-16 singles and then defeated unseeded Gerald Clerx of Vancouver 6-4, 6-0 in the under-18 final.

* * *

That was just part of the Vancouver players' domination of the boys' events. But Victoria's girls more than made up for it, winning all four singles titles.

Valerie Brice took the under-12, Andrie Levey the under-14 and Wendy Barlow swept the under-16 and under-18 crowns.

Nastase Upset Victim

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Sherwood Stewart is a former computer salesman who quit the business scene for the "bust and hump" world of professional tennis.

But he made the 1975 Wimbledon championships come to life Wednesday before a record crowd when he mastered fifth seeded Romanian Ilie Nastase in an electrifying five-set contest.

Helped to victory by an out-of-form Nastase, the tall, bearded American ignored the Romanian's extrovert antics and his tantrums over a disputed final set line call and sent Nastase spinning out of the men's singles 8-6, 6-8, 6-2, 1-6, 6-3.

"I planned to play to Nastase's backhand all the time, because he's just not hitting his backhands any good any more, and it worked," said Stewart, 29, ranked No. 15 in the United States.

"It was a big win," he added, "because of where you're playing and who you're playing if you beat one of the seeds."

As the men enter the third round today, only 11 of the original 16 seeds are left, with Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia falling to Australia's Geoff Masters 2-6, 2-6, 6-4, 8-6, 6-4 and John Alexander losing to fellow-Australian Paul Kronk 1-6, 9-8, 9-8, 9-8 on Wednesday.

Still heavily favored to retain his title is Jimmy Connors, who overcame hay fever to defeat Vijay Amritraj of India 9-8, 6-0, 8-6.

Connors will take on Mark Cox of White Rock, B.C. in today's match. Cox beat Joaquin Loyo-Mayo of Mexico 6-3, 3-6, 6-1, 6-2 on Wednesday.

Chris Evert zipped into the third round of the women's singles by beating Elly Appel of the Netherlands 6-0, 6-1. Miss Evert is defending the women's crown.

One of the eight women's seeds, Kerry Melville-Reid of Australia, went out Wednesday, retiring when trailing Britain's Sue Barker 4-6, 0-1. Mrs. Melville-Reid said she was not feeling well.

IN THE MAJORS

It's Double or Nothing

By The Associated Press

It's double or nothing when Cincinnati Reds play Atlanta Braves these days. The Reds reel off double plays and the Braves get nothing.

After turning four double plays in blanking the Braves 3-0 Tuesday night, the Reds pulled off five more Wednesday night in a 2-0 triumph. Coupled with the Houston Astros' 5-4 victory over Los Angeles, the victory boosted the Reds' lead over the Dodgers in the national League's West Division to four games.

In the NL East, Philadelphia Phillies chopped Pittsburgh's lead to one game by defeating the Pirates 7-6 in 13 innings and sweeping the four-game series.

Elsewhere, New York Mets nipped St. Louis Cardinals 2-1, Montreal Expos exploded for 10 runs in the seventh inning and whipped Chicago Cubs 12-6 and San Diego Padres downed San Francisco Giants 6-2.

In the American League Cleveland Indians continued to "put it all together" in manager Frank Robinson's words for an 8-5 victory and a three-game sweep over Boston Red Sox at Fenway Park. Elsewhere, New York Yankees shaded Baltimore Orioles 2-1, Chicago White Sox turned back Texas Rangers 5-2, Kansas City Royals outlasted California Angels 6-2 in 12 innings, Oakland Athletics dumped Minnesota Twins 7-1 and Milwaukee Brewers edged Detroit Tigers 7-6.

With pitching ace Don Gullett on the disabled list, the Reds turned to a couple of relative newcomers the last two nights. Pat Darcy blanked the Braves for 6 2-3 innings Tuesday before needing relief and Wednesday they got eight innings of three-hit ball from Tom Carroll.

Italian Archer Leads

INTERLAKEN, Switzerland (AP) — Italy's Sante Spigtrelli took a surprise opening lead over the 17-year-old American world record holder Darrell Pace as the World target archery championships got under way Wednesday in this Swiss alpine resort.

Irene Lorensen of Phoenix, trailed the Soviet Union's Zebiniso Rustamova in the women's division. Linda Myers, the defending world champion from the United States, was seventh while Lucille Lessard of Quebec City, the over-all world champion, was in a good position in 10th spot.

Other Canadians in the women's competition were Gerri Cosgrove, Victoria, 17th; Wanda Allan, Victoria, 37th, and Joan McDonald, Toronto, 59th.

Ron Lippert of Kitchener led the Canadian men's contingent, placing 15th with Wayne Pullen of Dorchester, Ont., 21st; David Mann of Vancouver, 38th, and Roger Lemay of Boisbrilland, Que., 40th.

Following the first day of competition, Canada stood fourth over-all.

WHA JOB OFFERED TO HOULE

TORONTO (CP) — Buck Houle, general manager of Toronto Toros, has been offered a position with the World Hockey Association with duties that haven't been defined but make him answerable only to the WHA's chief executive officer.

Houle confirmed Wednesday he had been talking with Ben Hatskin of Winnipeg and expected to make his decision known by Aug. 1 "after I've taken a few days off to give it some thought."

Hatskin said the league needs "another hockey man in our head office and Houle has been a hockey man almost all his life."

Houle, who says he's interested because the league office will be transferred from California to Toronto, managed Victoria Maple Leafs in the old pro Western League.

'Closed Open' Look at Cowichan

If they ever design a British Columbia "closed open," this year's Cowichan Open field offers an example of the talent that might be expected in a resident-only golf test.

Out-of-province golfers are entered in the Cowichan Open, but so are most of H.C.'s top amateur and professional players.

The host pro and defending champion, Bill Wakeham may be the man to beat. The field has several capable of doing it, including Victoria City Amateur champion Cec Ferguson (who lost in a playoff last year), Canadian amateur champion Doug Roxburgh and a flock of mainland pros.

Also to be considered are professional hockey players Greg Boddy, Andre Boudria and George Gardner, all low handicap golfers.

Brill Captures High Jump Title

HELSINKI (CP-Reuter)—Debbie Brill gave Canada its lone gold medal of the day in a special international track-and-field meet of world-class athletes Wednesday, but it was Poland's Irena Szewinska who provided the feature entertainment.

The lithesome University of Victoria student won the women's high jump with a leap of six feet ¾ inches, four inches clear of Mikiko Sone of Japan.

The Polish housewife, however, ran the fastest women's 400 metres in the world this year, posting a time of 51.07 seconds.

It was the feature event in the first of a two-day program at Helsinki's Olympic Stadium and the victor was pushed to the limit by Finland's European champion, Riitta Salin, and Canada's Yvonne Saunders.

Trolling Tips

When trolling across the current and making a turn it is usually better to turn into the tide rather than with the flow. This is especially important if you get a strike, but don't hook the fish. Turning into the tidal flow will help you hold position.

Nuclear Safeguards In New Agreements

TOKYO (CP) — Canada is negotiating a nuclear safeguard agreement with South Korea that will "cover the flaw" in the accord signed with India, External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen said Wednesday.

MacEachen, who left today for talks with South Korean President Park Chung-Hee in Seoul, said Canada will insist that the nuclear materials and equipment it supplies will not be used for "explosive purposes."

"We have learned from the Indian experience," he said.

India, after receiving Canadian technology and nuclear fuel, detonated an atomic bomb. The Canadians were embarrassed by the development and cancelled all but humanitarian aid to India at the time.

MacEachen said all safeguard agreements signed with countries receiving Canadian uanrium will have to meet Ottawa's tighter policy announced in December, 1974.

The Canada-South Korea safeguard agreement will be the strictest of any in the world, he told a news conference.

He also said the successful implementation of Canada's new foreign policy of "the third option" depends upon Japan and Europe.

MacEachen was speaking at the National Press Club of Japan after attending the two-day Japan-Canada ministerial committee meeting which ended Tuesday.

1,000,000 DRIVERS MAY GET REBATES

OTTAWA (CP) — The revenue department estimates between 750,000 and one million car and truck owners will get refunds on the 10-cents-a-gallon gasoline tax brought in with the new federal budget.

However, an official said Wednesday, it will be several weeks before the department can issue details of how and where refunds can be claimed and probably longer before refunds can be issued.

Canadian Talent on Show

WASHINGTON (FPS) — Canada will sponsor a two-week festival of theatre, ballet and music here this fall as part of the observance of the bicentennial of United States independence, it was announced Wednesday.

"Americans will see more of Canada's best talent at one time than Canadians are often able to see at home," said Russell McKinney, charge d'affairs at the Canadian embassy, in making the announcement.

The Canadian government will spend "roughly in the range of $400,000 to half a million dollars "to subsidize the Canadian festival, McKinney said.

A Canadian film festival will take place simultaneously.

A Room Full of Plastic Does Not Make a Home

Item: Spent the night, by necessity, in one of our town's newest motels on the Gorge Road and it was a creepy experience.

Almost everything in this place is made of plastic—the lamps, the tables, the oval sink in the bathroom, the john, the tub—all coldly gleaming in their prefabricated perfection. The over-all effect is like being in an ultra modern morgue, as antiseptic and as frigid as any resting place on earth. I looked in vain for even one object that might seem solid or made for comfort or beauty.

I'd not have reacted this way, I suppose, if I hadn't been visiting friends earlier in the old wing of The Empress with its massive, gracious furniture and ancient paintings. It was like going from an old, baronial home to the freezing compartment of a refrigerator.

Item: Very flattered today to receive a Certificate of Merit from the Media Club of Canada, but I can't help wondering if maybe there isn't just a teeny bit of female chauvinism in the awards.

The Media Club, I gather, is the successor to the Canadian Women's Press Club. Could just be that that has something to do with the fact that the awards list contains the names of no less than 11 women writers and broadcasters and only three males, though all but one category is open to both sexes. In every case the first prize winners are women, while the men bring up the rear.

I'm not complaining, of course. Just wondering.

Item: Grand news today, though I cannot find it in any of the papers, that the British-French supersonic air transport, Concorde, will go into commercial service this year.

The Americans have yet to give approval for a landing at New York, which will probably delay the three-hour trans-Atlantic service, but British Airways will use the beautiful bird for passenger service to Bahrain, in the Persian Gulf. Air France, in turn, will fly the Concorde on a regular schedule from Paris to Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo via Dakar. Later the British will have a supersonic service to Singapore and Melbourne, linking the United Kingdom and Australia in under 14 hours, a new dimension in commercial aviation.

Concorde, when it goes into service, will be the most tested and proven airliner ever to enter passenger service.

I've said it before and I'll say it again: When Air Canada took itself off the priority list for the supersonic and faint-hearted Canadian Pacific backed off from any participation whatever it was a black day for aviation in this country. In long range travel, which both lines operate, the present-day jet is like a Model T compared with Concorde.

Item: A first-rate piece on Rosemary Brown by Lisa Hobbs in the July Chatelaine and though I fear she is to be defeated in her bid for the NDP leadership it confirms my impression that she's a remarkable woman.

One of Rosemary's problems has been to reconcile her private life—married to a well-to-do psychiatrist, the owner of a large, affluent home in Point Grey and properties in the Gulf Islands, holder of a portfolio of blue-chip stocks—with her public life as an avowed socialist on the left wing of her party.

Says Rosemary: "To pretend we can't afford to live well would be hypocritical and ridiculous."

And Lisa concludes: "There appeared to be, however, a trace of discomfort. As there could be no questioning of Brown's total socialist commitment by anyone who knew her well, we talked about this and what emerges in her view as a very personal problem. For black children in a white society, wealth is a great buffer from radical hurt. It was my impression that it was mainly in these terms that Brown sees her material holdings as having great value."

It's an odd thing that both—her desire for that financial security and for a political philosophy that might wipe it out—are strangely compatible.

Item: To a certain seafood restaurant tonight with Eastern friends who were enchanted with the old home in which the place is housed and all but heart-broken with the repast that eventually came our way. I suppose I have had worse dinners—oh, I know I have, having spent five years in uniform—but I've never had one quite so awful in a restaurant.

It does seem almost a rule that you can never find an eating place in which both the atmosphere and the cuisine are first rate, though you often find one without the other. In this case, like the Princess Mary, everything that could pass as local fare—oysters, scallops, halibut and salmon—had been deep-frozen, almost a sure way to ruin anything that comes from the sea. What thawing didn't do, the chef handled nicely.

One day, I predict, we'll have a seafood restaurant that will serve nothing but the delicacies that have come fresh from the briny and it will make a mint. Yet, sad to say, this place was jammed, mainly with tourists, and I suppose that so long as it is, what happens in the kitchen hardly matters.

Mission completed, divers get pickup

Divers To The Rescue

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

The Canadian armed forces have moved quickly to help avert such tragedies as this year's herring season when 16 men and 14 boats were lost in three weeks.

In April the navy's fleet diving unit at Colwood began giving three-week scuba diving courses to pararescue personnel at the armed forces' rescut bases in Comox, Summerland, P.E.I., Trenton, Ont., and Edmonton.

Training officer at Colwood, Lieut. Mark Draibye said:

"The herring season certainly had a bearing on things. We realized we had to do something."

An exercise Wednesday showed how the Colwood course has made pararescue men as adept in the water as in the air.

Four miles off the Victoria coastline we waited aboard the navy auxiliary vessel skippered by Ed Bonsor. A Labrador helicopter from CFB Comox approached.

In the water nearby was an overturned 14-foot boat, enmeshed in nets, ropes and fish hooks, simulating the problems which could be met in an emergency.

Under the upturned boat was a dummy.

Aboard the chopper were two of the eight pararescue personnel completing the fifth course laid on since April.

We watched them jump as the helicopter's blades lashed the waters around them. They dove under the boat and in two minutes the "body" was rescued.

There were three more runs by the chopper, each time two more jumped and went through the rescue evolution.

Draibye explained that each man in Canada's four pararescue units will be taught scuba diving skills.

"Capsized boats usually have air pockets," he said, "and, the important thing is to first find out if anybody is trapped inside. If they're still alive it's essential to get them out as fast as possible."

Wednesday's seas were calm but Draibye stressed that when pararescue teams are called into action the seas are usually wild, whipped by relentless wind.

Master Cpl. George Walker, 29, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Walker of Milne's Landing, is one of those completing the course. He came aboard after completing his rescue.

For 3½ years Walker has been based in Edmonton, during which time he's made dozens of rescue flights. He explained that his unit's busy seasons are when the ice breaks up or starts to freeze. Most of those rescued are from planes downed on icy lakes.

C. Saanich Won't Bite On 'Carrot'

A proposal by Saanich alderman Sandy Noel that the Greater Victoria Water Board pay for a two-mile water main to supply the Saanich Peninsula was called "a big carrot" today.

Noel's proposal includes the proviso that Central Saanich join the water board.

Central Saanich's water committee chairman Ald. David Hill said he would recommend that Noel's proposal be rejected.

"We would have to buy our way in,." Hill said, "And as soon as we become a member we're hooked. It's kind of like a big carrot."

Noel said he would recommend that the water board pay $120,000 to install a 12-inch water main from about one mile south of Elk-Beaver Lake to connect with the pumping station on the west side of the lake.

Saanich says Elk Lake water which Central Saanich pumps for peninsula use, is dangerously low, threatening recreation use of the lake and the Colquitz system which the lake feeds.

"The boys on the water board are dubbed in the role of the bad guys," Noel said today. "It's my intent to show good faith on the part of the water board.

"This would be an interim measure that would have a dual purpose. It would increase recreation provisions on Elk Lake, help Colquitz, and provide people on the peninsula with chlorinated water from Sooke Lake."

Hill said Central Saanich had never lowered the level of Elk Lake more than a foot a year, had water rights allowing them to pump 1,300,000 gallons a day but never pumped this amount for more than one week during a summer.

Before he would recommend joining the water board, Hill said he wanted full studies carried out that could lead to a much more economical source of water supply.

"Consultants and geologists have told us we have enough pottable water from subterranean sources to supply 100,000 people on the peninsula. I would want full studies carried out before we joined the water board," he said.

"We might have to put out $200,000 (in studies) and it's a bit of a gamble but we could find water supply could end up costing $10 million (if linked with the water board) instead of $3 million."

Hill also said the water board was not sympathetic to the peninsula's agricultural problems.

"In talks with the water board we were told they wouldn't supply water for irrigation," he said. "With 80 per cent of the peninsula in agricultural land we have to think about that.

"Oak Bay and other municipalities only use 2½ times more water in the summer than in the winter but our consumption is eight times as much."

Hill said it would be unrealistic to have one source of water for domestic use and another for farming.

Sooke to Study 'Package' Arena

In a letter to the Capital Regional Board Wednesday, director Ron Dumont said bids for construction of the arena came in so much higher than budgeted funds, the recreation commission doesn't want to seek additional funding authority at this time.

The board approved his recommendation that all bids be rejected and the arena project as originally envisaged be abandoned.

Dumont said the commission is looking into the possibility of buying a prefabricated arena and the board authorized the commission to negotiate such a purchase, subject to board approval.

Executive director Dennis Young said the commission has had discussions with two manufacturers and will hear from a third one. Price range is between $500,000 and $750,000, he said.

Approval to borrow up to $830,000 was obtained but the low tender was $1,224,856.

In other business, the regional board set the time for a court of revision to deal with the Sooke voters' list at July 15, 10 a.m. in the board room at 524 Yates and named directors Dumont, Jim Campbell and Ed Lum to sit as the court.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. One of my favorite hobbies for years has been knitting and now that I have six granchildren I have lots of opportunity to indulge in it. I was having tea with some neighbors the other day and one of them told me that not only are men often better cooks than women but they can also run rings around us when it comes to knitting. Can this be true? Most men I know are all fingers and thumbs when it comes to sewing or knitting. G.F.

A. Generally speaking, you're correct. Most men shy away from such hobbies but there are a few who enjoy them. As an example, Douglas Milne, who lives in Mount Florida, Glasgow, Scotland, set a record in May, 1969, when he knitted a piece that had 2,464 stitches per square inch.

Did Olympic Fire Cure Smoker?

By ELEANOR BOYLE
Times Staff

Alex Brown knows a man who smokes in bed.

"He may have stopped by now, though," said Brown. "He lived on the third floor of the Royal Olympic Hotel."

The friend survived the Saturday fire that killed three people and injured 11. Fire department officials suspect it was caused by careless smoking.

Brown, 390 Burnside East, said he "packed it up" in 1950 and hasn't smoked since. But his friend still does, he said. "He likes to wake up in the morning and have a smoke."

Brown was interviewed Wednesday when the Times asked people at random whether they smoked in bed and what they think of the habit.

Deputy Fire Chief Carl Coates estimates bed smokers have caused 90 per cent of fire deaths in the city and 50 per cent of fires over-all.

Seventy-one fires in Victoria last year were caused by the habit, he said, adding the smokers were often under the influence of drugs or alcohol.

Of 16 smokers interviewed, most said they never smoke in bed, but two reluctantly admitted it.

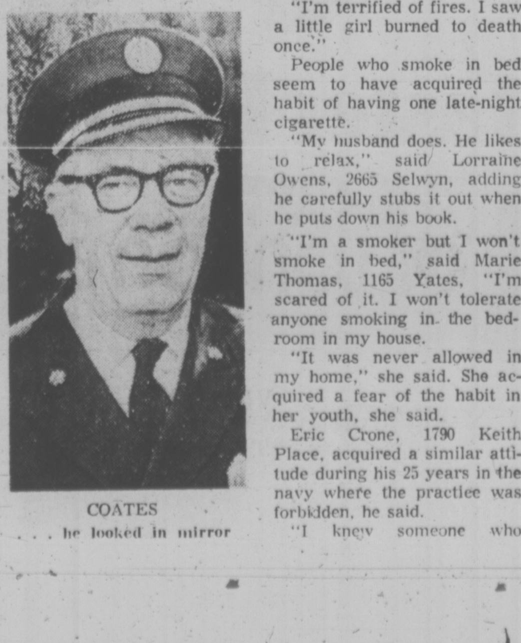
One who refused to be named was reprimanded by a colleague standing nearby after saying both he and his wife smoke in bed.

"If you don't watch it, your house will go up in smoke," the other told him.

"I can do what I want in my house. I'm not here for a lecture," replied the smoker.

"See what you've done?" he said to the reporter.

Elsie Fisher, 2843 Knotty Pine, said she smokes in bed. "But only with my cigarette over an ashtray.



COATES
. . . he looked in mirror

"I'm terrified of fires. I saw a little girl burned to death once."

People who smoke in bed seem to have acquired the habit of having one late-night cigarette.

"My husband does. He likes to relax," said Lorraine Owens, 2665 Selwyn, adding he carefully stubs it out when he puts down his book.

"I'm a smoker but I won't smoke in bed," said Marie Thomas, 1165 Yates. "I'm scared of it. I won't tolerate anyone smoking in the bedroom in my house.

"It was never allowed in my home," she said. She acquired a fear of the habit in her youth, she said.

Eric Crone, 1790 Keith Place, acquired a similar attitude during his 25 years in the navy where the practice was forbidden, he said.

"I knew someone who dropped a lit cigarette in a chesterfield and got badly burned. He still smokes," said Julia Novotniak, 4147 Carey.

The deputy fire chief suggested hotel and motel desk clerks give guests a friendly warning not to smoke in bed, and outline emergency fire procedure for them.

More smoke and heat detectors should also be installed in buildings and individual rooms, he said.

"Human failure is the main cause of it, though, and it's most difficult to correct human failure," said Coates, who gave up smoking more than a year ago.

"I had a fit of coughing that made me sick to my stomach, and saw myself in the mirror," he said.

The reflection told him he should have more sense.

Symphony Out of Red

Retiring board members of the Victoria Symphony Society will likely hand over a solvent symphony to incoming officers at tonight's annual general meeting.

The Times learned today that about $35,000 of the deficit has been paid off and the society's financial report will show a balance out of the red for the first time in a number of years.

In addition word has been received from Canada Council that the 1975 grant will be double 1974.

The retiring board has been under fire for some months for "mismanagement" of symphony affairs. The opposing group will present a full slate of nominees at tonight's meeting to be held in Oak Bay Junior Secondary auditorium on Cadboro Bay Road.

The board's nominating committee will also present a full slate.

As one of its final acts in office, the present board recently invited two representatives of the Association of Canadian Orchestras to hold discussions with all segments of the Symphony Society and some leading members of the community.

Leonard Stone, president of the ACO, and Thomas Fielding, executive director of the B.C. Cultural Program are preparing an overview for the board on the direction the symphony should be taking over the next 18 months.

Foo Yung Hearty Meal for Two

By MARY MOORE

Chinese food and health food fans and budgeters are going to love me today. Eggs foo yung are very different, quick, economical, popular and healthy!

The recipe makes a hearty meal for two and a satisfactory meal for three moderate eaters.

Try them. You will like them.

EGG FOO YUNG
(serves 2 or 3)

Egg Mixture: 6 tbsp. wheat germ, 4 large eggs 2-3c. fresh bean sprouts, ¼ c. finely chopped parsley, 3 Tbsp. finely chopped green or cooking onion, 2 tbsp water, 2 tbsp. sherry (optional), ¾ tsp. salt, ⅛ tsp. pepper, ⅛ tsp. M.S.G. accent), 3 tbsp. oil.

Mushroom Sauce: 2-3 c. water, 1 tbsp. corn starch, 1 chicken bouilloncube, 2 tsp. soy sauce, 2 tsp. catsup, 1 c. sliced mushrooms.

Mix together in a medium bowl the wheat germ, eggs, bean sprouts, parsley, onion, water, sherry, salt, pepper and MSG. (Do not add the oil.) Let this stand while you make the mushroom sauce: into a small pot measure the water, corn starch, bouillon cube, soy sauce and catsup. Mix well and cook stirring until thick. Add mushrooms and let stand over low heat until you make the Eggs Foo Yung.

Heat the oil in a large frying pan. Stir the egg mixture. Carefully measure it by one-quarter cupfuls into the hot pan. My large electric frying pan held four. They spread a little but cook quickly. When golden on bottom turn over with wide lifter to brown other side. Keep hot while you cook remainder. This amount makes six.

NOTE: Write to Mary Moore, 32 Churchill Ave., Hamilton, Ont., enclosing stamped self-addressed envelope and 10 cents for each specified recipe.

According to the food guide, fish is an excellent protein food. Since fish protein is easily digested, it may be included in diets for invalids, young children and the aged.

The four basic methods of preparing fish are by dry heat (baking, broiling, barbecuing), moist heat (poaching or steaming), pan-frying and deep frying. Whichever method you prefer, make sure not to overcook the fish.

The booklet also offers imaginative recipes for fish dishes prepared by the different methods, like baked fillets with crispy cheese topping, broiled fish steaks and poached fish with lemon sauce.

elizabeth forbes

The ease with which we tend to believe that it is only in the last decade or so that anything has been attempted to bring equality to the women of British Columbia, was forcirbly brought home to me the other day, with the added knowledge of how wrong that assumption is.

I was tidying up my files and I came across a brief compiled by a group of women's clubs in this province back in 1931, that makes it clear much was being done, even then to make equality for women, as well as men, a fact.

Its lists first the qualifications of franchise for women in British Columbmia which, with a few minor changes, are much the same today.

Federally, she had to be a British subject by birth or adoption, be 21 years of age and a resident of Canada for six months; provincially, a British subject and a resident in the province for six months and in her present place of residence for one month; municipally, she had a vote provided she was either a tenant or property owner, but couldn't vote on money by-laws unless she was a registered owner of property. This last also applied to school boards.

It was shown that a bill was passed in the provincial legislature that very year, respecting the removal of disqualifications on account of sex and that it was expected to wipe out many difficulties in legislation respecting women.

Also that women who had been employed and were then out of work, could make application to provincial relief offices and receive meals and beds but no provision was made for finding work for them. (You will remember it was depression days back in 1931).

There's an appendix attached, listing advanced social legislation affecting women and children, that had been passed in British Columbia, in the several years leading up to 1931.

These several bills and acts allowed a woman to be appointed Judge of the Juvenile Court, women to be admitted as barristers and solicitors and women to serve as jurors.

They made it possible for women to act as guardians of their infant children for a first time and to be elected to the Legislative Assembly.

One act enabled married women to hold property separately from their husbands and another gave both pre-natal and post-natal maternity protection. Also listed was a Minimum Wage Act and a Mothers' Pension Act.

It was pointed out, however, that women "still face the same old problem of equal pay for equal work and it is questionable as to whether or not we have made very much headway in regard to a solution of this very vital question."

Remember that was in 1931, and we are still faced with "the same old problem" of equal pay for equal work.

In the tidying up process I also came across something else in my files that raised a chuckle I'd like to share with you.

It's a list of Victoria city ordinances and by-laws in force back in 1862.

Among them is the fact that no person could ride or drive through the public streets at a pace exceeding eight miles an hour, nor could they drive or lead any horse or cattle on any sidewalk or footpath.

All pigs and goats found at large within the city limits would be deemed a nuisance and impounded.

No person in any thoroughfare could beat or shake any carpet, rug, mat, except doormats, after eight in the morning. Nor could they throw or lay out any dirt, litter or ashes, or any carion, fish, offal or rubbish, or throw or cause anything to go into any sewer, pipe or drain, or into any well, stream or watercourse, or put the same in such a position that it might run into any pond or reservoir for water.

Ashes, dirt, rubbish, stones or filth of any kind whatsoever, could not be dumped into the harbor, or left in such a way that it might be washed into the harbor.

You couldn't "wantonly fire or set off, or discharge any guns, pistols, cannons, squibs, crackers or fireworks," back in those days. Nor could you "wear or carry on the person any loaded firearms or dangerous weapons about the person within the city limits."

And no slaughter-house, tannery, distillery or other offensive trade or occupation could be conducted in any premise situated within the city.

All these were ordinances and by-laws back in 1862, well over 100 years ago. Some of them will give you a chuckle, I'm sure . . . and even lead you to wonder, as I do, if they still might not be somewhere on the statute books — unused and forgotten.

O.K. . . . OK.! I know I demoted the Queen Mary (now docked at Long Beach in California and being used as a convention centre) when I told you in a recent column that Victoria's Colin Rutherford could be installed as Gyros' international president aboard that ship this weekend.

I'm not sure how it happened. Whatever the cause, the name of the ship came out in my column as Princess Mary.

I do apologize to those who have written and phoned to tell me how much they love the old Queen and to assure them that Rutherford has promised he will carry my apology to the old girl herself and present it with proper ceremony the first time he goes aboard.

Vitamin D Needs Met by Milk

Question: My daughter does not give her children (6 years and 8 years) cod liver oil for vitamin D. She says they are receiving their vitamin D requirement from milk. Is she correct?

Answer: Dairies are permitted by law to add 300 to 400 I.U. of vitamin D per 30 fluid oz. of milk. A six year old child requires 200 I.U. while an eight year old requires 100 I.U. of vitamin D daily. The recommended daily milk intake for children, two and one half cups (20 oz.), would easily meet this requirement. Your daughter should verify that the milk she is purchasing is enriched with vitamin D.

Answer: Wieners are a member of the meat group of the daily food guide. However, because there is less meat per volume in a wiener, there is more required to make one serving; 3 ounces, or one and a half wieners, is the equivalent of 2 ounces of lean meat, fish or poultry. A child may have difficulty eating this larger portion. Also, wieners have lower iron context which is another reason for including a variety of meats in a child's diet.

Question:: Do macaroni, noodles and egg noodles contain milk or other dairy products? Are they suitable for a child allergic to milk and milk products?

Answer: These are alimentary pastes, most often made from semolina — wheat flour with water, and sometimes with egg and milk. If the ingredients are not listed on the package, a letter of inquiry to the company can verify if the product contains milk or milk products. Of course, if milk is present they would not be suitable for a child allergic to milk.

GAZPACHO

2 large ripe tomatoes.
½ cup green pepper, finely chopped.
½ cup celery, finely chopped.
½ cup cucumber, peeled and finely chopped.
1-3 cup onion, finely chopped.
1 clove garlic, minced.
1 tsp. snipped parsley (or parsley flakes).
1 tbsp. lemon juice.
12 tbsp. white vinegar (or white wine vinegar).
2 tbsp. salad oil.
Salt to taste.
2 tbsp. pimiento, finely chopped.
Dash pepper.
1 tbsp. Worcestershire sauce.
2 cups tomato juice.

Peel and chop tomatoes. Prepare other ingredients. Combine in large bowl. Cover; chill thoroughly (at least 4 hours). To serve: Divide soup into bowls. Place an ice cube in each bowl. Serve with condiments such as crumbled bacon, chopped chives, parsley, thin lemon slices, or croutons. If a thinner soup is desired, add more tomato juice. Makes six servings.

Schmaltz a Must on Russian Menu

CRAIG CLAIBORNE

EAST HAMPTON, N.Y. — "You can't have a Russian meal without herring," Maria Robbins told us as she lifted a fine, fat schmaltz herring from its milk bath, boned it and garnished it with chopped scallions and a touch of vinegar and oil.

"It goes particularly well with fau, which a lot of my Russian friends say they've never heard of," she went on. "Fau is a puree of white beans, and it is a specialty of the small Bulgarian village where my father was born. The beans are topped with soft onions fried brown and a little or a lot of cayenne pepper is sprinkled on top, depending on your taste and conscience."

Mrs. Robbins, a 34-year-old author and translater, was in the midst of preparing a Russian dinner that would include such zakuski, or appetizers, as herring and fau, eggplant caviar, cucumbers with dill and tarragon-flavored cold mushrooms. These would be accompanied by vodka, delicately and naturally yellow in color from the lemon peel with which it had been macerated for several days.

Mrs. Robbins, who was born in the town of Poltava in the Ukraine ("the breadbasket of Russia") averred that to her mind shchi, a soup made with sauerkraut and beef broth, is a more common "everyday" Russina dish than borscht which is, of course, to most Western minds the national soup of the Soviet Union.

"Shchi is seasonal and doesn't have to be made with sauerkraut," she said. "Sometimes it is made with sorrel, sometimes with cabbage or sauerkraut, and it is served with or without potatoes and sour cream."

SCHMALTZ HERRING

1 whole schmaltz herring with skin on Milk to cover
3 or 4 scallions
2 tablespoons peanut, vegetable or corn oil
1 tablespoon wine vinegar.

1. Rinse and pat the herring dry. Place it in a bowl and add milk to cover. Let stand three hours.

2. Drain the herring. Using the fingers and a paring knife, skin the herring on both sides. Carefully filet the herring by cutting along both sides of the backbone with the knife. Remove as many bones as possible. Rinse well and drain.

3. Place the filets on a flat surface and cut on the diagonal into slices about one and one-half inches thick. Arrange the herring on a platter.

4. Chop the scallions, white part only, and scatter over the herring. Sprinkle with oil and vinegar. Do not add salt. Serve as an appetizer.

FAU

(A Russian puree of beans)

2 20-ounce cans cannelini beans, undrained
4 yellow onions, about one pound peeled
1-3 cup peanut, vegetable or corn oil
Cayenne pepper according to taste and conscience

1. Put the beans through a food mill or use a food processor to blend.

2. Pour the puree in a bowl.

3. Cut the onions in half and slice each half as thinly as possible. There should be about four cups loosely packed.

4. Heat the oil in a skillet and add the onions. Cook, stirring, until the onions are nicely browned. Spread the onions evenly over the pureed beans. Sprinkle lightly or heavily with cayenne pepper and serve at room temperature as an appetizer.

Yield: Four to six servings.

SHCHI

(Sauerkraut and beef soup)

10 cups beef broth (see recipe)
1 tablespoon plus 1 teaspoon sugar
2 tablespoons tomato paste
4 tablespoons butter
2 cups chopped onion
1-3 cup chopped celery
1 cup chopped carrots
1 cup chopped parsnip, optional
½ bayleaf
Salt to taste
1 tablespoon lemon juice

1. Drain the sauerkraut. Rinse it in cold water and squeeze to extract most of the moisture.

2. Put the sauerkraut in a Dutch oven or heavy casserole and add one-half cup of broth, the tablespoon of sugar and tomato paste. Stir and cover. Cook about 45 minutes. Add a little more broth if the sauerkraut starts to become dry.

3. Heat the butter in a skillet and add the onion. Cook, stirring, until wilted. Add the celery, carrots and parsnip. Add this to the sauerkraut. Cover and let cook about 10 minutes.

4. Add the remaining broth, the bay leaf, remaining teaspoon of sugar, salt and lemon juice. Cover and cook one hour. Serve hot.

BEEF BROTH

2 pounds chuck
4 marrow bones
2 carrots, scraped and quartered
1 onion, peeled and stuck with 4 cloves
1 parsnip, trimmed and quartered
5 quarts water
Salt to taste
12 peppercorns

Combine all the ingredients in a kettle and bring to the boil. Simmer three to four hours. Strain and reserve both the broth and the beef. Discard the vegetables. Skim the surface to remove excess fat.

Yield: About three quarts.

Sausage, Cereal For Tasty Filling

In layered sausage supper, two breakfast items, sausage and bran cereal, are combined for a tasty filling. Layers of succulent zucchini and a cheese topping complete the dish for a summery evening meal.

1 pound pork sausage meat
½ cup chopped onion
½ cup chopped green pepper
1 cup bran cereal
½ teaspoon poultry seasoning
1 cup dairy sour cream
6 medium zucchini (about 2 pounds)
Salt
Ground black pepper
8 ounces mozzarella cheese, sliced
3 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese

Cook sausage in skillet over medium heat until well browned, breaking into small pieces. Remove and drain well on paper towels. Pour fat from skillet leaving about 1 tablespoon. Add onion and green pepper and saute until slightly softened. Toss with sausage and next two ingredients; blend in sour cream. Remove ends from zucchini and slice lengthwise as thinly as possible. Line bottom of lightly greased 2-quart oblong baking dish with half the slices. Sprinkle lightly with salt and pepper. Spoon meat mixture evenly over squash. Top with remaining squash*. Cover and bake in preheated moderate oven (375 degrees F.) 35 minutes. Remove cover; top with cheese slices and grated cheese. Bake 10 minutes longer, or until cheese is lightly browned. Makes 6 (about 1 cup servings.

*Recipe can be completed to this point and refrigerated. Add about 10 minutes to baking time, if chilled.

Fresh Salads Natural Summer Food

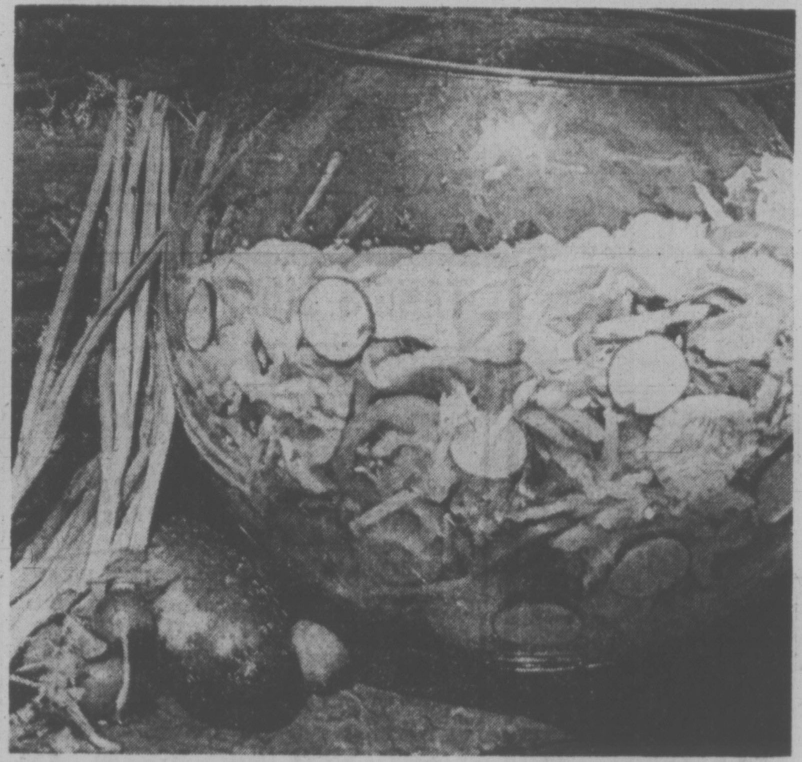
Salads are a delight to weight-watchers also, for they can be satisfying without being too high in calories. A head of lettuce has about 50 calories, a tomato 22, and a medium cucumber about 14 calories. If you are serving a salad as your main meal of the day, be sure to include a slice of meat, some cheese or an egg. This will supply the protein needed in your diet. And don't add rich dressings to your salads — this only defeats the purpose. Instead, use various seasonings and fresh herbs for differences in flavor. Make your salad look attractive — there is nothing less appealing than a wilted or poorly made salad. Vary the vegetables or fruits from day to day so your menu doesn't seem too monotonous.

Summertime is picnic time. Whether the site is a roadside table under a shady tree, near a busy tennis court, or on a sailboat, the meal should be simple and served in large amounts. Have everything ready in advance. Prepare greens, onions, celery and radishes and store them together in a plastic bag or covered bowl in the refrigerator. Store sliced tomatoes and cucumbers separately as they are more watery. Just before serving, toss the salad with the dressing. It will be as crisp and cold as if it had been freshly prepared.



If you are transporting your salads to a picnic site, pack ingredients in covered containers and chill for several hours. Prechill portable coolers or insulated picnic bags with cans or bag of reusable artificial ice and pack firmly to retain the cold. In place of artificial ice, you can use ice cubes in a plastic container or cans of frozen fruit juice. To avoid the risk of food poisoning, carry smoked or canned meat to a picnic. Use an oil and vinegar dressing rather than mayonnaise. Pack hard-cooked eggs in the cooler, although pickled eggs are more convenient because they do not require refrigeration. To complete the meal, add buttered rolls, pickles, cheese, and a variety of fresh fruit.

From Food Advisory Services, Agriculture Canada, come these recipes for superbly refreshing summer salads. Check the proportion of salad ingredients required. You can easily double or triple the recipes for a crowd.

GARDEN SALAD BOWL

½ cup sliced radishes
½ cup sliced green onion
1 cup diagonally sliced celery
1½ cups sliced cucumber
1 cup finely shredded cabbage
1 bunch watercress
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
½ cup French dressing
4 cups torn lettuce

Combine vegetables and toss lightly. Chill. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, add dressing and toss to coat pieces. Mix with lettuce. 6 servings.

SPINACH AND CELERY SALAD

1 10-ounce package fresh spinach
1 cup thinly sliced onion
1 cup diced celery
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup blue cheese dressing
½ cup dairy sour cream
4 hard-cooked eggs, cut in wedges

Tear washed spinach in bite size pieces. Add onion, celery and seasoning. Combine dressing and sour cream. Pour over salad and toss lightly. Garnish with eggs. Serve immediately. 4 servings.

Convenience?

DEAR ABBY: I am unmarried with two small children. I don't love their father, although we live together because it's convenient. We get along so-so. We share the bills, and I get the use of his car.

I knew Sam only three weeks when we started living together. I got pregnant, and then I was stuck.

He told me he was divorced, but he won't show me the proof. (I think he's lying.) He gambles a lot, and I can't trust him very far. He works nights and I work days. We have no friends or social life. But Sam is good to the kids, and they love him.

My mother lives in my building, and she is driving me nuts. She interferes and causes arguments between Sam and me. She goes against everything I say to my kids—calls me stupid in front of them and tells them not to listen to me. When I discipline the kids, they cry for Grandma, and this hurts. She also tells everybody my business.

What can I do about her? And what can I do about my messed-up life? I'm 32 and feel like 82.—Misfit.

DEAR MISFIT: I see two major problems: Sam and your mother. You need to get away from your mother. She is poison to your self-esteem, and a troublemaker to boot.

Call Family Service, and make an appointment with one of their professional counsellors. You need to talk at length with someone who can help you put your life in order. Living with a man you don't love because it's a convenience is a bad trip. Counselling will lighten your burden and show you the way. Good luck. Write again to tell me how you're doing. I care.

DEAR ABBY: Well, here goes my first "Dear Abby" letter:

A dear friend of mine, who happened to be an elderly lady, gave me a beautiful Oriental urn. She was in good health and by no means senile when she gave it to me.

Since her death last week, a daughter-in-law called, asking that I return the urn because "it had been promised to someone in the family." She also suggested that her mother-in-law was not in her right mind when she gave it to me.

I was very hurt to be asked for something that I know was given to me out of love and generosity. I like the urn and want to keep it. I have asked several other people what they would do in this case, and they say, "Keep it."

I need your opinion before making a decision. Thank you.—Ohioan

DEAR OHIOAN: I vote to keep it.

DEAR ABBY: My husband has the classic answer to those overly smug parents of children of both sexes.

We were already the proud parents of three fine daughters when I gave birth to a fourth daughter.

Many people came to my husband, expressing sympathy because he had no sons.

My husband's reply to them was: "If the good Lord thought another man was needed in my house, He would have sent him."—Satisfied Mother.

DEAR ABBY: Isn't it true that animals (especially dogs and cats) have a sixth sense when it comes to telling who likes them and who doesn't?

I mean, it's possible for people to deceive other people about things like that, but you can never fool an animal, right?—Animal Lover.

DEAR LOVER: Wrong! I know a man who strongly dislikes both dogs and cats, but they are drawn to him as moths are to a flame. I know that his show of affection for animals is only an act, but he fools all the pets all of the time!

Because PETE'S HAIR WAS OILY . . .
I selected RK Deep Cleansing Shampoo, leaving the second application in the hair for three minutes for full conditioning benefits. TRICHOANALYSIS had shown Pete's hair required an RK Power Pak. Twenty minutes after application I rinsed Pete's hair and slightly shampooed to remove the residue. The condition was noticeably improved. Much of its sheen and softness had returned. Then I sprayed his hair with Thermate. Though developed primarily for heat styling, I find it to be a handy cutting aid. Thermate's conditioners tighten the cuticle and reduce snarls and tangles. When finished, the style showed volume and natural movement. All Pete has to do is shampoo, lightly towel dry, brush into place and let his dry naturally. Add a touch of RK Protein Hairdressing Spray and he's ready to go!

TORONTO, June 26th — The best 20 minutes of the day! The next time you sit down for coffee, give your feet a break, too. After all your feet do for you, shouldn't you do something nice for them? In the time it takes to sip a cup of coffee you can treat them to Dr. Scholl's Soap'n Soak . . . a special foot bath formula that soothes tired, aching feet. Just dissolve pleasantly-scented, deodorizing Soap'n Soak powder in warm water to soak away aches, soften corns, callouses and dry skin. The '20 minute coffee and Soap'n Soak break' . . . gives you a totally relaxed feeling all over! Dr. Scholl's Soap'n Soak . . . at better stores everywhere.
HOW WE LOOK FORWARD TO OUR CANADIAN SUMMERS! And even though we know hot weather can play havoc with dietary habits, we still over-indulge our taste for luscious fruits and vegetables. Which often leads to a session of nausea and diarrhea. This is why I always have DR. FOWLER'S EXTRACT OF WILD STRAWBERRY on hand at all times. Pleasant-tasting Dr. Fowler's . . . formulated from roots and herbs . . . relieves nausea and cramps and restores intestinal balance. Soothing and settling for adults and children, Dr. Fowler's works quickly and is non-constipating. Be sure to have Dr. Fowler's Extract on hand all summer.
IF YOU'RE CONCERNED ABOUT CALORIES . . . but don't want to give up sweets . . . here are glad tidings! E. D. Smith's Diet Products not only satisfy your sweet tooth — but help you keep slim at the same time. E. D. Smith's maple-flavoured Diet Syrup and their 12 fruit spreads have only 6.1 calories per teaspoon — compared to 16.6 calories in a teaspoon of regular pure jam. Good news, too, for diabetics . . . there's no sugar added to any of them — so they're perfect for sugar-restricted diets. Try the Raspberry, Strawberry or Cherry flavours — you may never want to give them up!

GE Microwave Oven Warning

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd. asked Wednesday that owners of models J896002 and J896003 Versatronic oven-range microwave units not to use microwave functions until they can be checked for possible radiation leakage.

The announcement came after the United States Food and Drug Administration advised 12,500 owners of General Electric microwave ovens to discontinue use of them until they are inspected for excessive radiation leakage.

Brian Blacklock, marketing manager of Canadian General Electric, said only 60 of the units were imported into Canada.

He said these units were rewired and tested for leakage to meet federal standards and requirements of Canadian Standards Association.

He said the company has received some warranty cards from people who purchased the units, but asked that all owners contact the nearest company's consumer product service office.

The unit's surface elements and the conventional oven still may be used, he said.

Cello, Piano Recital

A recital of music for cello and piano will be given tonight at 8 at Craigdarroch Castle.

The recitalists are Rolf Gilstein, cello, and Sandra Hunt, piano.

Gilstein recently won the provincial championship for strings at the B.C. Music Festival competitions held at University of B.C. As a result he will proceed to the National Festival held in Toronto in August.

He was also winner of the Open Performance class, achieving a mark of 97 in the Victoria Music Festival in April.

Music to be performed will include works by Boccherini, Schumann and Dvorak.

There is no charge for the recital but donations may be made to the Conservatory of Music bursary-scholarship fund.

RCA XL-100 Performance:

come in and see why the 1976 Summer Olympics selected it!

Ever since we introduced the RCA XL-100, we've been asking experts to rate it for us—people like professional TV cameramen and Canadian TV directors. It was only natural, then, that when the Organizing Committee of the 1976 Olympic Games decided they'd need 3500 on-site color sets for world TV and press coverage, we asked them to take a long, hard look at what the RCA XL-100 offers.

They did—and it turned out that the RCA XL-100 met their needs for color quality and reliability.

So here we are—the one and only official Color TV of the 1976 Summer Olympics. And there you are—with another pretty convincing reason to see your RCA dealer today.

New City Revue Satirizes Militarism

A revue-type performance satirizing militarism and authoritarian figures will be the first summer production in the Springridge Theatre at Fernwood and Gladstone.

It opens there under the cryptic title, War, Friday at 8 p.m. It is a production of the One World Revue Company, a group of eight young actors and writers.

Original material and some established scripts will be used including poetry by Bertholt Brecht and Pablo Neruda.

The One World Company is funded by an Opportunity for Youth grant to perform social and political theatre throughout the summer, indoors and out. Its outdoor entertainments take the form of a revue in Centennial Square performed Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays between 12:30 p.m. and 1:30 p.m, and children's theatre in the Beacon Hill Park bandshell on Sundays at 1 p.m.

Springridge Theatre was converted from a church by Cool-Aid and the company hopes to contribute to development of the local scene by bringing the theatre into play as a recognized facility.

Tickets for the Springridge production will be available at the door. All outdoor shows are free.

Wide Range of Courses Set

Fencing, insects, color photographs and the metric system are among the topics offered this summer in Camosun College community education courses.

The college is offering 32 courses for children and adults, with fees ranging from $5 to $30.

Fencing for children aged 10 to 16 will be taught by Heather MacDougal Tuesday and Thursday mornings from 10 to 11:30 for five weeks starting July 8 at Uplands elementary school.

John Bentley will give instruction in making professional quality color prints from color negatives for the amateur working at home with the minimum of equipment and expense.

This course starts July 8 and runs for five weeks on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 7 to 10 p.m. on the Lansdowne campus.

Bugs 'N Things, a course for children aged 9 to 12, will introduce youngsters to the microscopic world and instruments needed to examine it. Insects, minute sea life and plants will be explored in trips to ponds, the seashore and the forest.

This week-long program will be offered starting July 7 and again on July 14, 21 and 28. Sessions will be held Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 9:30 to 11;30 a.m.

A week-long course on the metric system for consumers will start July 7 at the Lansdowne campus, with teacher Ken Strong.

Sessions are Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 9:30 a.m. till noon.

Other new courses are in clay modelling and sculpture, contemporary dancing, basic canoe handling, conservation and outdoor recreation, and perceptual training for children 7 to 10 years old.

For more information, call Camosun College, 592-1281, local 221.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 40-month term in the penitentiary was ordered by Judge Fred Green in Victoria provincial court Wednesday for a 34-year-old non-heroin user charged with possession of heroin for the purpose of trafficking.

William Garth Mathews, of Vancouver, was charged June 30, 1972, and following preliminary hearing Aug. 31, 1972, was committed for trial by judge and jury Oct. 10 of the same year.

But Mathews never appeared for trial.

Federal drug prosecutor Derek Finall said Mathews was finally arrested early in May in Vancouver on another offence and a different name. He was identified by a fingerprint check.

Mathews was brought back to Victoria and pleaded guilty May 27.

"This is not a case of an addict supporting his own use by selling heroin but a man trafficking as a commercial enterprise . . . I suggest a lengthy jail sentence to impress upon him the gravity of the offence," Finall said.

Finall said police had Mathews and a known heroin user under observation at the Hillside Shopping Plaza on June 30, 1972. He said they saw the addict hand Mathews a wad of money and pick something up from the ground.

Mathews then drove off, with police following. They saw him park the car at a grocery store on Cedar Hill, followed him in and searched him.

A balloon was found in Mathews' mouth, containing 12 caps of heroin. A total of $1,200 was also found in Mathews' possession.

Francis Joseph John, whose case defence lawyer David Wilson called "one of the saddest ever before the court," was sentenced to 14 months in jail and placed on two years' probation.

John, of 525 Johnson, whose criminal record goes back 23 years and includes 22 convictions for which he received a total of 22½ years in prison, pleaded guilty May 14 to two charges of breaking and entering and theft.

While on mandatory supervision, John had stolen $18 in coins from the Nut House, 718 Yates, May 3, and $687.85 worth of drafting equipment from Island Blueprint, 1125 Blanshard, April 20.

Wilson said John committed the offences to be recommitted to prison because of his inability to cope in society.

John has been institutionalized since the age of 10, Wilson said. He was released from a boys' reform school at age 18 but the longest period he managed to stay out of prison since then was three months.

★ ★ ★

"How can he be expected to cope in society when he has never had the opportunity to learn?" asked Wilson.

Green said the case is unusual but felt there must be some balance between the protection of society and John's rehabilitation.

John has another 279 days yet to serve on his previous conviction.

Four men, charged with damaging 17 highway signs, were fined a total of $1,000.

Prosecutor Peter Birkett said Colwood RCMP received a call Monday evening about a pickup truck on Happy Valley Road knocking down street signs. Shortly after, another call was received about a smiliar incident on Lagoon Road.

"Police found stop signs, speed zone signs, railway crossing signs, signs of one kind or another, knocked down or damaged," Birkett said.

All four pleaded guilty.

The only explanation the court received was from Anderson who said Wilson had just returned to Victoria and they decided to have a "rowdy time."

Judge Douglas Campbell said if it were not that a jail term might jeopardize the men's jobs, one would have been imposed.

"But you now have a criminal history and if this type of behavior is repeated, you will not have the benefit of a fine," Campbell said.

Judge Harold Alder sentenced two men to 14 days in jail, to be served on weekends, after they pleaded guilty to separate charges of impaired driving.

The men, both second-time offenders, were 70-year-old Cecil Montgomery, of 186 Joseph, and Richard Daniel Ryser, 22, of 741 Daffodil. Montgomery was prohibited from driving for six months and Ryser for three.

★ ★ ★

Judge Fred Green on Tuesday granted a conditional discharge to Douglas Ernest Portridge, 19, of Sooke, with eight months probation as the condition.

Partridge pleaded guilty May 27 to three counts of breaking and entering and theft. The charge was laid after items worth about $550 were stolen May 2 and 3 from a cabin, trailer and house in the Sooke area.

David Wayne Maskell 18 of New Westminster, who pleaded guilty to theft and possession over $200, was fined $700 and placed on two years probation.

Police said on Jan. 21, Maskell entered Little Gallery, 725 Yates, and stole a purse from the rear closet of the store. The purse contained $484.70 in cheques, $163.37 in cash and several credit cards.

Maskell was chased down Yates by a female employee of the store. Police were called and he was arrested in the 800-block Fort.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

When today's deal was played in the 1975 World Championships, in the match between Italy, the ultimate winners, and the United States, the Italian pair of Benito Garozzo and Giorgio Belladonna arrived at an excellent minor-suit game contract. The outcome hinged on guesswork by both declarer and the defenders. Both sides vulnerable. East deals.

Opening lead: Jack of ♠.

After Belladonna's one no-trump opening bid (13-15 points), Garozzo's two-club call was the initiation of the Stayman Convention. When Garozzo subsequently cue-bid hearts, the opponents' bid suit, he was commanding his partner to bid whatever four-card (or longer) suit the latter possessed.

Belladonna won the opening spade lead with his ace, after which he guessed to lead a low trump and finesse dummy's ten. When the ten won the trick, the contract was now there for the taking by drawing trumps and then leading a club and driving out the defenders' ace. Declarer's only losers would now be a heart and a club.

But Belladonna was worried that West might possess four trumps, and that if all the trumps were drawn immediately, he would lose control of the hand. So he tried to establish clubs first. At trick three he led a low club off dummy.

East ruffed this lead with his eight of trumps. At this point the defenders had it in their power to defeat the contract. All East had to do was to cash a top heart and wait for West to take his ace of clubs, for the setting trick.

But East didn't know that West had the ace of clubs. He thought that South was the possessor of this key card; and, hence, that the defenders would make no high-card tricks in clubs. So, in a desperate attempt to put his partner into the lead for the latter to return a club for East to trump, East underled his ace and king of hearts, hoping that his partner possessed the queen!

It will be resumed as soon as we get it so, until then, don't walk under any ladders and watch out for black cats.

U.S.S.R. to Try Sex Education

MOSCOW (AP) — Concerned by increasing social problems connected with sex—including illegitimate pregnancies, soaring abortion rates and sex crimes—the Soviet Union is inaugurating sex education programs in its schools.

The programs, conservative by Western standards, have not been publicized and exist only in a few cities.

But their introduction is considered revolutionary here since they mark the first systematized attempts to instruct young people about a subject which, for the most part, is still off limits in their society.

The small number of youngsters who are given the opportunity to learn about sex in school seem to welcome the chance.

"They're very curious about the problems of love," says Dr. Lydia Bogdanovich, head of Moscow's Laboratory of Problems of Sex Education.

The laboratory, in operation since 1970, sponsors the sex education programs, puts out articles and pamphlets for youths, parents and teachers, and conducts research on sexual questions regarding young people.

A survey published in a sex education book for parents and teachers, co-authored by Dr. Bogdanovich, says that 77 per cent of Soviet young people got their first information about sex from friends and acquaintances.

"When youths start to show interest in questions of sex, those who should be the first ones to help them—parents, teachers and doctors—remain aloof, not knowing how to give correct answers to the questions," the book says.

"Unfortunately, we still believe that it is considered bad manners to talk about sex, trying to hide very natural things that worry the young generation."

In a poll of 500 high school pupils, 52.4 per cent of the boys and 36 per cent of the girls saw nothing wrong with premarital sex.

Dr. Bogdanovich and other Soviet sexologists maintain they are aware of what is going on and are not happy about it, but want teen-agers to fully understand what they're doing before they start their sexual experiences.

"Our sex education differs from that of the West in that the West is concerned more with specific problems of sex as it is—information on what age to start sexual activities, contraceptives, etc.

"We are concerned with sex as it should be—with the formation of ethical notions and a correct moral outlook."

Soviet teen-agers are urged to refrain from sex until their early 20s and only when they are married. They are given stern warnings about the consequences of an early sex life.

Dr. Bogdanovich's book says early sex can lead to "weakening sexual desire, dissatisfaction, bad feelings, physical weakness" and eventually "a whole breakdown of the endocrinological system."

But Dr. Bogdanovich insists that the laboratory's sex education programs, although issuing warnings, encourage students to make up their own minds.

"We gather senior classes—ages 13-15—together in the schools and let them talk openly. The discussions are absolutely frank, on different subjects," she said.

8 CARD OF THANKS

We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks and sincere appreciation to all of our relatives, friends and neighbours for their kindnesses and expressions of sympathy given in person, by cards and floral tributes, in the recent loss of a dear son and brother. Though special thanks are deserving of many we will forebear to mention them here but one. To you, Mr. Robert Hampton, a special thank you for conducting the service, for your compassion and personal interest in our well being.
— Ardean "Al" and Ruth Albertson and Family.

9 IN MEMORIAM

FIELDING — Treasured memories of my dearly beloved husband and our devoted dad — Stanley Wayne Fielding, Master Mariner, who died June 26, 1973.
"The love we shared is ever ours"
Ever close in our hearts and thoughts.
—"Kate", Tannie-Lee, Laura Beth and Butch.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD, AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD, AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN. AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
—WITH GRATITUDE, SANDS.

Shelter from Sun, Wind Needed

As we continue succession sowings of salad vegetables, peas and beans, carrots, beet, and spinach, together with the transplanting of lettuce and cabbage, we discover the need for some form of shelter from sun and wind.

Some will argue this kind of coddling was never used back on the farm, but it must be remembered that farm crops are grown for a purpose quite different from home garden crops.

Farm crops are usually well advanced by now and able to take care of themselves and a little setback from dry conditions may not have much effect. But in the home garden our main desire is to produce a small steady supply of the things we need over as long a period as possible, using them while young and tasty instead of leaving them to become tough enough for shipping or storage.

Since we are sowing small amounts frequently for a continuous supply, any setback can disrupt a carefully planned schedule, so we try to prevent conditions that could cause a delay.

As we enter the warmer summer months, there are three things working against our carefully laid plans; rapid evaporation of moisture from the soil surface, drying winds, and long hours of sunshine.

Anything we can do to hold surface moisture around seeds, prevent cool but reasonably strong air currents from dehydrating transplants, and reduce the heat of the sun on seed rows and transplants, enables us to maintain the planned schedule.

To preserve surface moisture on newly sown seeds we can use boards or cardboard as a cover, but we soon have another problem. Insects collect in the damp cool atmosphere under the cover and devour the seedlings as fast as they push through the soil.

This problem can be avoided by supporting a protective baffle on the sunny side of the rows to cast a shadow rather than make a close covering.

For this purpose I have long used old discarded shiplap, always keeping a supply on hand so that windbreaks, sun shelters, or movable frames, can be made up at any time.

Wooden pegs pushed into the soil on one side of a seed row, and a piece of shiplap leaning on the pegs from the sunny side, is an ideal shelter. East and west sun can reach the rows of seed, but the hot mid-day and afternoon sun is prevented from drying the surface.

The same arrangement works wonders on new transplants and is only needed for three or four days until the new roots are fully active.

We shall need several of these temporary shelters for our mid-July sowings and it would be wise to look around for suitable material now before the rush.

Sheets of cardboard can be used if placed between double stakes to prevent displacement by wind. Discarded strips of three-ply can be used in the same way.

Even strips of canvas or sacking (burlap), attached to stakes and held down with soil, can be pressed into use providing the garden is not too exposed to wind. Unfortunately, plastic, the most readily available screening material today, is not recommended because it does not keep out the heat nor provide sufficient shadow.

If you can manage to get some discarded shiplap it is wise to pick up enough for one or two small portable coldframes wide enough to set over adjacent rows of tender vegetables to protect from late fall frosts, or to bring along a late sowing to usable size.

A little protection of this kind can extend the producing season by several weeks both spring and fall, and often saves many dollars on the food budget.

Admittedly, it is commendable to keep the place tidy by burning all scrap lumber and cartons, but the prudent gardener has a few boards and flattened cartons stacked away for emergency use against sun, wind, frost or rain.

Contract Cancelled

Transport Minister Bob Strachan has ordered Air Canada in Vancouver to cancel its contract with a local baggage delivery service because it is operating illegally.

Strachan told the house Wednesday Perimeter Transport, a firm that makes baggage deliveries between the airport and residences, is operating illegally because it lacks a permit from the motor carriers branch.

The issue was raised Tuesday by Oak Bay Tory Scott Wallace who claimed the firm, awarded the Air Canada contract in February, was not legally authorized.

Strachan said Wallace's information was correct and Air Canada has been ordered "to immediately get a legal carrier.

Perimeter, he said, has an application for a permit before the motor carriers branch.

She's Ashamed to Be a Canadian

By SHEILA BRADY
Special to the Times

MEXICO CITY—Joan Laird, professor in the education department at the University of Toronto, and a woman who paid her own way to Mexico City to the International Women's Year conferences, is ashamed to be a Canadian.

"I came to this conference because I am a woman concerned about women but there are no concerns of women contained in this address. It is all government pap," she said.

"The issues of daycare, and population control and the right of a woman to assume control over her own body are not even mentioned," Laird said following the conference address by Coline Campbell, head of the Canadian delegation Wednesday.

"When I get home I will be enraged by this paper but tonight I feel ashamed to be a Canadian," she said.

"The only good things in the report is that the Canadian International Development Agency has accorded . . . more consideration to rural women in Third World countries," she said, "But it almost looks like an afterthought."

Laird also decried the lack of communication between the official Canadian delegation and the 40 non-government organization delegates attending the parallel, but independent, International Women's Year tribune.

"I deplore the lack of communication. It is shameful but it is far too late to have a meeting between the delegation and the tribune on Thursday when the conference ends next Friday."

"I was really hoping that we . . . and government women could sit down, talk and trust each other," she said.

"But now I will have to be more distrustful of the government."

STUDENT WINS JAPAN TRIP

One B.C. Ticket Rides on Favorite

DUBLIN (CP) — Three Toronto residents and a fourth from Vancouver are in the running to win about $118,000 each in Saturday's running of the Irish Sweepstakes.

They hold tickets on Grundy, winner of the Epsom Derby and an early 11-to-8 favorite to capture the Irish Sweeps Derby at The Curragh.

RSK84911, Salesman, T. Sepp, Willowdale, Ont.; QHJ76441, Tammy, Keith Cain, Toronto; QHJ58824, Passover, Toronto; QME84579, Peter Gleng, Vancouver.

Three other Canadians hold tickets on King Pellinore, 11-to-2 favorite in the field of 16 horses declared for the race. Maitland and Sea Anchor, both carrying early lines of 7 and 1, each bear the hopes of four Canadians.

First prize is 50,000 pounds, second 20,000 pounds and third 10,000 pounds. Based on the current exchange rate, holders of tickets on the top three finishers will receive about $118,000, $47,200 and $23,600, respectively.

10 Rail Cars Produced

B.C. Rail's new rail car plant at Squamish has produced a total of 10 cars since it opened in March, Minister without Portfolio Alf Nunweiler said Wednesday.

Production rate is one car every two days and expectations are that rate will increase to three or four a day later this fall, Nunweiler told the legislature.

The plant, with 130 employees, is filling an order for 400 wood chips cars and expects a contract for 500 bulk head flats, Nunweiler said in answer to queries by Opposition leader Bill Bennett.

ANCIENT CURSE MYSTERY SOLVED

LONDON (Reuter) — An Irish doctor believes he has discovered the true cause of the legendary curse of the Pharaohs—bat droppings.

Dr. George Dean said the droppings probably were the cause of a mysterious infection which claimed the lives of several British, French and United States Egyptologists more than 50 years ago.

Dean says in the current edition of World Medicine magazine that the bat droppings appear to have caused the infection that killed Lord Carnarvon, who financed British archaeologist Howard Carter's search for the treasure of the boy King Tutankhamen.

He died mysteriously three weeks after the discovery.

Dr. Dean says that Arthur Mace, assistant director of the New York department of Egyptian antiquities, and George Benedite of the Louvre museum in Paris, who both visited the tomb and died suddenly, might have contracted the same disease.

Fly in the Weather Ointment

By PAUL SMURTHWAITE

JOHANNESBURG (Reuter) — A South African businessman is outdoing the witchdoctors at their own game. He appears to be able to produce rain at will.

The rainmaker, from Johannesburg, watched closely by squads of weather experts and government scientists, is upsetting a lot of plans by South Africans, who have come to regard certain months of the year as sure to be dry.

Even teams playing the hallowed game of rugby, normally accustomed to ground more like concrete than grass, are having to come to grips with the sort of conditions they might expect in wetter parts of the world.

The rainmaker is a 63-year-old professional man of apparent high standing in South Africa. His activities are known to the government's department of water affairs and to Sir Edward Teller, the British atomic scientist who watched an experiment here last year.

But the rainmaker wants to remain anonymous. According to the one South African journalist who has met him, he dislikes publicity and, as a religious man, is deeply concerned about tampering with nature.

The journalist, James Clarke of Johannesburg Star, has watched six experiments and on each occasion rain has fallen on the appointed day.

"Jutting from under it was a narrow exhaust under a nearby apricot tree, and on top of the garage, and on the roof of his house, was an array of scientific instruments put there by the department of water affairs.

"The man was going to make it rain on Thursday. Each of the days that followed dawned crisp and clear, including the Thursday. But at nine that night my house was shaken by a great roll of thunder," Clarke reported.

The rainmaker's method is to pump impurities into the air. As long as there is vapor in the atmosphere his apparatus can precipitate it into rain.

The South African government is understandably reluctant to say much on the subject of the rainmaker, except to acknowledge that they know who he is and what he is doing.

But there may be some significance in the fact that last year the minister for water affairs, S. P. Botha, had the Weather Modification Act repealed.

The act had only been on the statute books for two years and had banned any tampering with the weather.

Metchosin Gravel Operation Gearing

RIDING THE RAILS has a new meaning for Paul Moudy of Adrian, Mo. Adapted bicycle is powered by an old washing-machine motor (right) and the outrigger at left goes over to the other rail. Moudy says his only problem comes from the occasional freight train.

Test runs are planned in August for the new $10 million sand and gravel processing plant on Metchosin Road, company officials said today.

The new plant is rated at 1,100 tons per hour and is expected to produce about 3 million tons of specification aggregate per year. Shipments will be mainly by barge to Victoria and Vancouver with no increase in truck traffic on Metchosin Road.

"Cost escalation has been a major concern since the project was initiated over three years ago," said general manager Tom Bethune.

"Rapidly rising construction costs in recent years mean we now have an expensive plant coming on stream at a time when the construction industry is slow, wage rates continue to climb and the government is planning new royalties to be levied on our industry — not an ideal situation."

After the gravel is extracted, the large terraced bowl, sloping to the Juan de Fuca Strait, has the potential for a residential subdivision, he said.

The company also has a $5 million gravel plant under construction near Port Mellon that will supply road base and asphalt blend aggregates to the Vancouver market. The Port Mellon plant is expected to be in operation in July.

There Was Permit For Demolition

There was nothing improper in the recent demolition of some shacks that were once used for improper activities, City Hall officials said today.

The buildings were single-storey lean-to structures clustered in a mid-block courtyard behind the 500-block Johnson, on property now being restored and redeveloped by Ald Sam Bawlf's Fort Victoria Properties Ltd.

Concern was expressed in some quarters Wednesday that the "bordello" sheds, a nostalgic reminder of Victoria's colorful past as a rip-roaring port, had been demolished without a permit.

But a spokesman for the city engineer's department said today the application for the permit was first submitted about six weeks ago, and it was somehow mislaid or delayed within City Hall so that the permit was only granted earlier this week.

Meanwhile, the contractor apparently thought everything was in order and proceeded with the demolition.

The brothel cabins were in derelict condition and not considered heritage structures, officials said.

He Stopped Digging

LEWISTON, Idaho (UPI) — Frank Rugg, Lewiston, thought he spotted a grave with the faded inscription "Lorraine C" while on a hike near an abandoned national guard rifle range here this week.

After returning to the site with a sheriff's deputy, Rugg shoveled his way up to his shoulders while the deputy studied the sign.

PRESSURE RESISTED

Saanich continues to resist pressure from the Victoria Home Builders' Association to create more lots in Gordon Head by reducing minimum size requirements.

VHBA spokesman Chris Pike told this week's meeting of the council's lands, planning and housing committee that lowering the minimum lot size from 8,400 square feet to 6,000 square feet would help ease the housing crisis and keep down costs of lots.

Ald. Roy Wootten disagreed. He said purchasers would not benefit from lower lot costs, only developers who would be able to create more lots. He said there were still plenty of vacant lots in Gordon Head.

Chairman Ald. Sandy Noel argued that people who wanted larger lots should be given an opportunity to have them.

The committee considered recommending that east Gordon Head and the McKenzie-Cedar Hill area have the minimum lot size reduced to 6,000 square feet but decided to delay such action. —

NANAIMO BUDGET $25M

NANAIMO (CP) — City council has adopted a $25.06 million budget, its first budget since the city was amalgamated with outlying areas Jan. 1.

The new budget is more than double last year's budget. The mill rate now is set at 102.7, up from 101.8 in 1974.

The budget provides two-per-cent tax increase for residents within the previous boundaries and a 15-per-cent increase for the newly-amalgamated sections.

Mayor Frank Ney said the tax increases were among the lowest of any major city in the province.

Cowling Leaves Pats

COWLING
. . . deep regrets

The man who has "worried and bragged" about the 3rd Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, for three years left the battalion this week.

Lt.-Col. Dick Cowling, who will command the infantry department of the Canadian forces' combat school in Gagetown, N.B., handed over command of the battalion to Lt.-Col. Greg Leitch in a ceremony at Work Point barracks.

He described Cowling as an excellent officer who had earned the respect of the battalion.

"He has worried about you and bragged about you," Neatby told the battalion.

In his last words to his men, Cowling spoke of the battalion's coming move to Cyprus:

"I deeply regret I won't be with you when you get there," he said, "Look after yourselves and look after each other."

Neatby said Leitch, who had served with the 1st Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles of Canada, at Work Point from 1964 to 1969, would be an able replacement for his predecessor.

Inquiry Glimpses Hostage Horror

VANCOUVER (CP) — The inquiry into the 41-hour ordeal at the British Columbia penitentiary got a glimpse Wednesday of the final events that led to the shooting of hostage Mary Steinhauser.

Fred Leech, assistant prison director in charge of security, said the unidentified leader of the prison's tactical squad that stormed the vault where the 15 hostages were being held shouted:

"Throw down your weapons and release the hostage."

Miss Steinhauser, 32, was fatally shot in the ensuing gunfire June 11, and prisoner Andy Bruce, 26, was injured.

Dwight Lucas, 20, Clare Wilson, 25, and Bruce had been holding 15 hostages and threatening them with knives since about 8 a.m. June 9.

The assistant director also said that apparently only Lucas used a pass to get into the classification area where the vault was located.

Tony Lewis, the guard on duty in the classification building, testified earlier that both Bruce and Lucas had passes.

The prisoners union committee was to present affidavits today from prisoners who heard and saw the events of June 11.

The committee, which includes prisoners, social workers, law students and church representatives, will also present prisoners' statements at a news conference, spokesman David Martin said.

The committee was not permitted to testify at the inquiry headed by Chief Justice John Farris of the B.C. Court of Appeal but was told it could present written evidence.

Leech said the prison previously and a system which allowed a prisoner to move about only with a guard but with so many requirements, expansion and programs today the system of having guards accompanying prisoners would not be effective.

POUND SLIDES

LONDON (AP) — The pound slid still further on the world's money markets today, reaching record lows against the dollar and other major currencies.

By mid-day, the pound was fetching only $2.2435 after opening at $2.2490.

Measured against currencies of 10 major trading partners, the pound's devaluation had reached 27.2 per cent, compared with its value of December, 1971. Wednesday night's figure was 26.8 per cent.

Behind the pound's weakness lay chronic economic troubles and fears among European currency operators that the Labor government may prove unable to control inflation, now running at an annual rate of 25 per cent.

A Supreme Court of Canada decision today upholding the right of Prince Edward Island to prohibit non-residents from owning more than 10 acres of land strengthens the hand of the British Columbia government to proceed with similar legislation, Resources Minister Bob Williams said today.

He said he and Attorney-General Alex Macdonald have had their departments carry out preliminary work "so we'll be prepared."

He declined to elaborate on what specific measures the provincial government might be considering.

Absentee ownership of land has definite negative effects on the economy in terms of the price of land and the supply available to Canadians, he said.

"Basically absentee ownership is not beneficial. It's far better to have people working their land and concerned about it."

Earlier Macdonald and Premier Dave Barrett said they wanted to wait for the Supreme Court verdict before proceeding with any similar legislation in British Columbia.

Today's decision was a unanimous verdict of the Supreme Court.

Chief Justice Bora Laskin, writing the reasons for the judgment on behalf of the full court, rejected arguments that Canadians in other provinces were discriminated against by the law.

He also turned down arguments that the law was not valid because it dealt with aliens, a subject entirely within the jurisdiction of the federal government.

"What we have in the present case is not any attempt to regulate or control alien residents of Prince Edward Island in what they may do or not do therein, but rather a limitation on landholding by non-residents," he said.

At issue was an action taken by Richard Morgan and Alan Jacobson, both of New York State, who sought to buy 30 acres of land on P.E.I.

All other nine provinces presented arguments on the side of P.E.I. while the federal government lined up on the other side, claiming control of aliens was solely a federal matter.

"Absentee ownership of land in a province is a matter of legitimate provincial concern and in the case of Prince Edward Island, history adds force to this aspect of its authority over its territory."

British Columbia Deputy Attorney General David Vickers said today's decision by the Supreme Court will become the leading decision in Canadian constitutional law on the land ownership question.

He said his department is preparing a wide range of op-

Gandhi Jails Foes

Times News Services

NEW DELHI, India — Prime Mininster Indira Gandhi proclaimed a state of emergency in India today and her government arrested 676 political opponents and arrests were continuing in an attempt to ward off a nation-wide civil disobedience campaign against her refusal to resign.

A government spokesman said arrests were made in nine of the country's 21 states in the first 12 hours of the emergency decree.

This morning, communications between New Delhi and the outside world have been cut. There was no indication of when they would be re-established.

The last United Press story to be received said the decree declaring the state of emergency provided for censorship of outgoing news dispatches. There was no indication whether that story actually had been censored.

Proclamation of the state of emergency gave the government power to arrest persons at will and to hold them in prison indefinitely without trial.

Gandhi said she hoped the situation would improve soon so that the decree could be lifted, but she gave no indication how long it might remain in force.

States of emergency were declared in India in the past only in time of war—in 1962, during fighting with China and in December, 1971, at the start of the war with Pakistan over Bangladesh.

The 1971 proclamation, directed against external aggression, still is in force and Gandhi repeatedly has rejected opposition demands that she lift it, arguing the country was still threatened from abroad.

Although most of those arrested were reported to be members of the four non-Communist parties that have led the demand for Gandhi's resignation, the dragnet also pulled in Jyoti Basu of the ultra-led Marxist Communist party.

The pro-Moscow Communist party has long been one of Gandhi's bulwarks, and its support has not wavered in the current crisis.

The government radio in its regular 1 p.m. newscast said:

"Some preventive arrests have been made in various places. Constant vigilance and alertness is being maintained throughout the country. The law and order machinery will ensure that peace is not dis-

UFAWU VOTES TO STRIKE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Shoreworkers and tendermen, members of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union, have voted heavily in favor of strike action against British Columbia fishing companies, a union spokesman said Wednesday.

The 600 tendermen voted 91 per cent and the 3,500 shoreworkers voted 90 per cent to strike should contract talks bog down.

The tendermen want a $30-a-day increase on their current rate of $65 while the shoreworkers have asked for a $2-an-hour increase on their base rate of $4.76.

Salmon net fishermen, also members of the UFAW, are also taking a strike vote.

Amin Tells 700 Britons Not to Fear

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — Ugandan President Idi Amin has told the 700 Britons living in his nation they will not be affected by the death sentence imposed on British lecturer Dennis Hills for treason, Radio Uganda said today.

The radio quoted Amin as saying the British subjects were free to stay on in Uganda. There have been fears that Amin might use the Britons as hostages in the diplomatic manoeuvering concerning Hills.

Amin has insisted that Hills will be executed by a firing squad July 4 unless British Foreign Secretary James Callaghan comes to Uganda. Hills was charged with treason for calling Amin a "village tyrant" in an unpublished manuscript.

British Prime Minister Harold Wilson said earlier in a message to Amin that the foreign secretary was prepared to go to Kampala once Amin reprieved Hills.

The radio also said that Hills has written two letters to Amin but that the letters would be disclosed only to Callaghan.

MERCHANT BANK BACKS REFINERY

LONDON (CP) — Hill Samuel and Co., a giant merchant banking house, is proposing to help finance British Columbia's planned $350-million oil refinery, sources said Wednesday.

John Macdonell, managing director of Hill Samuel Project Finance Ltd. — a subsidiary of the bank — confirmed that "we have made proposals" to the province-owned British Columbia Petroleum Corp. (BCPC).

Provincial Premier David Barrett announced Tuesday that the province had signed a letter of intent naming Sim-Chem Ltd. as the prime contractor for the refinery.

The Simon Engineering Group — including Sim-Chem — are clients of Hill Samuel, sources said.

Barrett and his officials have kept tight-lipped about their financing plans for the refinery, which would be the province's biggest.

Banking sources said British participation in the refinery could reach $180 million.

FORD HEDGES ON N-BOMB USE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has made it clear he does not feel bound by the policies of past administrations that forbid the first strike use of nuclear weapons to protect the national interest.

Instead, the president refused to either rule out or endorse the use of nuclear weapons and said he would follow a policy of maximum flexibility" in the event of war.

Ford was asked four questions during his news conference Wednesday about the possible use of nuclear force, and in each response he emphasized that his decision would be based on the circumstances.

"I don't think it's appropriate for me to discuss in a press conference what our utilization will be of our tactical or strategic weapons," Ford said. "This is a matter that has to be determined if an when there are any requirements for our national interests."

Ford's predecessors ruled out the option of using nuclear weapons as an offensive weapon rather than a deterrent.

Kidnap Victim's Family Waits

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP) — The family of Mrs. Conrad Blanchet is awaiting further word from kidnappers holding the 63-year-old woman for a $1 million ransom.

Mrs. Blanchet, wife of a wealthy industrialist, was abducted Tuesday from her home in Rock Forest, 15 miles east of here.

Quebec Provincial Police have confirmed the kidnapping but have refused to provide further details because of demands made by the kidnappers that the family not inform the news media of the abduction.

However, sources said Wednesday that 38-year-old Gaston Blanchet had been telephoned three times by the kidnappers demanding payment of $1 million in $20 notes in return for the freedom of his mother.

The sources said that during the latest call, at 11:30 a.m. EDT Wednesday, Mr. Blanchet told the kidnappers that the family had been able to raise $50,000 in bills of the required denomination.

Family members, meanwhile, had expressed concern about Mrs. Blanchet's health because she requires daily medication to treat a heart condition.

Sources said Mrs. Blanchet was sitting alone beside the swimming pool in the grounds of the large split-level house when several men approached her.

She fled into the house where the kidnappers captured her.

NEWS BRIEFS

Two Mills Close

VANCOUVER (CP) — Three British Columbia pulp mills announced Wednesday they will curtail production this summer because of depressed markets for pulp and paper. Prince George Pulp and Paper Ltd. and Intercontinental Pulp Co. Ltd. will close for three weeks from Aug. 11 to Sept. 2, affecting 700 employees. A reduction by 50 per cent of output from Eurocan Pulp and Paper Ltd. during July was announced Wednesday by president Erik V. Olander.

Big N-Blast

MERCURY, Nev. (AP)—A nuclear device 10 times more powerful than the bomb that levelled Hiroshima in the Second World War was detonated beneath the Nevada test site early today. The blast was felt in Las Vegas, about 90 miles to the south. There were no immediate reports of damage there.

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — Five miners were killed, 11 injured and 12 missing after a rockfall early today in the East Driefontein gold mine, 30 miles from Johannesburg. Gold Fields of South Africa, which administers the mine, said the fall occurred about 10,500 feet down in the No. 1 shaft.

NDP Breaks Ranks Over Code Changes

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

Three NDP backbenchers broke ranks Wednesday and opposed Labor Minister Bill King's Labor Code amendments granting more powers to the Labor Relations Board in settling labor-management disputes.

Colin Gabelmann (North Vancouver-Seymour), Harold Steves (Richmond) and Rosemary Brown (Vancouver-Burrard) said they opposed second reading of the bill because it would lead to a more legalistic approach by the board in industrial relations problems. The amendments were later approved in principle.

Gabelmann said the New Democratic Party government believed that labor relations disputes should be removed from the courts but the presence of many lawyers on the LRB "leads back into the court system."

He said the amendments suggest that lawyers on the LRB do not feel they have enough power to police labor-management relations.

The result of the legislation will be decisions that are not based on a solution acceptable to both parties but on the idea that the proper legal way of doing things is of prime importance.

Gabelmann said labor disputes should be dealt with on an ad hoc basis with both parties presenting their case to a body which is sensitive to their interests.

Gabelmann said added powers proposed for the board are "a mistake that will lead us down the road to more mistakes."

"My fear is that these amendments . . . will lead to a situation where both management and union will be leery of the board, avoiding it

Six Inches of Rain Swamps Regina

By The Canadian Press

Regina is mopping up today after severe thunderstorms dumped up to six inches of rain on the area in a four-hour period Wednesday night, but residents are nervously watching the skies as more of the same is expected.

Storm sewers, unable to handle the volume of water, started backing up about two hours after the start of the storm, which set a new record for rainfall in a 24-hour period. The previous record was 3.24 inches in June 21, 1965.

The storm brought lightning, hail, downpours and tornados across Saskatchewan and Alberta Wednesday night.

This morning, officials shut down the Regina transit system as many main traffic arteries were clogged with water. Motorists were being advised to proceed with caution because of the danger of deep water-filled holes in the streets.

The Regina weather office posted tornado warnings Wednesday night for the Regina, Weyburn, Yorkton regions. The warning ended this morning but forecasters called for thunderstorms to develop again late this afternoon with more strong winds and heavy rainfall.

In west-central Alberta, a hailstorm which started at Caroline during the supper hour, cut a swath between 25 and 30 miles wide through the Red Deer area, causing extensive damage.

'First Steak in Five Years'

COURTENAY — Old people come into his store and order half a pound of hamburger "and a bone for my dog," says Courtenay butcher Bill Wheten.

"I know they don't have a dog."

Senior citizens are the "forgotten people" so he decided to do something about it.

Each Tuesday evening, from 6:30 to 9 p.m., his store, Central Meats at 491 Fifth St., is open for people 65 and over to buy up to $6 worth of meat at cost plus freight.

For them, ground round steak, normally $1.69 a pound, is 89 cents, T-bone steaks, usually $2.89 a pound, are $1.89 and bacon, regularly $1.49, is $1.09.

Tuesday evening this week was the first such opening and Wheten said today he was awed and overwhelmed by results.

With the store manned by volunteers, including some of his staff, there were 150 customers in the first 35 minutes.

All told there were about 265 customers ("we lost count") and about $800 worth of meat was sold.

Wheten, 35, who has operated his store since January, said one woman has organized a car pool for the senior citizen customers, picking them up and taking them home from as far as Cumberland, 10 miles away.

That sort of move seems to have amazed him more than anything else.

"In this day and age you're almost taught that everyone is out to screw everyone else. It's not true.

Wheten said he has no particular future plans for the project.

It will last, he says, until prices drop or the government can see its way clear to doing something more for pensioners.

"But I have no bitch against the government. We tend to blame governments. It's time we as individuals started to help. We could make this a far better province if each of us started to do something."

A Room Full of Plastic Does Not Make a Home

* * *

Item: Spent the night, by necessity, in one of our town's newest motels on the Gorge Road and it was a creepy experience.

Almost everything in this place is made of plastic—the lamps, the tables, the oval sink in the bathroom, the john, the tub—all coldly gleaming in their prefabricated perfection. The over-all effect is like being in an ultra modern morgue, as antiseptic and as frigid as any resting place on earth. I looked in vain for even one object that might seem solid or made for comfort or beauty.

I'd not have reacted this way, I suppose, if I hadn't been visiting friends earlier in the old wing of The Empress with its massive, gracious furniture and ancient paintings. It was like going from an old, baronial home to the freezing compartment of a refrigerator.

* * *

Item: Very flattered today to receive a Certificate of Merit from the Media Club of Canada, but I can't help wondering if maybe there isn't just a teeny bit of female chauvinism in the awards.

The Media Club, I gather, is the successor to the Canadian Women's Press Club. Could just be that that has something to do with the fact that the awards list contains the names of no less than 11 women writers and broadcasters and only three males, though all but one category is open to both sexes. In every case the first prize winners are women, while the men bring up the rear.

I'm not complaining, of course. Just wondering.

* * *

Item: Grand news today, though I cannot find it in any of the papers, that the British-French supersonic air transport, Concorde, will go into commercial service this year.

The Americans have yet to give approval for a landing at New York, which will probably delay the three-hour trans-Atlantic service, but British Airways will use the beautiful bird for passenger service to Bahrain, in the Persian Gulf. Air France, in turn, will fly the Concorde on a regular schedule from Paris to Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo via Dakar. Later the British will have a supersonic service to Singapore and Melbourne, linking the United Kingdom and Australia in under 14 hours, a new dimension in commercial aviation.

Concorde, when it goes into service, will be the most tested and proven airliner ever to enter passenger service.

I've said it before and I'll say it again: When Air Canada took itself off the priority list for the supersonic and faint-hearted Canadian Pacific backed off from any participation whatever it was a black day for aviation in this country. In long range travel, which both lines operate, the present-day jet is like a Model T compared with Concorde.

* * *

Item: A first-rate piece on Rosemary Brown by Lisa Hobbs in the July Chatelaine and though I fear she is to be defeated in her bid for the NDP leadership it confirms my impression that she's a remarkable woman.

One of Rosemary's problems has been to reconcile her private life—married to a well-to-do psychiatrist, the owner of a large, affluent home in Point Grey and properties in the Gulf Islands, holder of a portfolio of blue-chip stocks—with her public life as an avowed socialist on the left wing of her party.

Says Rosemary: "To pretend we can't afford to live well would be hypocritical and ridiculous."

And Lisa concludes: "There appeared to be, however, a trace of discomfort. As there could be no questioning of Brown's total socialist commitment by anyone who knew her well, we talked about this and what emerges in her view as a very personal problem. For black children in a white society, wealth is a great buffer from radical hurt. It was my impression that it was mainly in these terms that Brown sees her material holdings as having great value."

It's an odd thing that both—her desire for that financial security and for a political philosophy that might wipe it out—are strangely compatible.

* * *

Item: To a certain seafood restaurant tonight with Eastern friends who were enchanted with the old home in which the place is housed and all but heart-broken with the repast that eventually came our way. I suppose I have had worse dinners—oh, I know I have, having spent five years in uniform—but I've never had one quite so awful in a restaurant.

It does seem almost a rule that you can never find an eating place in which both the atmosphere and the cuisine are first rate, though you often find one without the other. In this case, like the Princess Mary, everything that could pass as local fare—oysters, scallops, halibut and salmon—had been deep-frozen, almost a sure way to ruin anything that comes from the sea. What thawing didn't do, the chef handled nicely.

One day, I predict, we'll have a seafood restaurant that will serve nothing but the delicacies that have come fresh from the briny and it will make a mint. Yet, sad to say, this place was jammed, mainly with tourists, and I suppose that so long as it is, what happens in the kitchen hardly matters.

C. Saanich Won't Bite On 'Carrot'

A proposal by Saanich alderman Sandy Noel that the Greater Victoria Water Board pay for a two-mile water main to supply the Saanich Peninsula was called "a big carrot" today.

Central Saanich's water committee chairman Ald. David Hill said he would recommend that Noel's proposal be rejected.

"We would have to buy our way in,." Hill said, "And as soon as we become a member we're hooked. It's kind of like a big carrot."

Noel said he would recommend that the water board pay $120,000 to install a 12-inch water main from about one mile south of Elk-Beaver Lake to connect with the pumping station on the west side of the lake.

Saanich says Elk Lake water which Central Saanich pumps for peninsula use, is dangerously low, threatening recreation use of the lake and the Colquitz system which the lake feeds.

"The boys on the water board are dubbed in the role of the bad guys," Noel said today. "It's my intent to show good faith on the part of the water board.

"This would be an interim measure that would have a dual purpose. It would increase recreation provisions on Elk Lake, help Colquitz, and provide people on the peninsula with chlorinated water from Sooke Lake."

Hill said Central Saanich had never lowered the level of Elk Lake more than a foot a year, had water rights allowing them to pump 1,300,000 gallons a day but never pumped this amount for more than one week during a summer.

Before he would recommend joining the water board, Hill said he wanted full studies carried out that could lead to a much more economical source of water supply.

"Consultants and geologists have told us we have enough pottable water from subterranean sources to supply 100,000 people on the peninsula. I would want full studies carried out before we joined the water board," he said.

"We might have to put out $200,000 (in studies) and it's a bit of a gamble but we could find water supply could end up costing $10 million (if linked with the water board) instead of $3 million."

Hill also said the water board was not sympathetic to the peninsula's agricultural problems.

"In talks with the water board we were told they wouldn't supply water for irrigation," he said. "With 80 per cent of the peninsula in agricultural land we have to think about that.

"Oak Bay and other municipalities only use 2½ times more water in the summer than in the winter but our consumption is eight times as much."

Hill said it would be unrealistic to have one source of water for domestic use and another for farming.

Divers To The Rescue

Times Staff

The Canadian armed forces have moved quickly to help avert such tragedies as this year's herring season when 16 men and 14 boats were lost in three weeks.

In April the navy's fleet diving unit at Colwood began giving three-week scuba diving courses to pararescue personnel at the armed forces' rescut bases in Comox, Summerland, P.E.I., Trenton, Ont., and Edmonton.

Training officer at Colwood, Lieut. Mark Draibye said:

"The herring season certainly had a bearing on things. We realized we had to do something."

An exercise Wednesday showed how the Colwood course has made pararescue men as adept in the water as in the air.

In the water nearby was an overturned 14-foot boat, enmeshed in nets, ropes and fish hooks, simulating the problems which could be met in an emergency.

Under the upturned boat was a dummy.

Aboard the chopper were two of the eight pararescue personnel completing the fifth course laid on since April.

We watched them jump as the helicopter's blades lashed the waters around them. They dove under the boat and in two minutes the "body" was rescued.

There were three more runs by the chopper, each time two more jumped and went through the rescue evolution.

Draibye explained that each man in Canada's four pararescue units will be taught scuba diving skills.

"Capsized boats usually have air pockets," he said, "and, the important thing is to first find out if anybody is trapped inside. If they're still alive it's essential to get them out as fast as possible."

Wednesday's seas were calm but Draibye stressed that when pararescue teams are called into action the seas are usually wild, whipped by relentless wind.

Master Cpl. George Walker, 29, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Walker of Milne's Landing, is one of those completing the course. He came aboard after completing his rescue.

For 3½ years Walker has been based in Edmonton, during which time he's made dozens of rescue flights. He explained that his unit's busy seasons are when the ice breaks up or starts to freeze. Most of those rescued are from planes downed on icy lakes.

Sooke to Study 'Package' Arena

In a letter to the Capital Regional Board Wednesday, director Ron Dumont said bids for construction of the arena came in so much higher than budgeted funds, the recreation commission doesn't want to seek additional funding authority at this time.

The board approved his recommendation that all bids be rejected and the arena project as originally envisaged be abandoned.

Dumont said the commission is looking into the possibility of buying a prefabricated arena and the board authorized the commission to negotiate such a purchase, subject to board approval.

Executive director Dennis Young said the commission has had discussions with two manufacturers and will hear from a third one. Price range is between $500,000 and $750,000, he said.

Approval to borrow up to $830,000 was obtained but the low tender was $1,224,856.

In other business, the regional board set the time for a court of revision to deal with the Sooke voters' list at July 15, 10 a.m. in the board room at 524 Yates and named directors Dumont, Jim Campbell and Ed Lum to sit as the court.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. One of my favorite hobbies for years has been knitting and now that I have six granchildren I have lots of opportunity to indulge in it. I was having tea with some neighbors the other day and one of them told me that not only are men often better cooks than women but they can also run rings around us when it comes to knitting. Can this be true? Most men I know are all fingers and thumbs when it comes to sewing or knitting. G.F.

A. Generally speaking, you're correct. Most men shy away from such hobbies but there are a few who enjoy them. As an example, Douglas Milne, who lives in Mount Florida, Glasgow, Scotland, set a record in May, 1969, when he knitted a piece that had 2,464 stitches per square inch.

Did Olympic Fire Cure Smoker?

By ELEANOR BOYLE
Times Staff

"He may have stopped by now, though," said Brown. "He lived on the third floor of the Royal Olympic Hotel."

The friend survived the Saturday fire that killed three people and injured 11. Fire department officials suspect it was caused by careless smoking.

Brown, 390 Burnside East, said he "packed it up" in 1950 and hasn't smoked since. But his friend still does, he said. "He likes to wake up in the morning and have a smoke."

Brown was interviewed Wednesday when the Times asked people at random whether they smoked in bed and what they think of the habit.

Deputy Fire Chief Carl Coates estimates bed smokers have caused 90 per cent of fire deaths in the city and 50 per cent of fires over-all.

Seventy-one fires in Victoria last year were caused by the habit, he said, adding the smokers were often under the influence of drugs or alcohol.

Of 16 smokers interviewed, most said they never smoke in bed, but two reluctantly admitted it.

One who refused to be named was reprimanded by a colleague standing nearby after saying both he and his wife smoke in bed.

"If you don't watch it, your house will go up in smoke," the other told him.

"I can do what I want in my house. I'm not here for a lecture," replied the smoker.

"See what you've done?" he said to the reporter.

Elsie Fisher, 2843 Knotty Pine, said she smokes in bed. "But only with my cigarette over an ashtray.

COATES
. . . he looked in mirror

"I'm terrified of fires. I saw a little girl burned to death once."

People who smoke in bed seem to have acquired the habit of having one late-night cigarette.

"My husband does. He likes to relax," said Lorraine Owens, 2665 Selwyn, adding

"I'm a smoker but I won't he carefully stubs it out when he puts down his book. smoke in bed," said Marie Thomas, 1165 Yates, "I'm scared of it. I won't tolerate anyone smoking in the bedroom in my house.

"It was never allowed in my home," she said. She acquired a fear of the habit in her youth, she said.

Eric Crone, 1790 Keith Place, acquired a similar attitude during his 25 years in the navy where the practice was forbidden, he said.

"I knew someone who dropped a lit cigarette in a chesterfield and got badly burned. He still smokes," said Julia Novotniak, 4147 Carey.

The deputy fire chief suggested hotel and motel desk clerks give guests a friendly warning not to smoke in bed, and outline emergency fire procedure for them.

More smoke and heat detectors should also be installed in buildings and individual rooms, he said.

"Human failure is the main cause of it, though, and it's most difficult to correct humnan failure," said Coates who gave up smoking more than a year ago.

"I had a fit of coughing that made me sick to my stomach, and saw myself in the mirror," he said.

The reflection told him he should have more sense.

Symphony Out of Red

Retiring board members of the Victoria Symphony Society will likely hand over a solvent symphony to incoming officers at tonight's annual general meeting.

The Times learned today that $35,000 of the deficit has been paid off and the society's financial report will show a balance out of the red for the first time in a number of years.

In addition word has been received from Canada Council that the 1975 grant will be double 1974.

The retiring board has been under fire for some months for "mismanagement" of symphony affairs. The opposing group will present a full slate of nominees at tonight's meeting to be held in Oak Bay Junior Secondary auditorium on Cadboro Bay Road.

The board's nominating committee will also present a full slate.

As one of its final acts in office, the present board recently invited two representatives of the Association of Canadian Orchestras to hold discussions with all segments of the Symphony Society and some leading members of the community.

Leonard Stone, president of the ACO, and Thomas Fielding, executive director of the B.C. Cultural Program are preparing an overview for the board on the direction the symphony should be taking over the next 18 months.

Market Higher, Moderate Trades

Falconbridge Nickel gained 1¾ to $35¾, Monenco 1¾ to $14¾, Nowsco Well 1¼ to $22 and General Motors 1⅛ to $48.

Preston Mines fell ¼ to $15¾, Roman ¼ to $16⅛, United Keno ¼ to $11⅜, Hollinger A ¼ to $27¾ and Chieftain ⅛ to $10¼.

New York

New indications from the U.S. government of an improved economic outlook helped the stock market score another moderate advance today.

At the opening bell, the commerce department reported that its index of leading economic indicators rose 2.1 per cent last month for its third gain in a row.

The index is designed to provide advance signs of developing economic trends, and its further rise was seen as additional evidence that the economy was heading into a recovery from the recession.

Brokers noted that the market at the same time appeared to be meeting some resistance from profit-taking after a 44.90-point rise in the Dow over the past five trading days.

Texaco was the NYSE's most-active stock, down ⅜ at $26¾ in trading that included a 600,000-share block at $26½. The company called an anti-trust suit filed against it and 10 other large oil companies "completely unjustified."

Other oils were mixed.

Merrill Lynch rose ⅞ to $18⅝. The company said it expected to show its best second quarter in history.

MCA jumped 4¼ to $78¼ after a 3⅞ rise Wednesday, when the company reported that its Universal Pictures subsidiary's movie "Jaws" had grossed $7.1 million in the first three days of its release.

Montreal

Prices were higher in all sectors in moderate trading today on the Montreal stock Exchange.

Volume at 1 p.m. was 379,200 shares, compared with 356,700 shares traded the same time Wednesday.

The composite index was up 1.53 to 192.74. Industrials were up 1.89 to 199.81, banks 1.21 to 267.49, utilities 0.40 to 129.35 and papers 0.04 to 109.97.

Hudson Bay oil rose 1½ to $35, Dome Petroleum 1¼ to $33¼, Pacific Petroleum ⅞ to $24, Toronto Dominion Bank ⅜ to $44½, Alcan Aluminium ⅜ to $25½, IAC ¼ to $19¾, Shell Canada ¼ to $17¼, Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce ¼ to $25¼, BP Canada ⅛ to $13⅞ and Imperial Oil A ⅛ to $29⅝, while Trans-Canada PipeLine lost ¼ to $9⅝, Provincial Bank of Canada ¼ to $13¾ and MacMillan Bloedel ¼ to $21¾.

London

Canadian issues were fractionally higher in quiet trading.

GULF CANADA APPOINTMENTS

R. E. Harris

Gulf Oil Canada Limited has announced the election of R. C. Beal as a Vice-President with executive responsibility for the Company's Refining operations. He succeeds R. E. Harris who has been named Vice-President with executive responsibility for Employee Relations.

Mr. Beal returns to Gulf Canada following three years as Vice-President of Gulf Oil Company—Eastern Hemisphere and Regional Vice-President—Gulf Oil Chemicals Company. Before transferring to England in 1972, he was Vice-President of Gulf Canada's Chemicals Department.

Mr. Harris, who joined the Company in 1944, was elected a Vice-President of Gulf Canada in 1966 and assumed executive responsibility for the Refining Department in 1970.

Manager—Financing

An immediate opening exists within our organization for an individual who is fully conversant with all aspects of financing. The successful applicant's responsibilities will include the locating and placing of private and institutional mortgage funds, interim financing, development financing and bridge financing.

Our close associations with finance, development and building companies forms an excellent base from which to expand. In addition to a generous renumeration program, opportunities for greater involvement and profit participation exist for the right individual.

CHICAGO (AP) — Soybean futures advanced nearly five cents a bushel today on the Board of Trade, but wheat futures lost as much and corn was down 3½ cents.

Soybean meal came under liquidation in contrast to soybeans and lost nearly $3 a ton, while soybean oil advanced about 50 points, or ½ cent a pound. Oats were down one cent.

Gold futures on domestic exchanges closed about steady to a few pennies lower in very dull trade.

The demand for soybeans and oil was influenced by trade reports of recent days that processors had crushed fewer soybeans for oil and meal in recent weeks. Meal is in abundant supply but there was some feeling that expanded use of edible oils in the summer might cause some tightening of soy oil stocks.

After a small amount of export business had been reported a good demand developed for soybeans and oil. The nearby July oil option advanced the limit of 100 points briefly.

At the close, soybeans were 1½ to 4½ cents a bushel higher, July 5.22½; wheat 3½ to 5 lower, July 3.07; corn 2½ to 3½ lower, July 2.82½ and oats unchanged to 1 lower, July 1.51.
